G. R. DAVIS

To a golfer who teaches chemistry Ed Grabowski

Mr. Davis,
There is really so much to say, but no way to say. You certainly prepit how much I think of you. Thanks for all you've taught me. But most of all → thank-you for being yourself!
Sue Dicker

MR DAVIS → WHAT CAN I SAY? I GUESS I COULD SAY OK! PRETTY GOOD. WELL MR D. ITS BEEN A GREAT YEAR THANKS SEEMS LIKE SUCH A LITTLE WORD BUT ITS ALL I CAN THINK OF.
JILL AUMAN

To my favorite chem. leader from your most expensive student. Steve Sundell (No. 19)

Thank you Mary Kneeland
So long like a banana.
Jim Ritter
John "tie" Schmidt
Dave Folty

Mr. D.
Chem. is my fav subject (despite what Sally says about dumb 'old Latin!) It's been a great class
Thanks for everything
Sharon Bedford

Mr. Davis,
Well, I tried.
Dave Hines

Mr. D.....
Sharon signed in the wrong place.....

Mr. George Robert Davis,
I really loved being your service worker and star football player.
Take care and I'll be back sometime.
Thanks a million for making 1st and 2nd a little brighter.
Ruth A. Watson

I never thought that they made teachers like you. Gail Lockaner

They call him a big thinker by people who lisp! George

To the greatest Chem teacher in the realms & the endless universes. Mike E. Roberts

It may not show but I learned a great deal this year
Rick Hahn

George really messed up the joke. It should be "He is called a big thinker by people who lisp". But then George (Nieriter) always screws things up. Roger D. Hummel

Most kind sir — Many thanks for the "learning experience" & they probably do distill red ants in Cincinnati. Marta Graf

Mr. Davis! I think I'm going to cry! I'll come back and see you next year and tell you how fabulously I'm doing in college chem. Don't forget the class of '69 at the NHS banquet.
Carol Lake

Mr. "G.D.", What am I going to do in college without you? When I ask a question and the teacher answers it instead of saying "I don't know," I'll just be lost! You are a real sweetie! Thanks for a great year
Anne Cutter

Mr. Davis,
As you slide down the banister of life, remember me as the splinter.

Mr. Davis — It's been quite a year, and I've been as lucky as to be in Rm. 4 twice a day. Thanks for everything.
Greg Davis

Mr. Davis - We really had a good year at south. I'm glad I finally got to know you my senior year. Wish I knew about you sooner you're a cool teacher. Thanks
Doug Stelzing

MR. DAVIS - TO ONE OF THE GREATEST TEACHERS HERE AT SOUTH. WE REALLY DIDN'T DESERVE YOU. DORIS BOYD

Mr Davis - Doesn't write much, but if you ever want to look as sexy as me, I'll let you use my BLUE EYE SHADOW!! Free of charge!! Nance Dewgeed

Hi again. Will miss ya. Loved Karen

Mr. Davis - Gosh, Mr. Davis, I really hate leaving you and this class. I mean that! The senior year is always rough, but you're helped to make it fun and bearable. Carol and I are gonna come back and see you next year, cause you're our all-time favorite teacher. Sob! CRY! Jon Oaks

Well George it has been a great year in this second period chem. class.
Ed Hughes

Mr. Davis
Hi again! I'll always remember 2nd period chem idge

Mr. Davis - It's been a riot in your class. There's only one thing I wish you'd try to cure you play more favorites than any teacher I know. Have fun in the future.
Mitch

Since I went 19 words over my limit on the other page - I'll just say I'll miss ya. Thanks.
Linda Crayton

MR. DAUTZ (ON BACK)

SORRY RANDY

Mr. Davis - It has been my pleasure and your misfortune to be in your class, and service for you.
Greg Allen #1

Stephen M. Mattar

Mr. Davis,
I've enjoyed chem. class more than any other class ever.

Mr. Davis
It's been fun being in chem
Tom Doyle

Mr. Davis - thank you for the many "well-chosen" examples, the patience with us, and the many funny classes.
Dan Flickinger

-G.R.D.-
Your last two initials are just like Klops. Aren't you honored?! It's really been fun in your class and I think you're a pretty good teacher. The only problem is, I didn't learn too much. I guess I didn't try hard enough.
Mark Kestner

Mr. Davis
Your a great teacher and it has been great being in your class.
Debra Arotutz

MR DAVIS -
I'VE ENJOYED BEING IN YOUR CHEM CLASS THIS YEAR - EVEN IF YOU DID MAKE ME TURN RED ALL THE TIME —
BARRY WISOR

Mr. Davis - It's been a long hard year. Even though Phil says your a bad golfer, I think you're all right. Thanks for everything.
Ken

Steve Cook

To my favorite golf and Chem. teacher. Good luck.
Phil Erli

MR. D. →

It's really been fun servicing for you this year! Thanks for being so kind about all my phone calls and Totem work. Have a good summer and some great golf scores!

LeeAnn

Mr. Davis

It really has been fun servicing for you, although I doubt if I like that much. You've really been great to all of us, picnics, bowling, and just being a real good guy. I wish you the best of luck and health

Dan Borgmann

Mr. Davis

Well you've made it through another year with another Fisher. Although I didn't make such a big "bank" out of things as Sandy did. It's been alot of fun servicing for the chemistry dept. and those picnics and bowling parties were the greatest. Hope to be busy ring into your sons where.

Ric Fisher

Mr. D..... You and my 9th grade Eng. teacher are my very favorites ... aren't you thrilled! You were really wonderful this year and alot of fun → I'm glad that I got to service for you — I wouldn't have missed some of those discussions for anything. I'll come see you next year and tell you all about Colorado.....

Thanx for everything.

Jan (Joan)

Have a fun summer. Nancy Shinn

Can you remember me as the one who doesn't have a good memory. Have a fun summer. Nancy Shinn

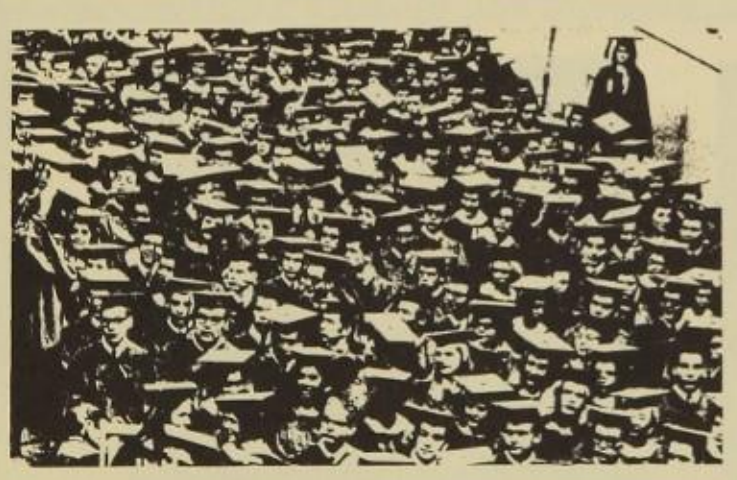
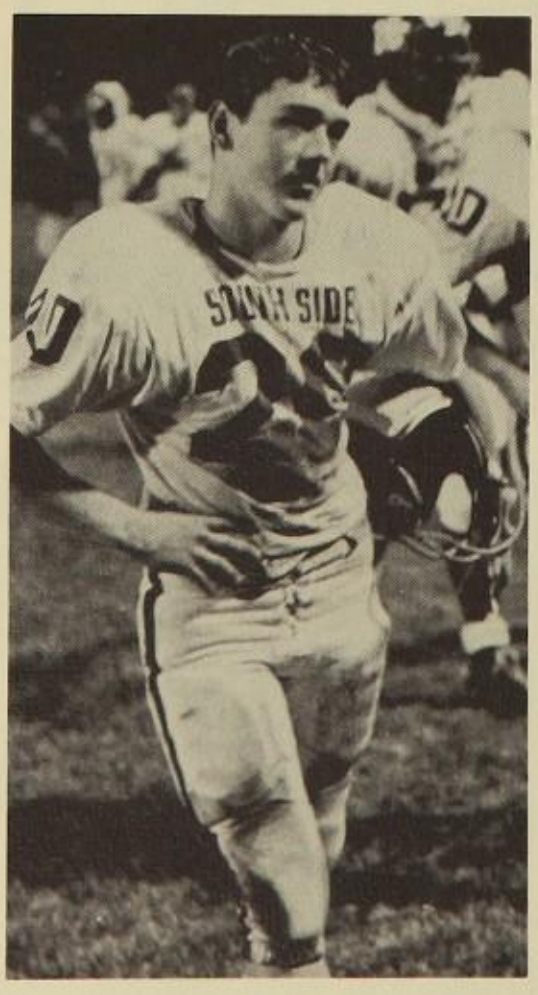
Mission: Student Life

With the laying of your foundation, South Side, you had a definite mission. Your responsibility was not only to those students who attended you daily, but to the community and the generations of tomorrow. Your foremost and most obvious mission was to offer a well-balanced and academically superb curriculum. Secondly, it was your job to serve as a molder of friendships and to create a spirit of better understanding among all who attended South Side. The success of your mission could not be determined with the mere graduation of your many senior classes. Your success can be measured by the actions of the generation of tomorrow.



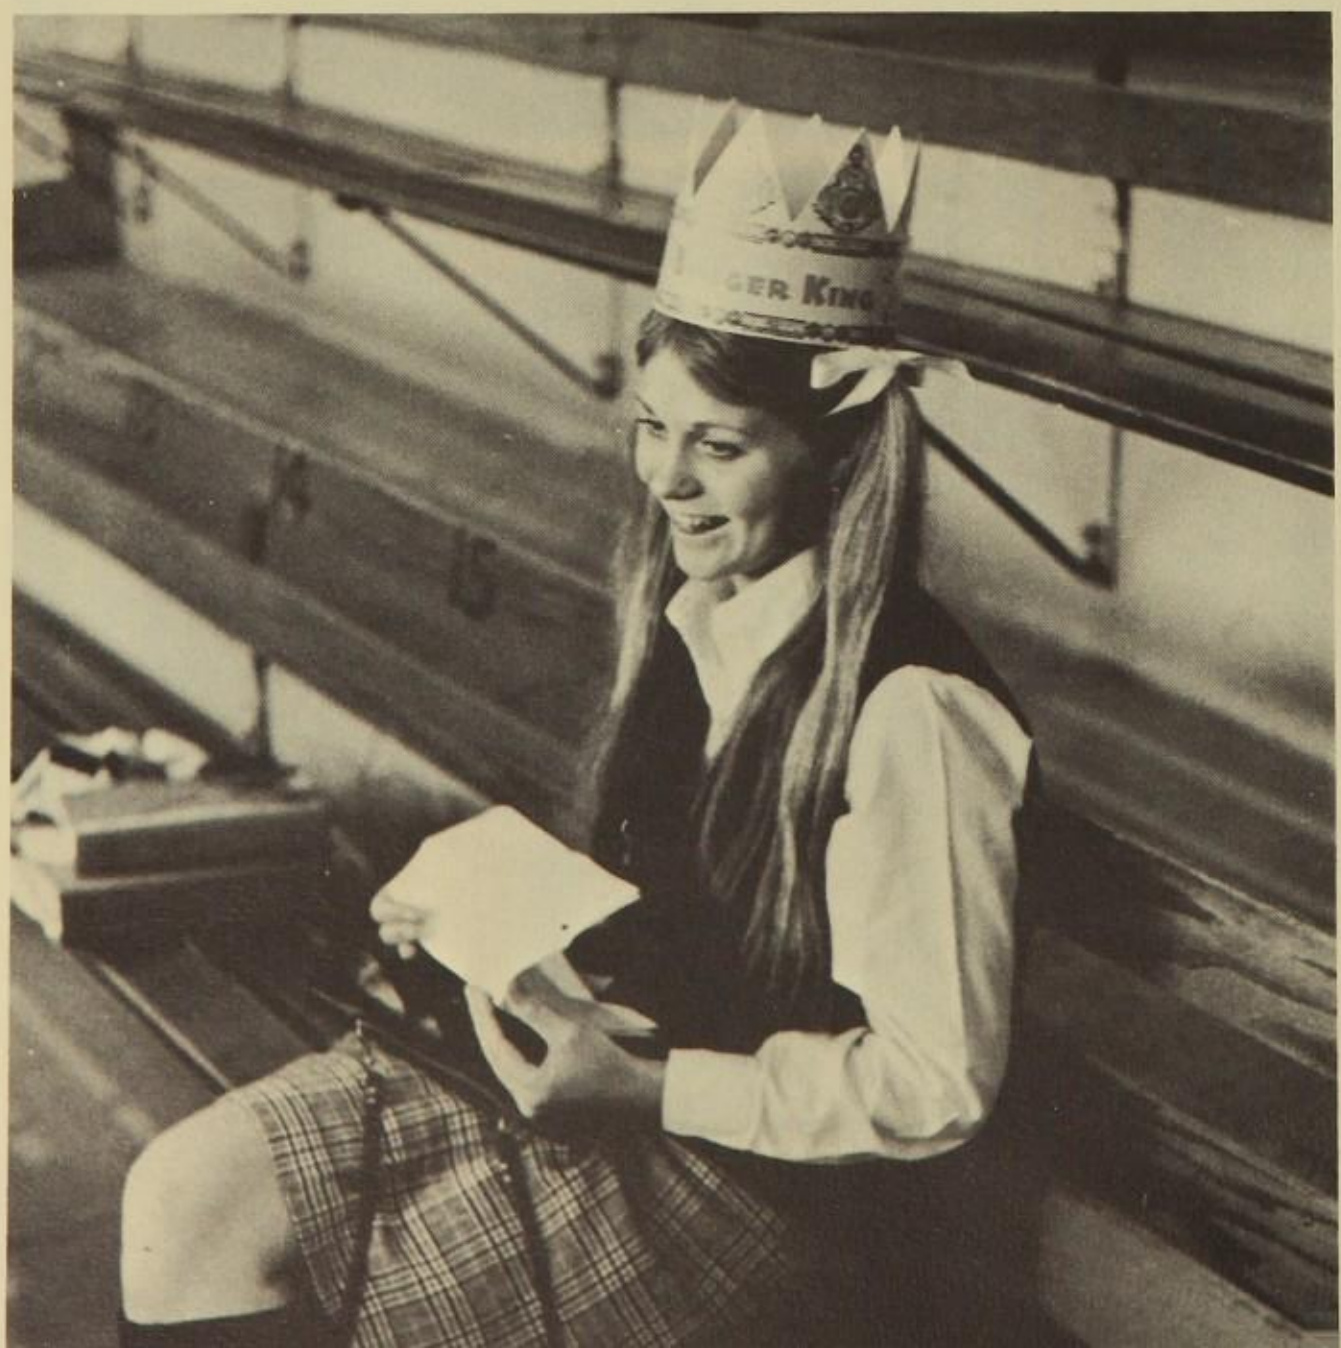
Kelly Enthusiasm In Sports, Classes

As time passed on causing things to age and be forgotten, time was just beginning for the Archer. The '69 year marked the entry of many students into an adult world. It was a time when new friendships which would last long past the high school days at South Side were formed. The year became a time of preparation for the future. Students suddenly were aware that the knowledge which they would obtain in high school was only the beginning of what they were yet to learn. This realization prodded Archers to search further into those areas which interested them. Kellys then began to appreciate the willing help which guided them through their training years at South. By recognizing and seeking their goals, Archers fulfilled an important part of their mission.

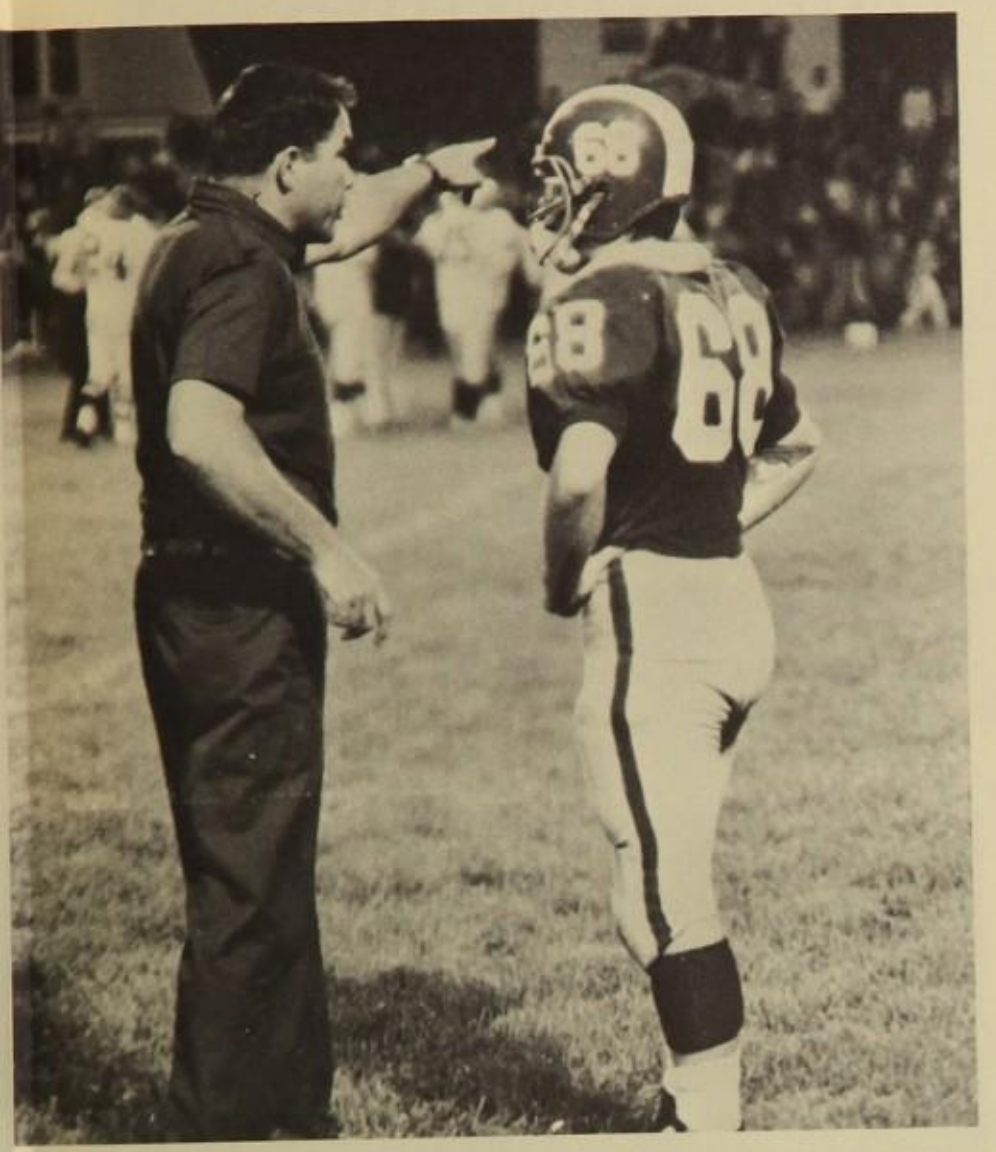


Aids Completion Of Successful Year

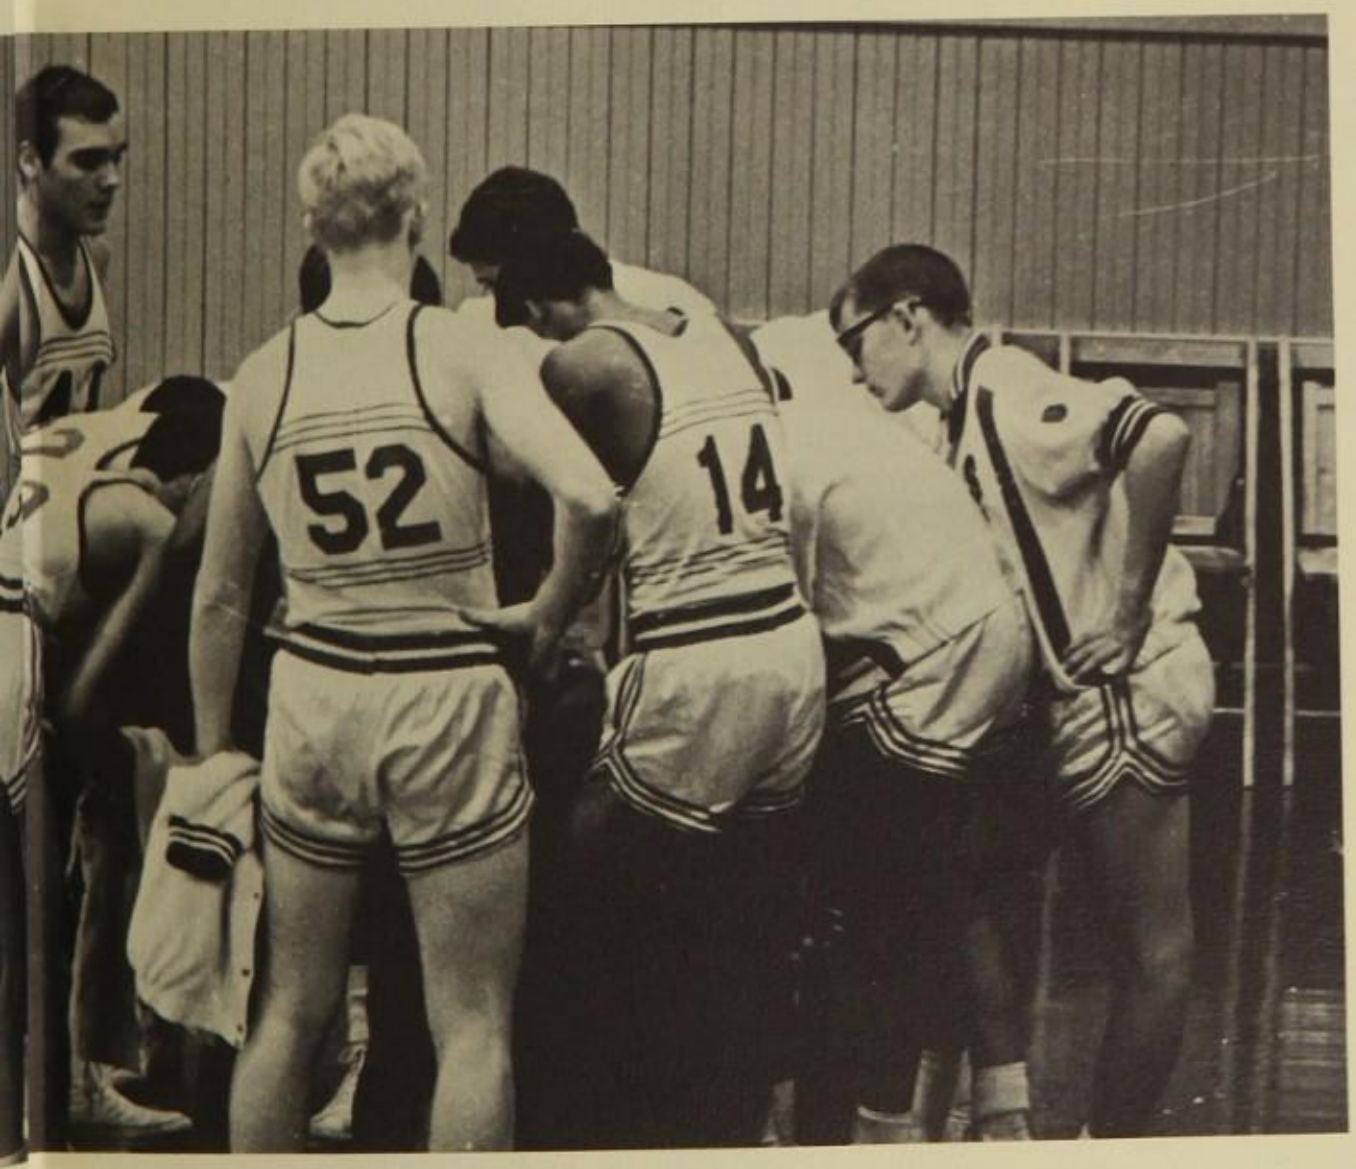
Pep Sessions, Games, Trophies Of



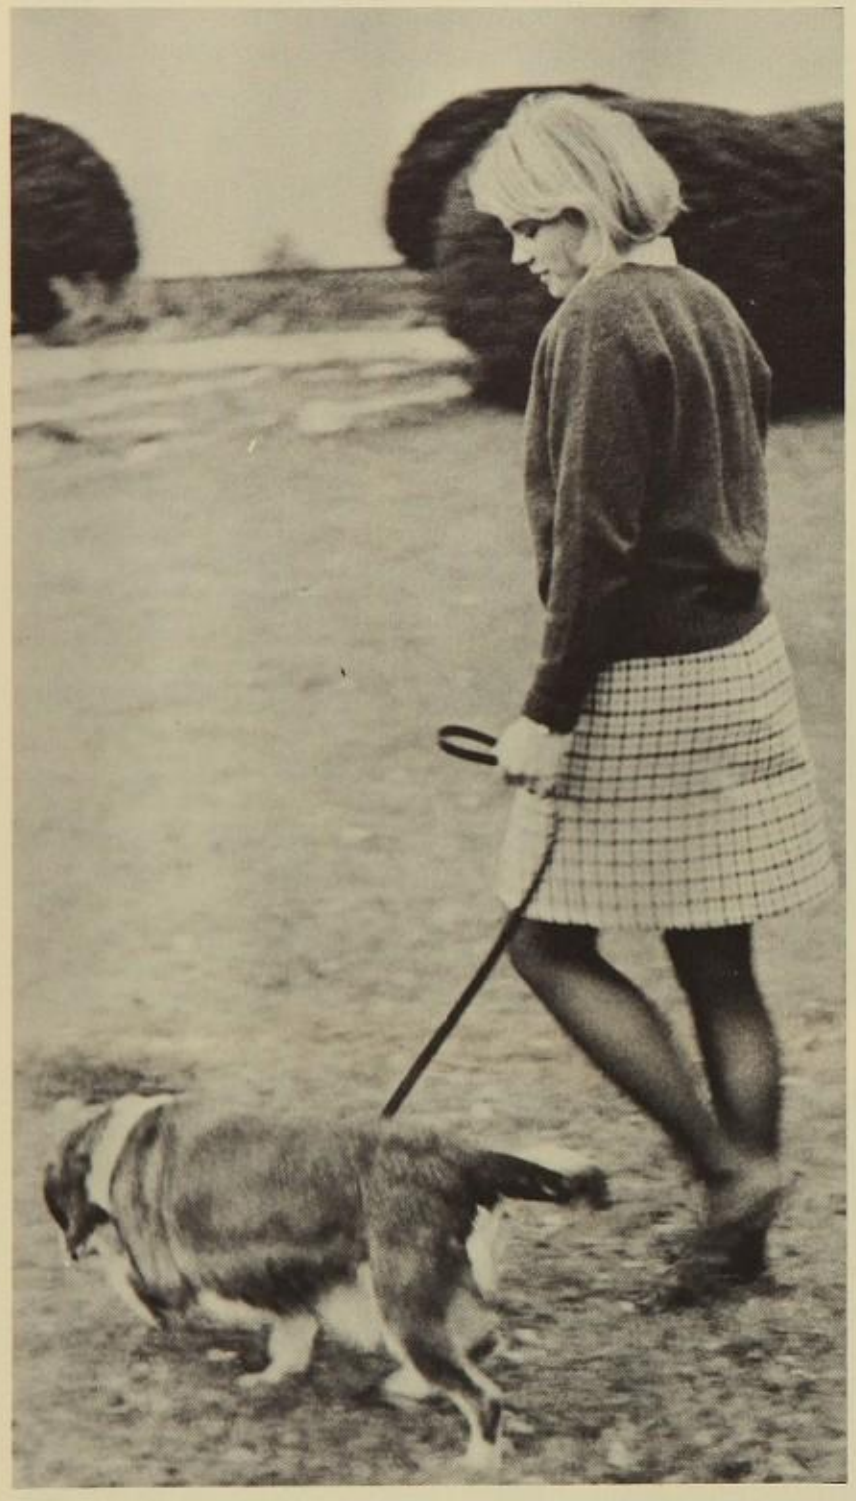
Victory Stimulate Spirit In Archers



Spirit which was shown in a myriad of ways was one of the keys to your successful mission. Throughout the year, spirit was a vital part of each phase of school life. Students united to back the many athletic teams and cheer the players on to victory. With each success or failure came a vibrant spirit of determination to urge another victory. Archers volunteered hours of personal time to produce assemblies which stimulated students' thoughts. Enthusiasm overflowed as Kellys engaged in club projects, participated in community activities, and offered their services to the various organizations which they supported. At election time, Archers gave both time and energy to aid the candidate of their choice. By promoting active spirit, both the mind and character of the Kellys were increased.



Kellys Break From Rigid Routine To Find Release From Pressures



Despite pressing study and work schedules, Archers found time to loaf, meet with friends, and simply relax. The many different ways in which Kellys amused themselves were as numerous as the number of students at South. With time being such a precious element, South Siders were certain to do that which they enjoyed the most. To some, it was the rowdiness of a football game on a Saturday afternoon. Others preferred shopping for clothes. Some students chose to spend their extra time talking to friends and some simply wished to be alone. Regardless of how the spare time was spent, it was a time when the Archer was free to do what he pleased and express his true self. As the school year progressed, life became more hectic and these moments of time became more and more precious to the Kelly.

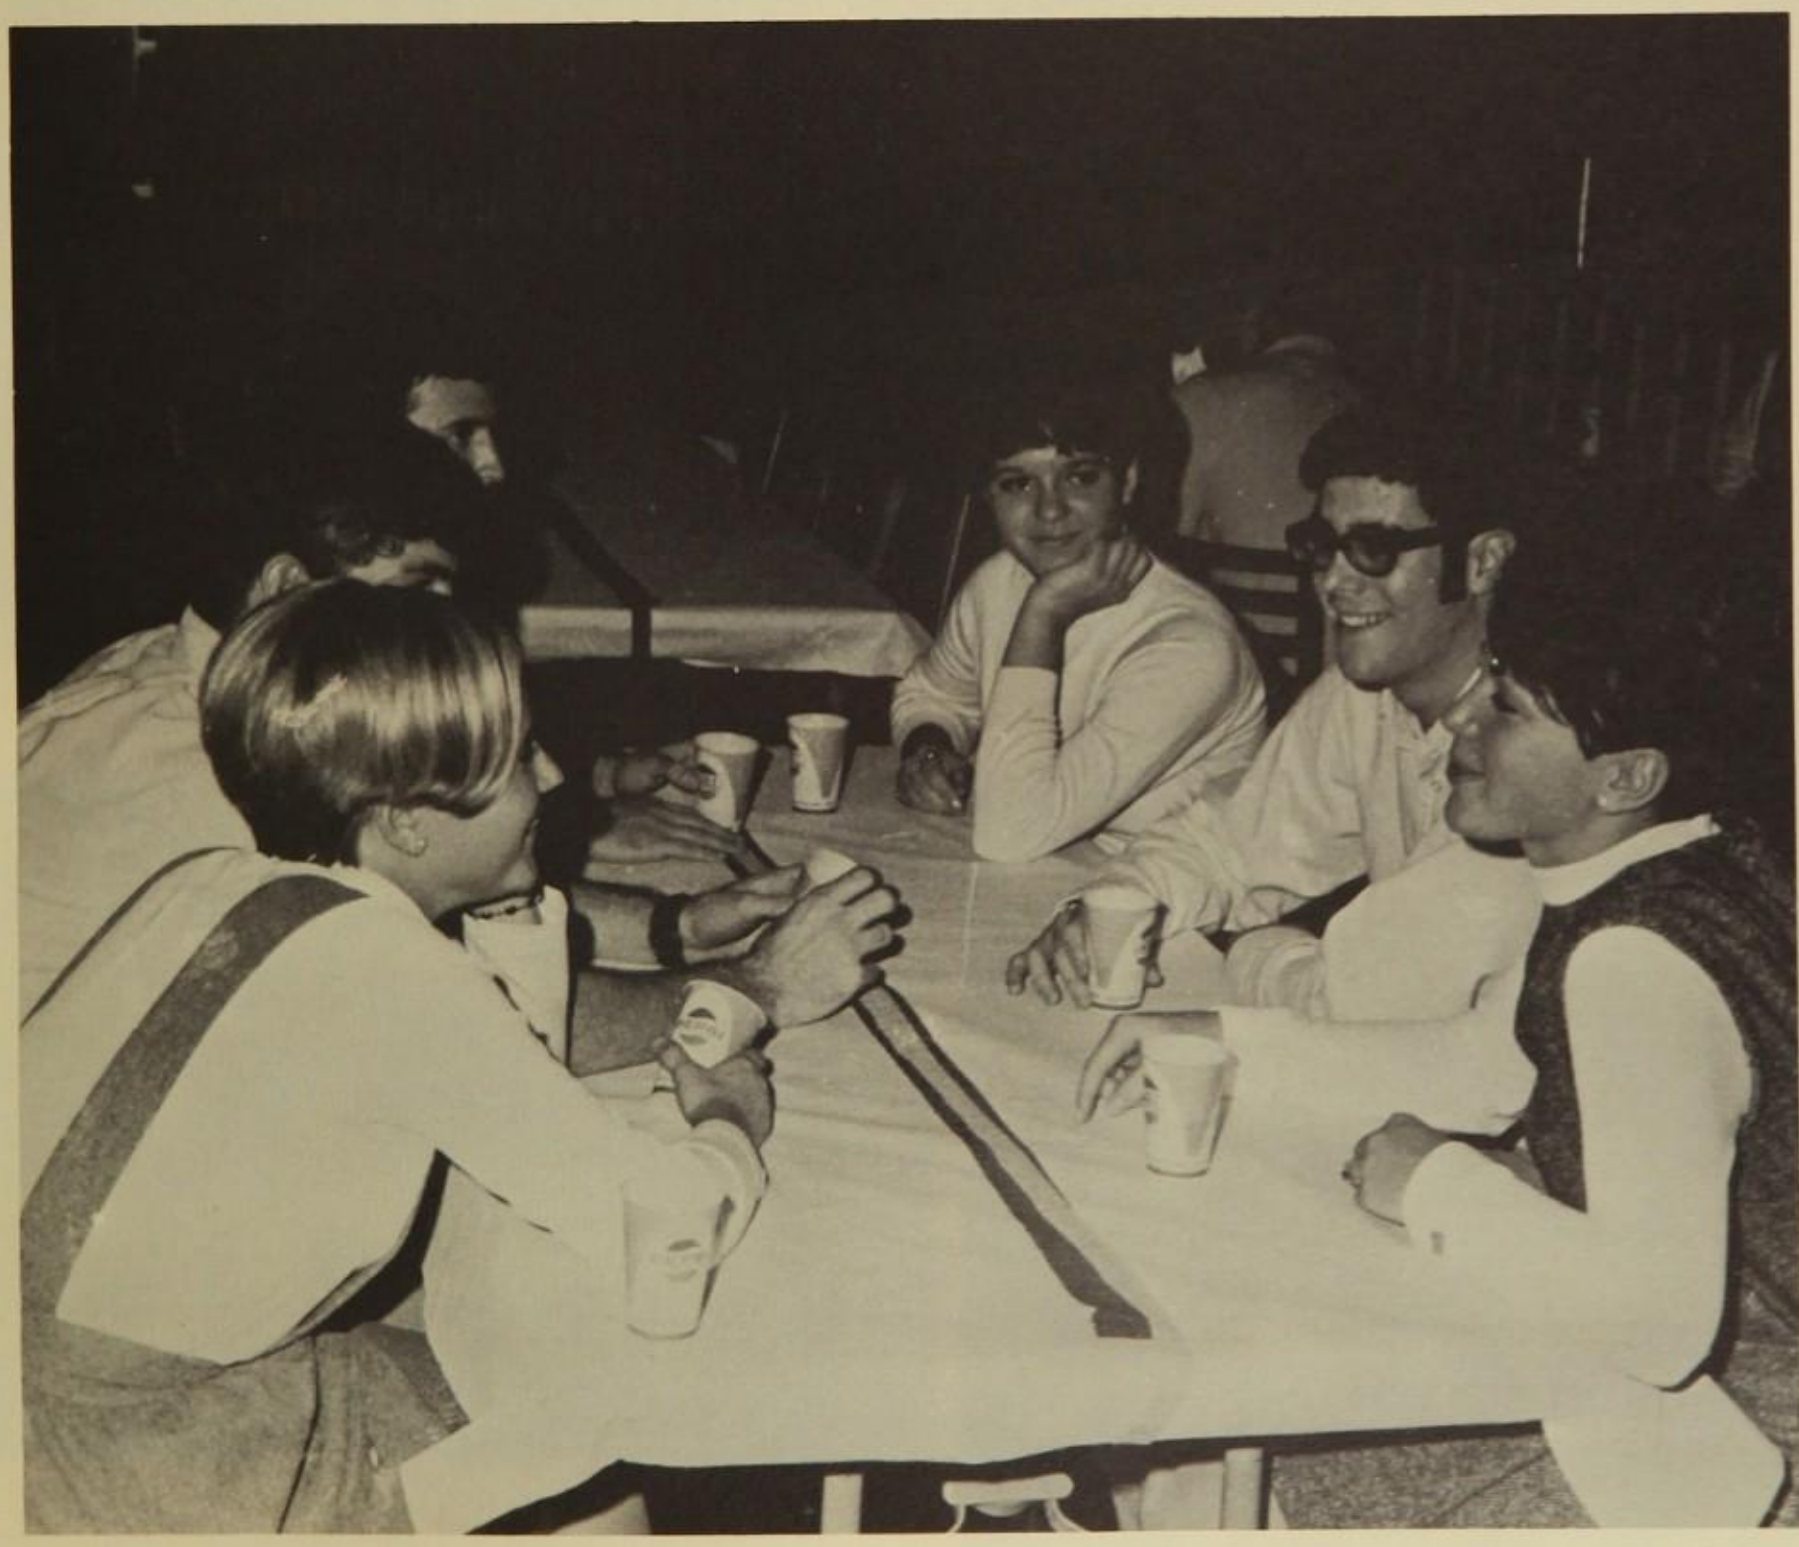
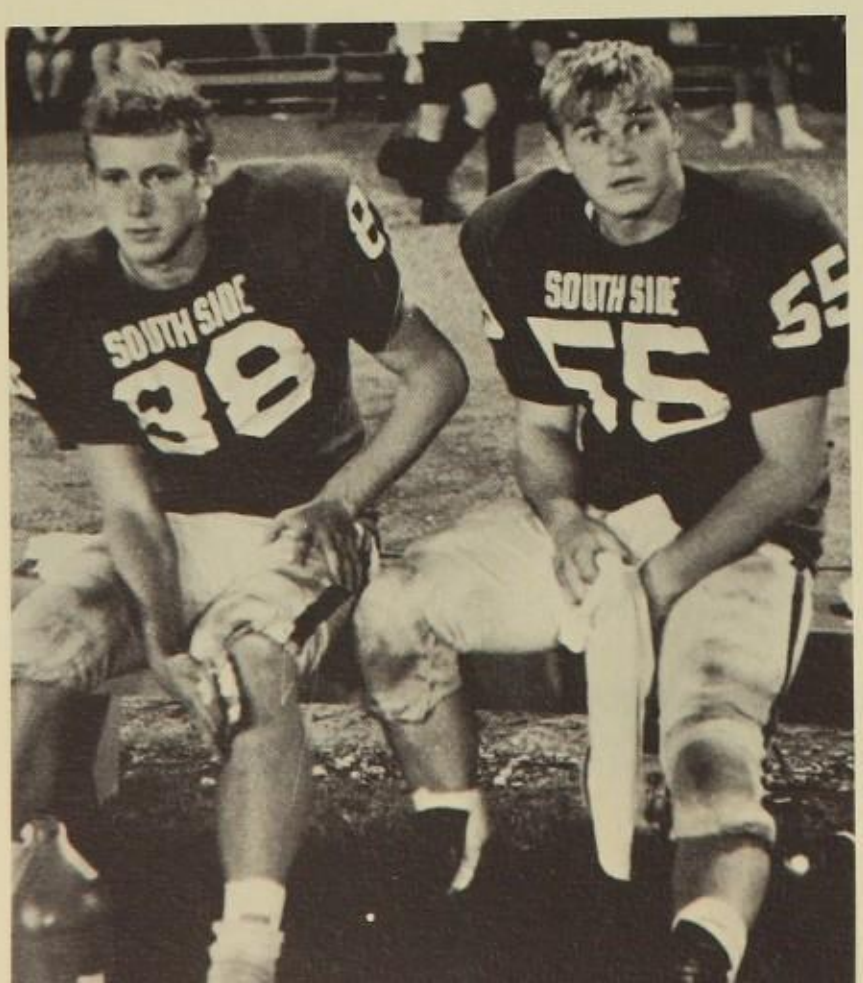
South Side Students Use Weekends For Movies, Games, Dates, Dances

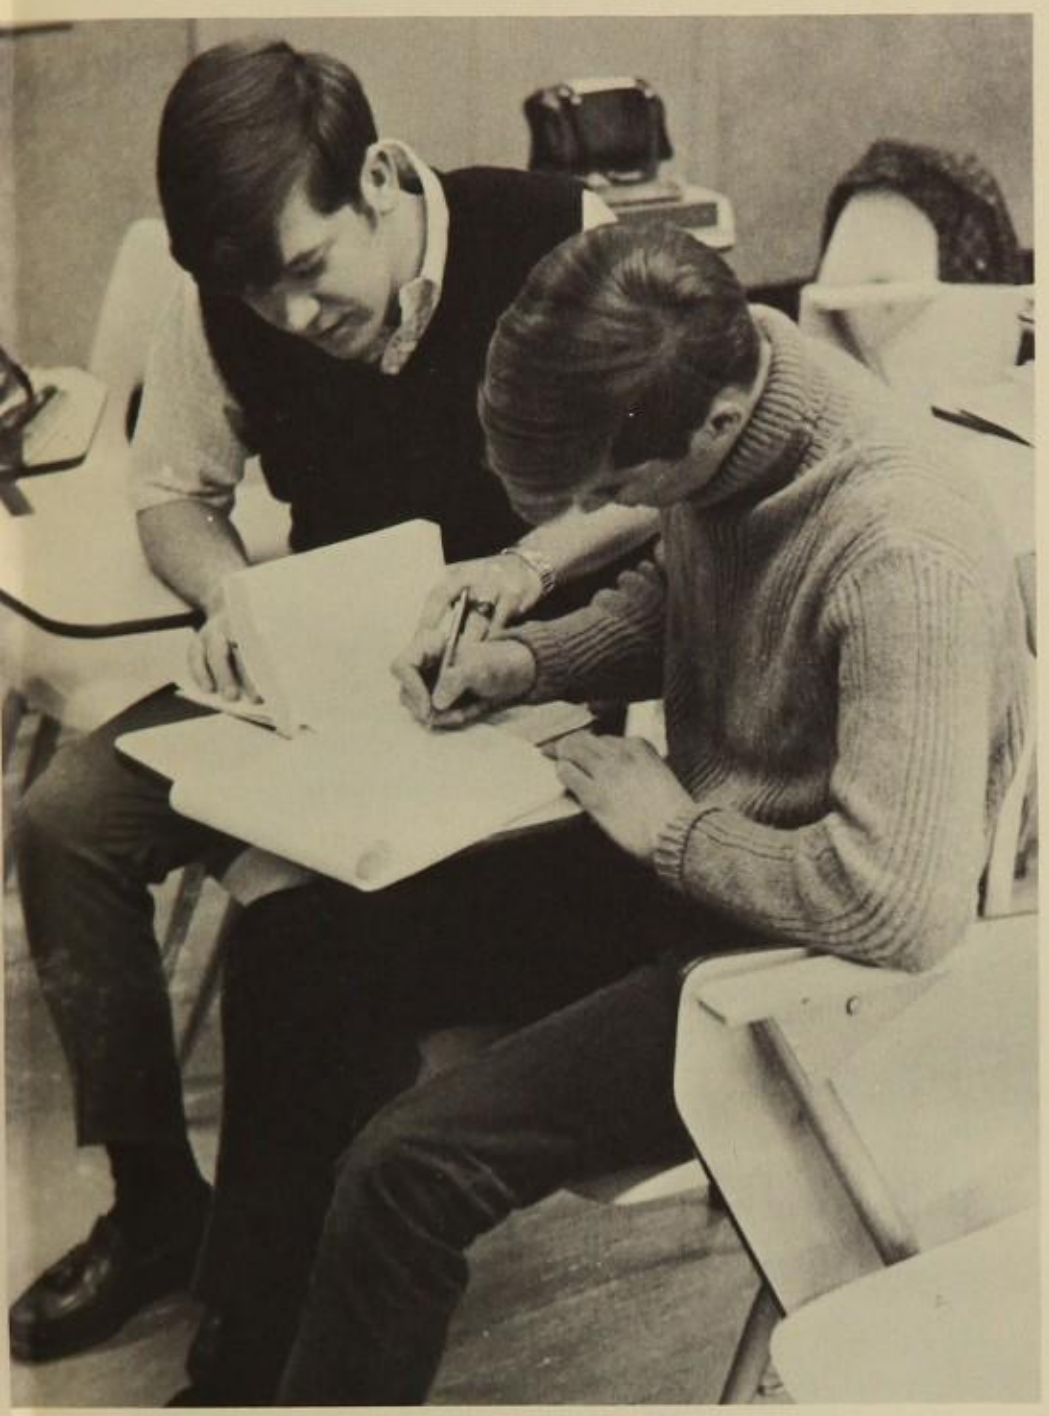
Weekends brought a time when Archers mingled socially and exposed an entirely different side of themselves. That kid in math class was suddenly a date and a new and lighter personality was shown. Everything from the foreign aid policy to the current fashions were discussed over a pizza at the favorite hang-out. Basketball games, school and local dances, and a quick stop for a coke all provided a place for students to meet and talk. Weekends were also the time when the guys got together for the weekly poker game and the girls had an all-night gab session. In the spring, Archers spent much time researching at the library for that term paper or hour long. Kellys often knew each other better from weekend dates than from years of casual class contact.

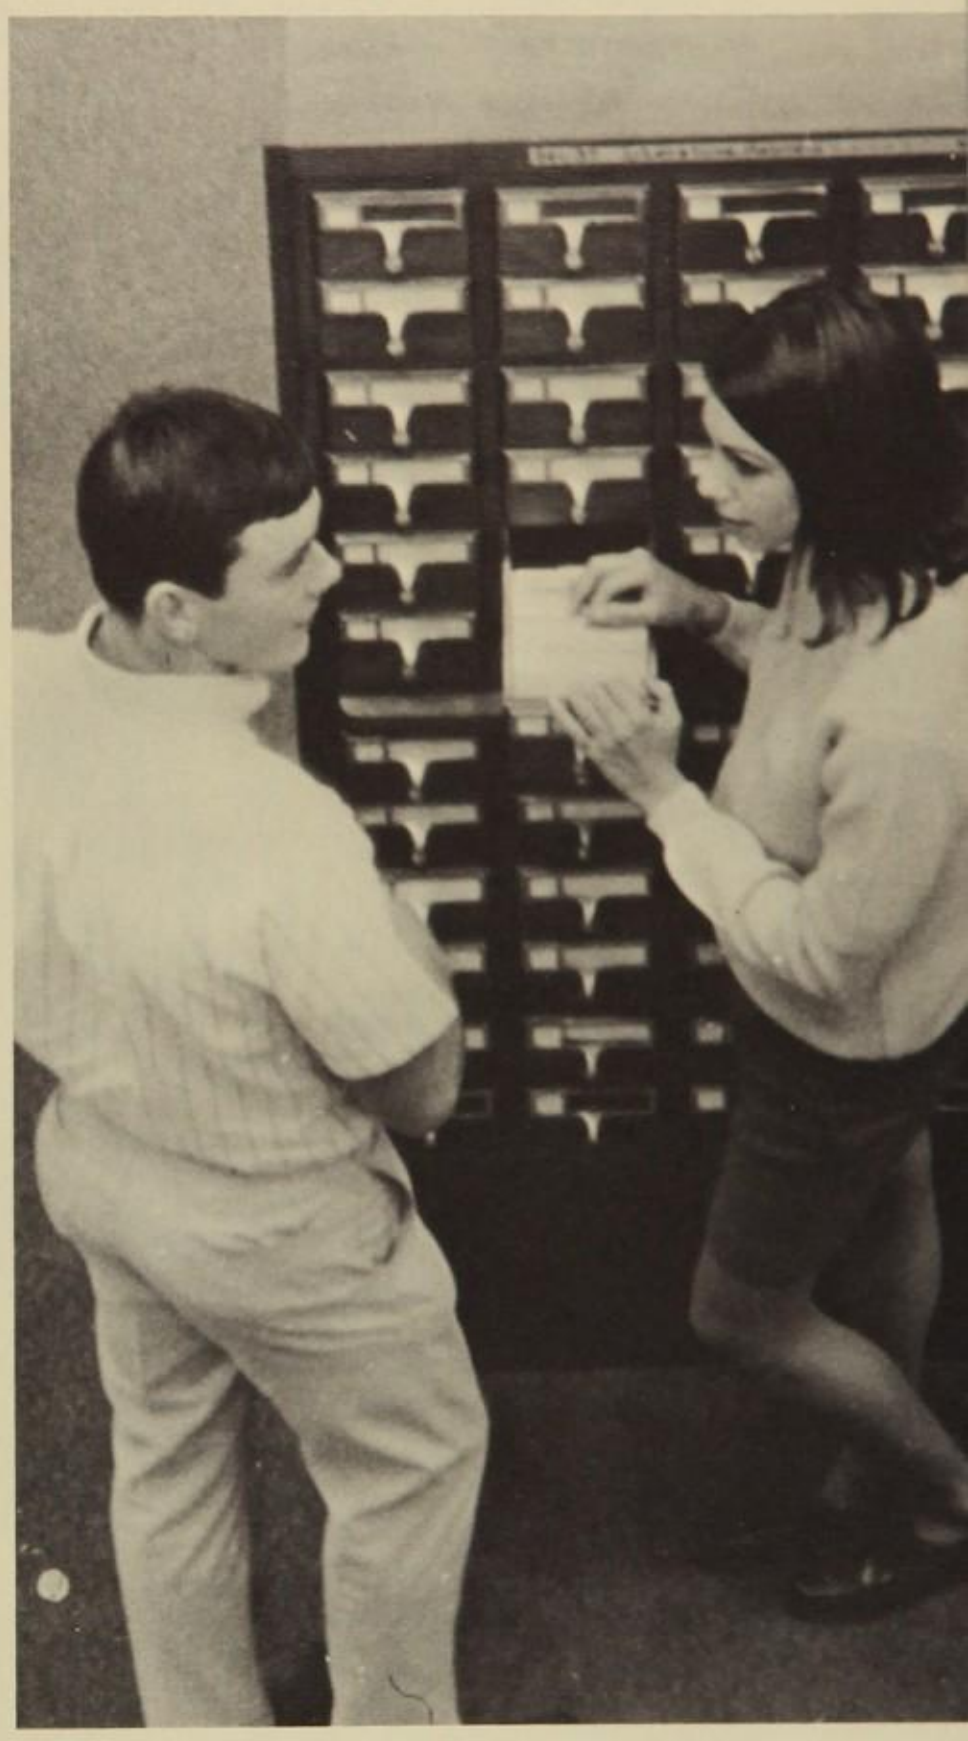


Student Friendships Evolve Through



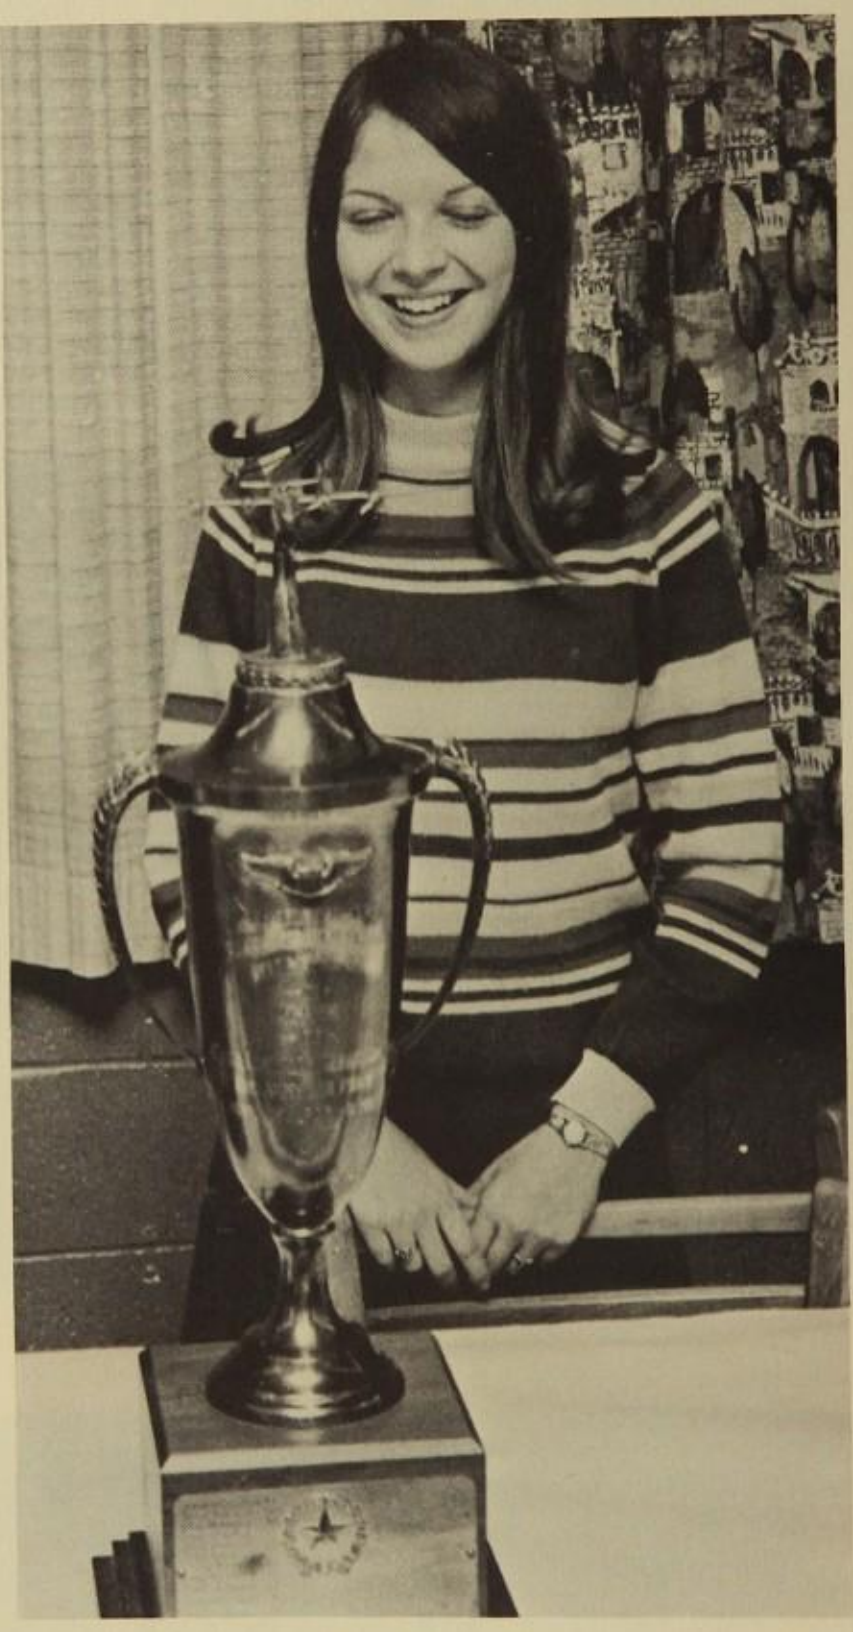
Grouping Of Similar Personalities





Individuals, Crowds, Memorials Help To Mold Strong Ties, Traditions

Those things which were unchanging served as a mainstay for Kelly students. Such was the case with South Side tradition. Customs and activities which could be traced far back through the history at South were a part of the 1969 school year. In the fall of the year, the Randolph Jacobs Cup was presented to the outstanding senior service worker at the annual Service Potluck. Receiving the trophy was Jean Dunlap. Once again, the crowning of Homecoming Queen, Queen of Hearts, Ivy Day Queen, and King Kelly were some of the special events of the year. The annual Hi-Y bonfire followed the South Side-Central Catholic game bringing the football season to a close. Although South strove for the latest and most modern teaching methods and equipment, age-old tradition added warmth and personality to it.



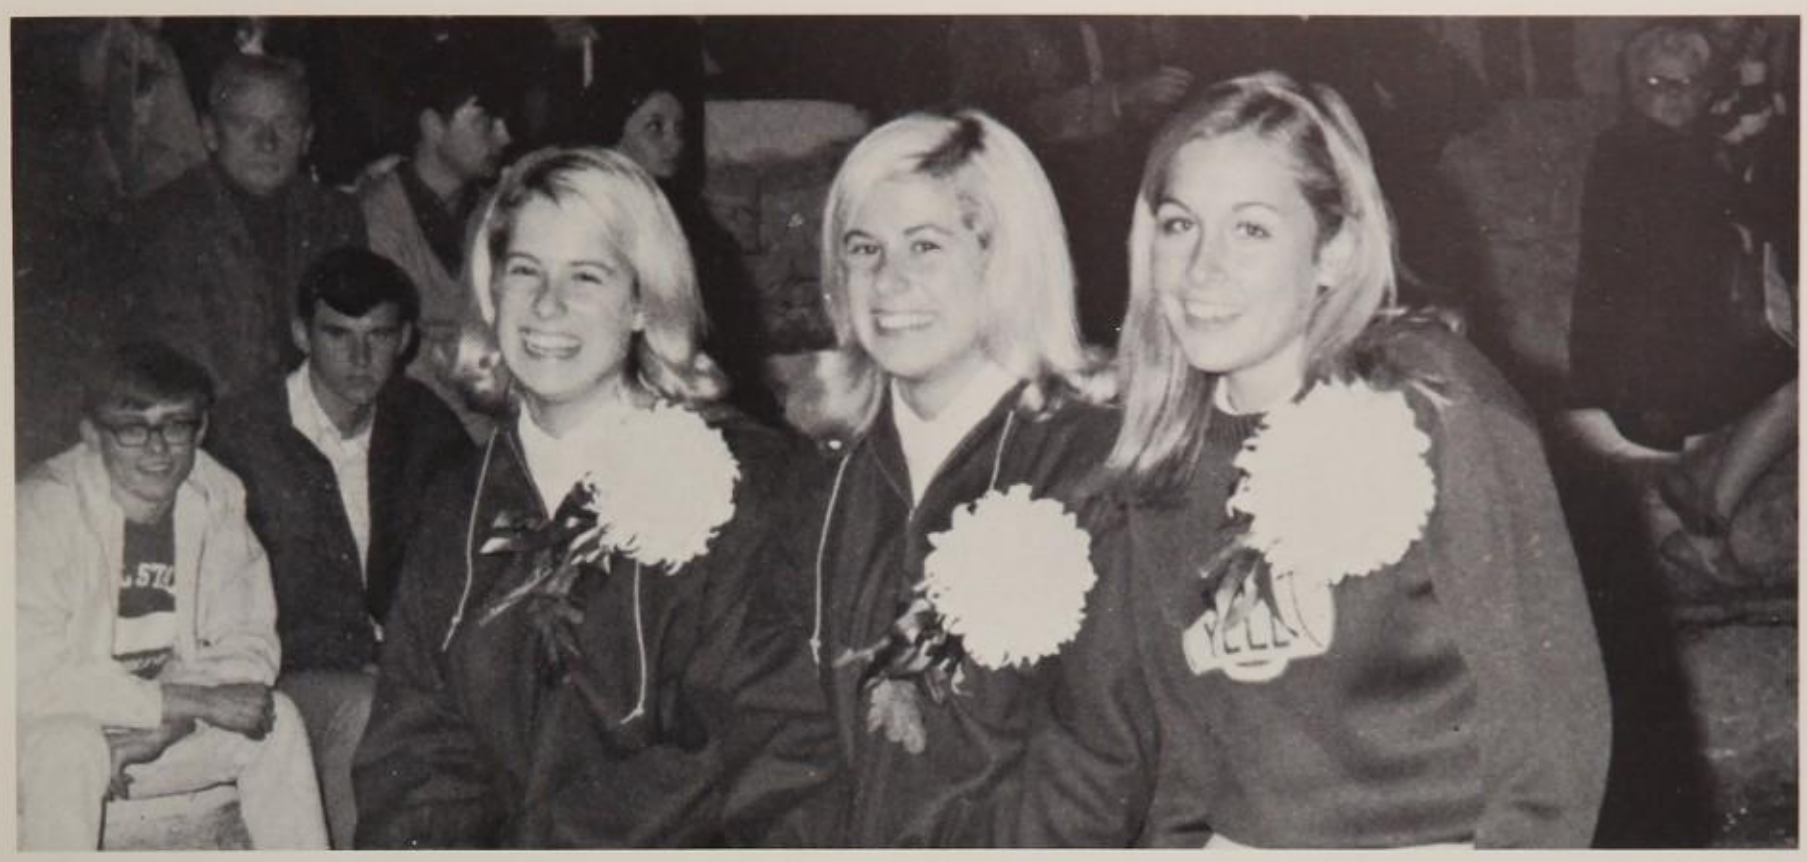
Dances, Election Of 'Royalty,' Athletic

For any high school student, the activities sponsored by his school play a large part in his high school life. This was also true of the Archers, as they attended all of the activities sponsored by South Side. Almost all Archers belonged to one club or another and could be seen in the halls, throughout the year, trying to raise funds for their respective clubs. With the advent of the various sports seasons, Kellys turned out in great numbers to support the teams. After many of the football or basketball games, club-sponsored dances were held in the school cafeteria. Of course, each class held its own functions this year, and the members of the various classes responded enthusiastically to class functions. This enthusiasm raised school spirits and knit the student body together.

Dr. Sanford Snyderman seems oblivious to the current teenage band sound, while Mrs. Snyderman and Mrs. Schmidt ignore it.

Junior John Theye and sophomore Dawn Snouffer are busy buying their Archer license plates that were sold to all Kelly students by the Meterite Club. Junior Betsy Crawford and sophomore Celeste Hite, members of the Meterite Club, energetically sell the club's merchandise.

Events Highlight Year's Festivities



1968 junior candidates for Homecoming Queen Peggy Roehm, Nancy Roehm, and Jan Hines look their best as they parade around the stadium during the halftime festivities at South Side's annual Homecoming game. Jan Hines went on to be the second runner-up in the final presentation.

Mr. Robert Weber seems fascinated by the actions of the team at a home football game.

Annual Hi-Y Bonfire Highlights

Varsity football player Tom Snider seems rather disgusted that the Kelly squad failed to gain needed yardage during the South Side-C.C. contest.

Exciting Kelly Grid Squad Season

Following a disappointing game with Central Catholic in which the Archers bowed to the Irish for the third straight year, Kelly students gather around the annual Hi-Y club bonfire. This event marked the close of a fine football season in which the Kellys tallied a 6-3 win-loss record.

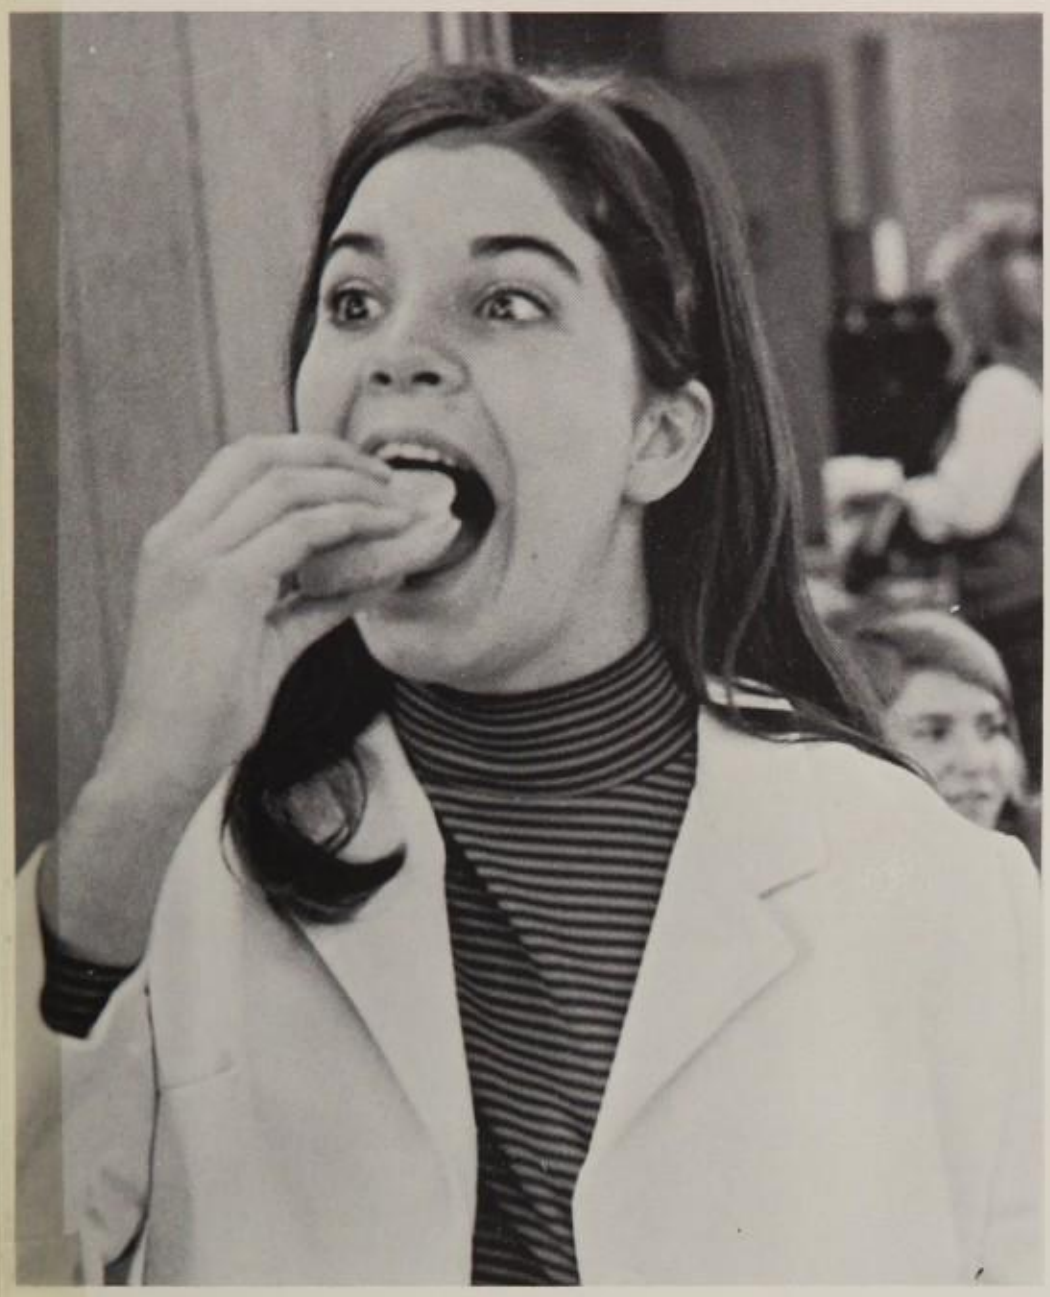
Junior Nikky Spillson ponders over a question posed to her by Tom Kelley during fifth period lunch.

Senior Grendel Burrell (right) offers some intimate information to Junior Jeanne Keck who lends a sympathetic ear at a picnic at Franke Park.

Relaxation In Community, School



Junior Jennifer Senseny displays much enthusiasm by taking a giant-sized bite of a hot dog, a favorite lunch for many Archer students.

Senior Sue Dicker enjoys playing a trick on the unsuspecting Steve Conway at a drinking fountain.

Senior Vicki Spears scans the program-menu of the annual Service Potluck held in honor of the Archer teachers and their service workers.

Senior Ken Cornacchione plays custodian by wheeling around an excited Jill Auman, who enjoys the ride.

Faces, Events Reflect Archer Moods

During the half-time ceremonies at the South Side-Elmhurst game, Senior Karen Kessler is crowned 1969 Homecoming Queen. Escorted by Senior letterman Tom Motter, Karen is flanked by first runner-up Senior Cricket Tieman and second runner-up Junior Jan Hines.

An excited crowd of Archer fans watches anxiously as the Kelly gridiron squad puts another play in motion. Loyal team support was an important part of South Side's successful season.

With Realization Of The Year's End,

With the finish of the school year came both a feeling of happiness and sadness. Looking back, the Archer could see a year which was filled with lasting friendships and a carefree time which ended with the closing days of high school. The ending of the school year once again presented a feeling that time was really just beginning. To the graduate, life was just beginning as he entered a world where he would specialize in a profession of his choice. To the underclassman, there was a feeling that there was still time to learn as much as possible from high school days. In the final days of the year, students paused to look back at their many good times at South, to appreciate the knowledge which they gleaned from the classroom, and to reevaluate their past accomplishments and new goals.

Seniors Grendel Burrell and Dan Borgmann exchange opinions while taking a ride on a merry-go-round during a fall picnic.

Sophomore Denise McCoy attempts to gain the title of champion bubble gum blower and prove to the upperclassmen that sophomores do have some very special but hidden talents.

South Siders Look Toward Future

Junior Randy Harris points to a duck while his friends try to bring it down. Weekends provide a time for Archers to pursue those things which are of special interest to them. A hunting trip with friends provides an unusual day which is long remembered afterwards.

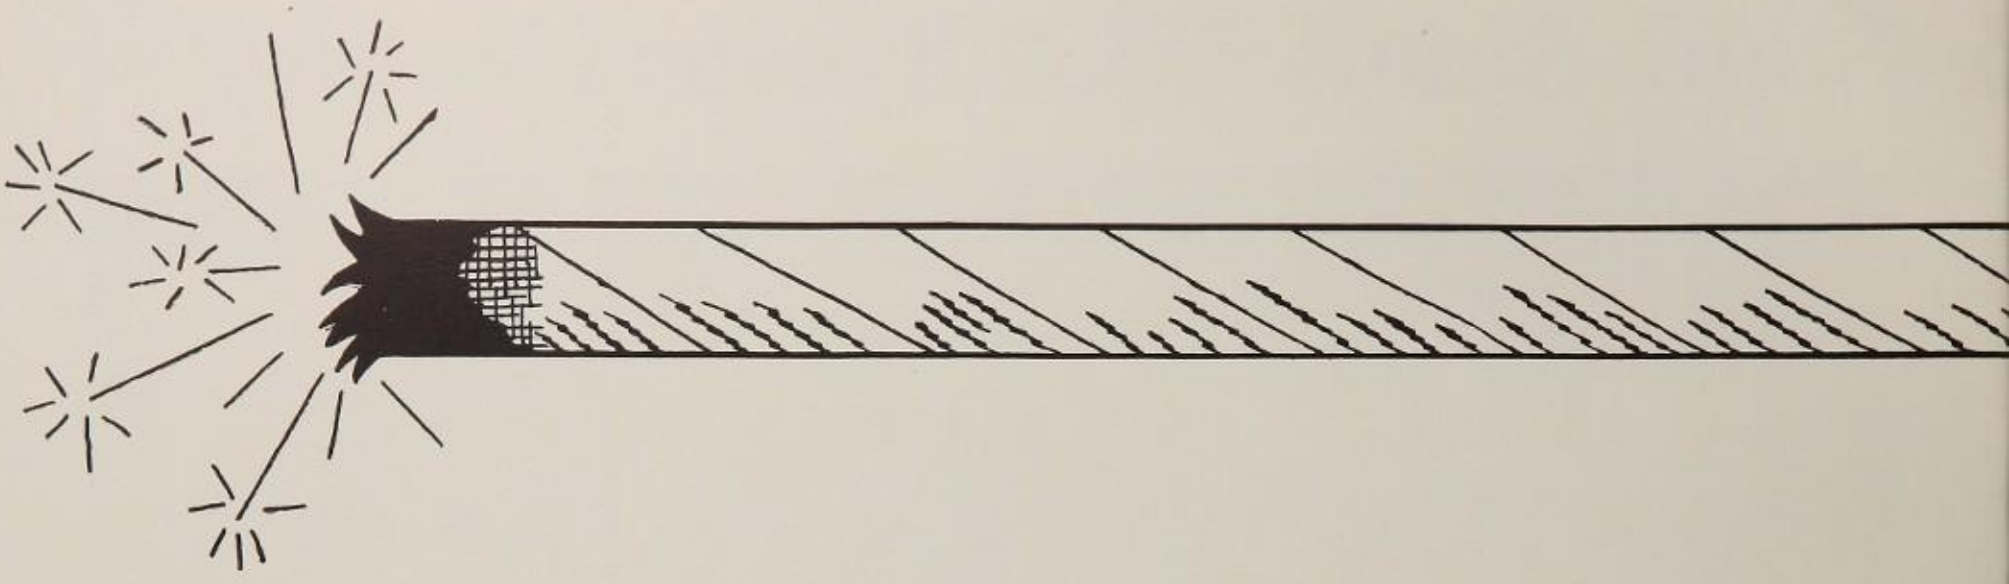
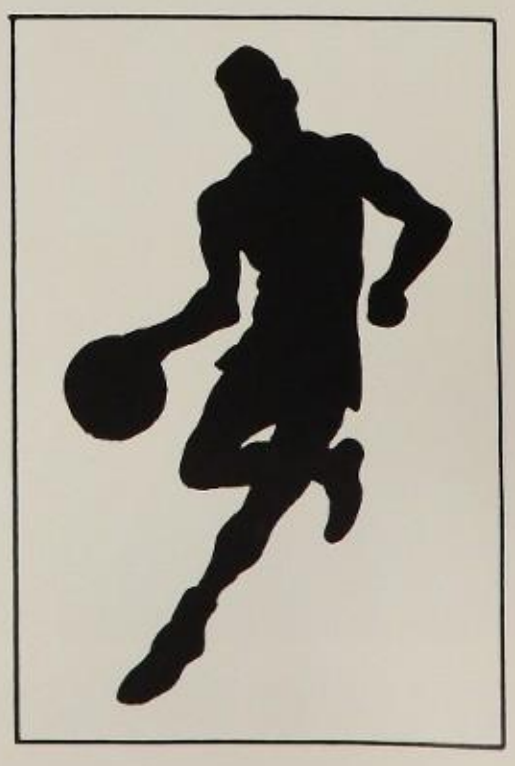
While the players on the field work to gain a touchdown for South, the players on the bench mentally throw crushing blocks, gain valuable yardage, and kick that extra-point conversion.

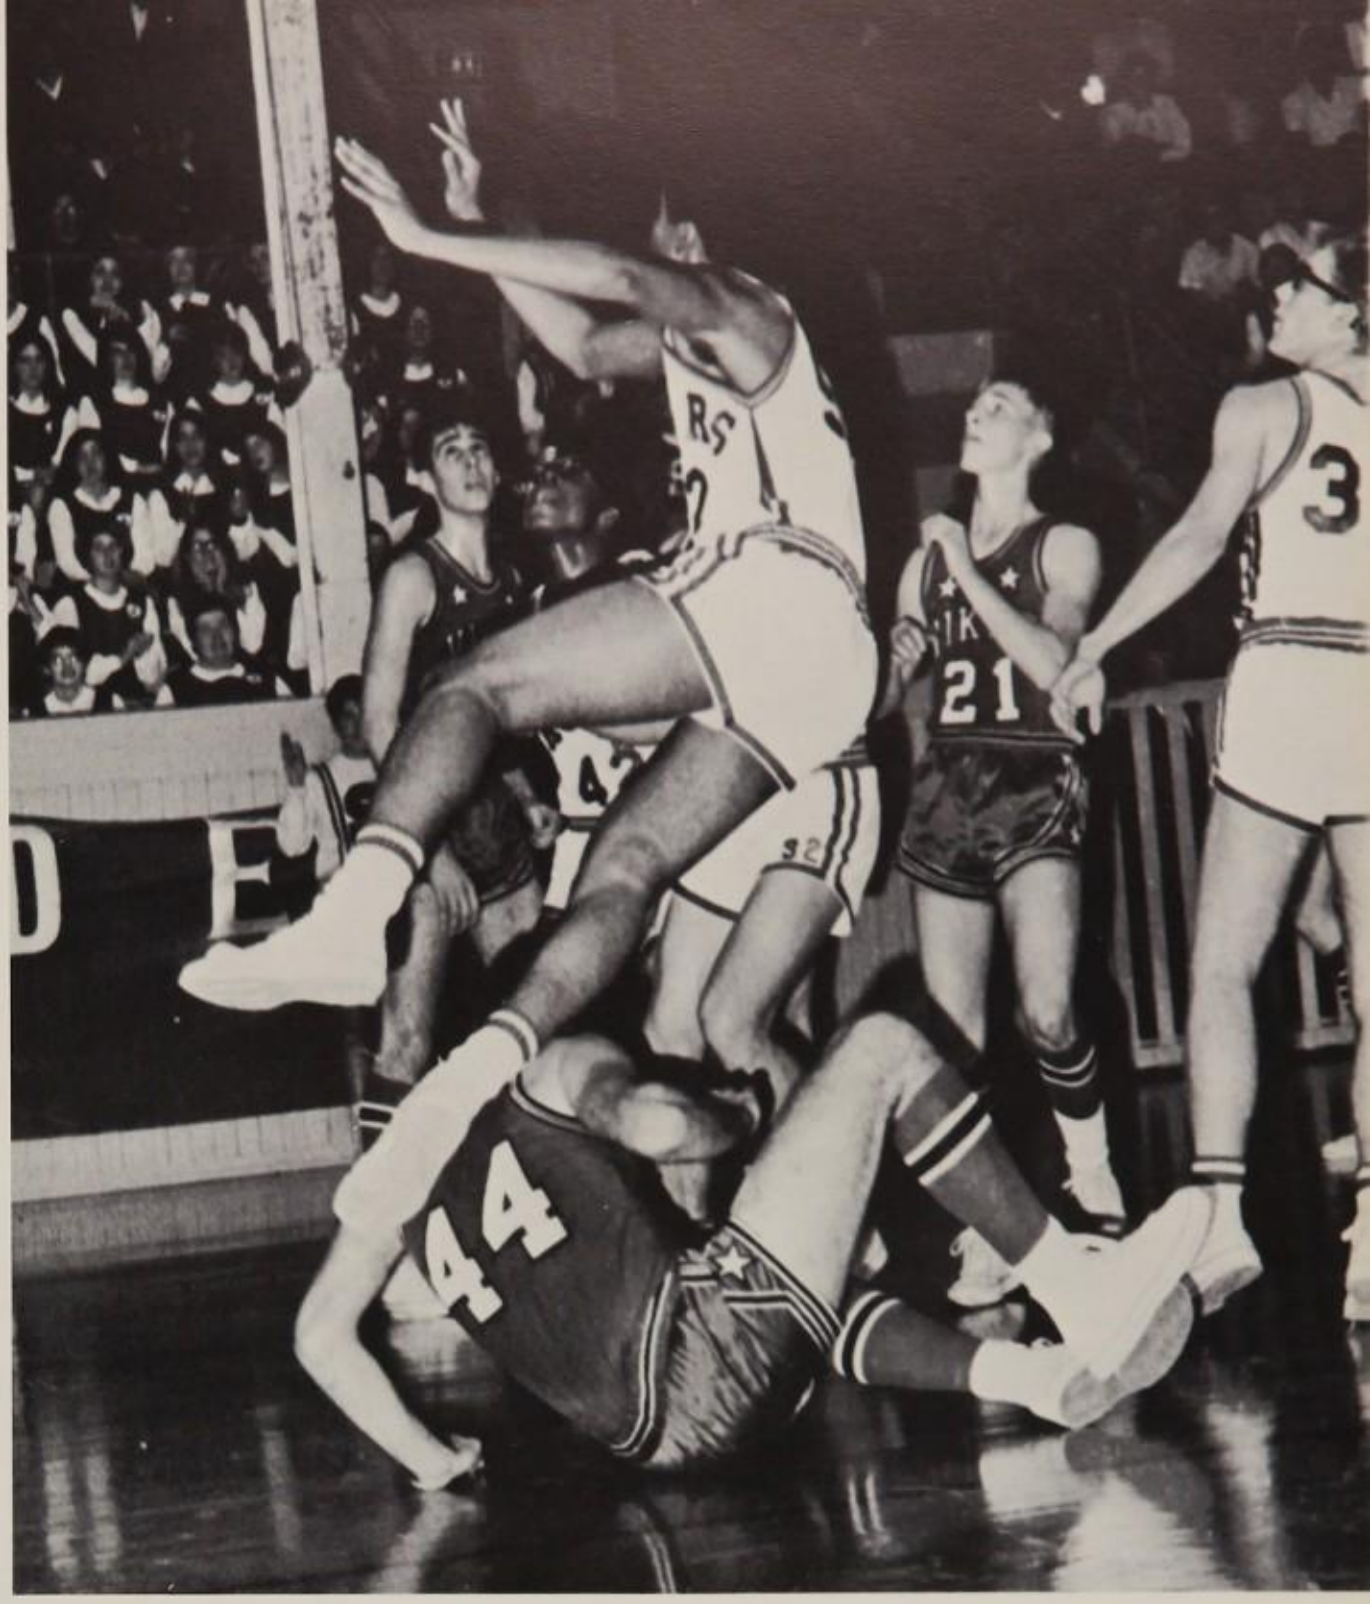


Mission: Competition

Archer athletic teams and coaches undertook the mission of building strong unified teams which would uphold the high standards of Kelly sportsmanship. Success came to these teams in many forms—making a touchdown, shooting a lay-up, breaking par, or crossing the finish line first. Regardless of the outcome of the team's efforts, sportsmanlike conduct was ever present and first in importance.

To complete his mission successfully, the athlete combined his physical and mental powers. During a contest he worked his body to its maximum potential while he mentally plotted his movements. Leadership and inspiration were continually offered to the Archer athlete from his coach. Working together as a team unified in spirit proved to be the key to Kelly success.





Crippled Kellys Achieve 6-3 Record;

Injured and dejected, Seniors Rex Melchi and Bob Laster watch as their teammates are overpowered by the Bishop Luers Knights.

Plagued by the loss of five offensive players early in the season, the Archers tied for fourth place in the city series standings. Predicted at the beginning of the season to be a major contender for the city title, the Green got off to their worst start in five years by losing their first two games, and never threatened for the city title. The Archer squad then stormed back to win the next six games before dropping the season's finale to Central Catholic for the third year in a row.

Coached by Robert Gernand and his staff, the Archers used the diversified single-wing offense. The defense held the opposition to a total of 75 points for an average of 8.3 points per game. The Kellys won the preseason jamboree game against North Side, 6-0.

The Green were led by Senior fullback Bill Watson, who scored five touchdowns during the season to win scoring honors at South Side. Junior Randy Rhoades was runner-up for scoring honors with three touchdowns credited to him. Senior and junior halfbacks, Bobby Lucas and Andy Gunkler, each tallied two touchdowns. Senior Bill Moore and juniors Willie Simmons and Rob Ashe each got one touchdown. Senior Al Williams kicked five extra-point conversions and scored one touchdown. It was Williams' extra points that won the Elmhurst and Columbia City games for South.

Four Archers were selected to the All-City team. Bill Watson made first string defensive cornerback, and second string fullback. Senior guard Randy Wamsley made the first team offensive squad. Named to the second team were senior offensive tackle Tom Snider and junior defensive linebacker John Fisher. Watson was one of four players in the city to go both ways.

In a grueling game against New Haven, halfback Randy Rhoades picks up extra yardage as teammates Tom Snider (79), Doug Stebing (20), and Bill Watson (35) open up a hole with key blocks. Rhoades went on to score the only two touchdowns of the game.

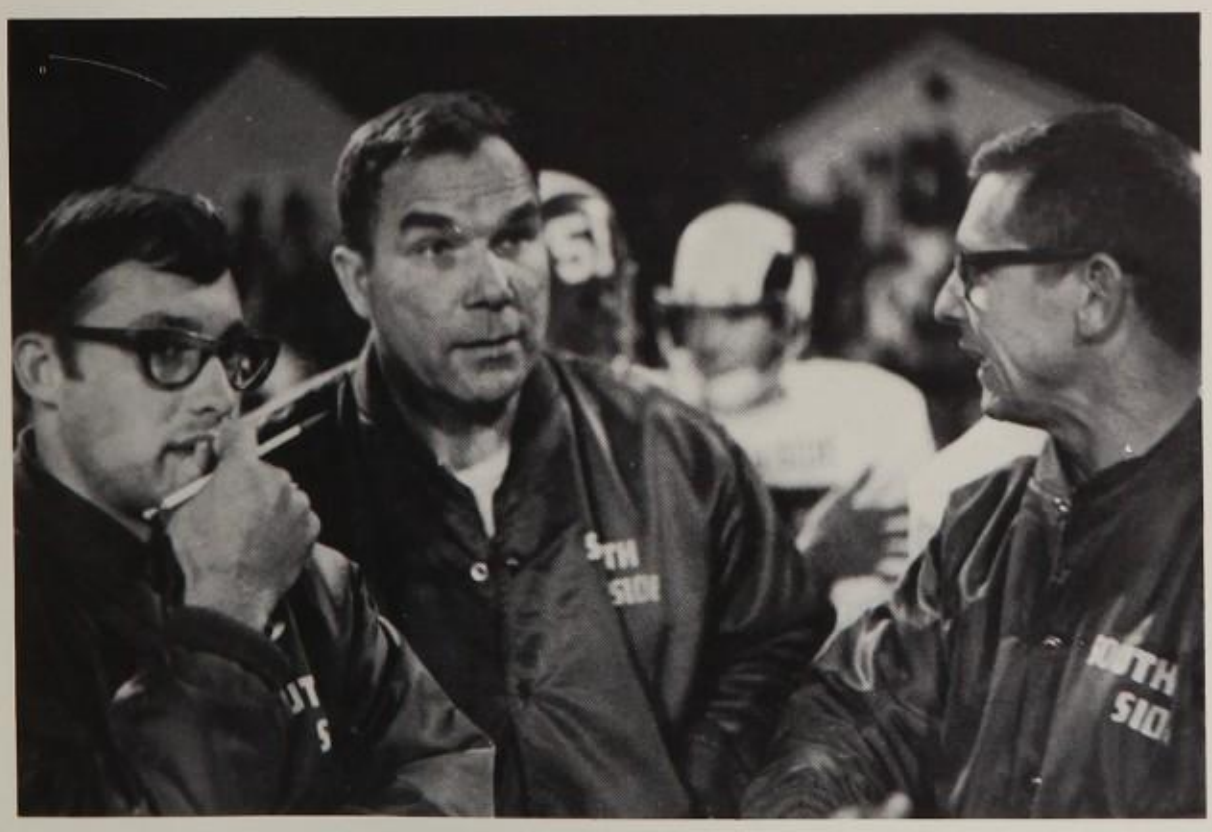
Four Kellys Make All-City;

A Central player heads toward the sidelines as he tries desperately to outrace senior halfback Al Williams (18) and senior blocking back Ron Prange (22). Also moving in on the play are junior tackle John Hayes (72) and all-city second string guard, junior John Fisher (68).



Head coach Robert Gernand is flanked by assistant coaches Tom Lindenberg and Walter Bartkiewicz as they watch the Archer squad overpower a strong Elmhurst team in a close game.

Senior Bill Watson (45) throws a block as Junior Andy Gunkler advances for a first down.

Victory Margin Provided By Defense;

Columbia City	7	6	5-2
Huntington	20	14	6-2
Central Catholic	6	16	6-3

The Archer secondary, which gave up an average of only 8.3 points per game, lines up in its first outing of the season.

Doug Stebing (20) calls the singles as the Archer defense lines up in the pattern, the single-wing offense, which has become familiar to Archer followers over the past several seasons. This formation has been one of the key reasons for the success in the past years.

Fighting Reserves Attain 4-5 Record

The South Side reserve football team rolled to a 4-5 record under Coach Glen Stebing. The team started off slowly, losing its first two games before coming back to win the next four. Injuries and ineligibility hit the squad near the end of the season, and the Archers dropped their last three contests.

A good passing attack and hard running moved the traditional single-wing offense. Scott Miller's throwing and the running of Mike Jordan and Tony Rogers accounted for most of the scoring. The Kellys' greatest victory came when they overpowered Concordia, 43-13.

The reserves opened the season losing to Bishop Dwenger, 13-0. In the second game Central Catholic controlled the ball and won the game, 19-13.

The Archer squad won its first game when the secondary unit held New Haven scoreless, and the offense scored 13 points for the Archers. The team then walked over Concordia, North Side, and Bishop Luers, to extend its winning streak to four games. However, the season ended on a disappointing note with consecutive losses to Snider, Central, and Elmhurst, all by close scores.

These sophomore boys and Coach Glen Stebing comprised the 1968 reserve football team which had a very respectable season.

An Archer reserve player strives for that valuable extra yard which often makes the difference between winning and losing.

An exalted Archer raises his arms to signal a touchdown upon seeing a teammate scramble over the goal line for six points.

Net Squad Has Successful Season;

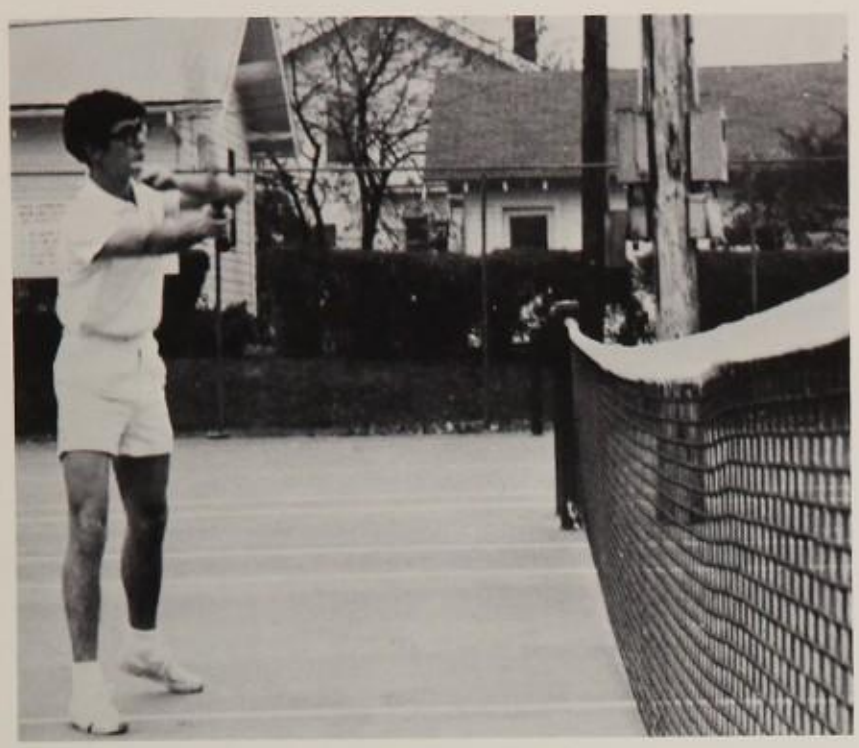
Second-year man, junior Dave Kaplan, twists as he successfully returns a difficult forehand shot in action against North Side.

With a blazing shot, senior Mike Mellinger returns the ball as his doubles team partner prepares for the return volley.

Number two man, Jeff Alexander, demonstrates his backhand proficiency.

With the greatest of ease, Alexander returns a difficult overhead smash against his Central Catholic opponent. Alexander went on to win his match as the Archers won 7-0.

Juniors Prove Strongmen Of Team



In a match at Lafayette Park, Junior Galen Yordy easily taps the ball back over the net and goes on to defeat his opponent.

For the first time in the school's history, South Side played its tennis season in the fall. Coach Everett Havens piloted the netters to a 5-3 record for third place in the city race. The tennis team had little experience at varsity play prior to the season, as Dave Kaplan was the only netter to have played varsity previously. The Archers began the season with 7-0 victories over both Central and Central Catholic. In a close game the netters edged Bishop Luers, 4-3, before bowing to Concordia. South Side beat Elmhurst, 6-1, in the next game, while losing to North Side in the final game.

The Archers placed second in the sectional tournament with a total of 22 points, only two behind champion Manchester. Dave Kaplan finished second in the individual competition, while Jeff Alexander lost in a semifinal match. Both South Side doubles teams bowed in the second round.

Since five of the six varsity tennis players were underclassmen, the Archers can look forward to an experienced and well-balanced team next year. The only senior on the squad this season was Mike Mellinger. Juniors who played varsity and lettered include Dave Kaplan, Jeff Alexander, Galen Yordy, John Sauer, and Roger Williams.

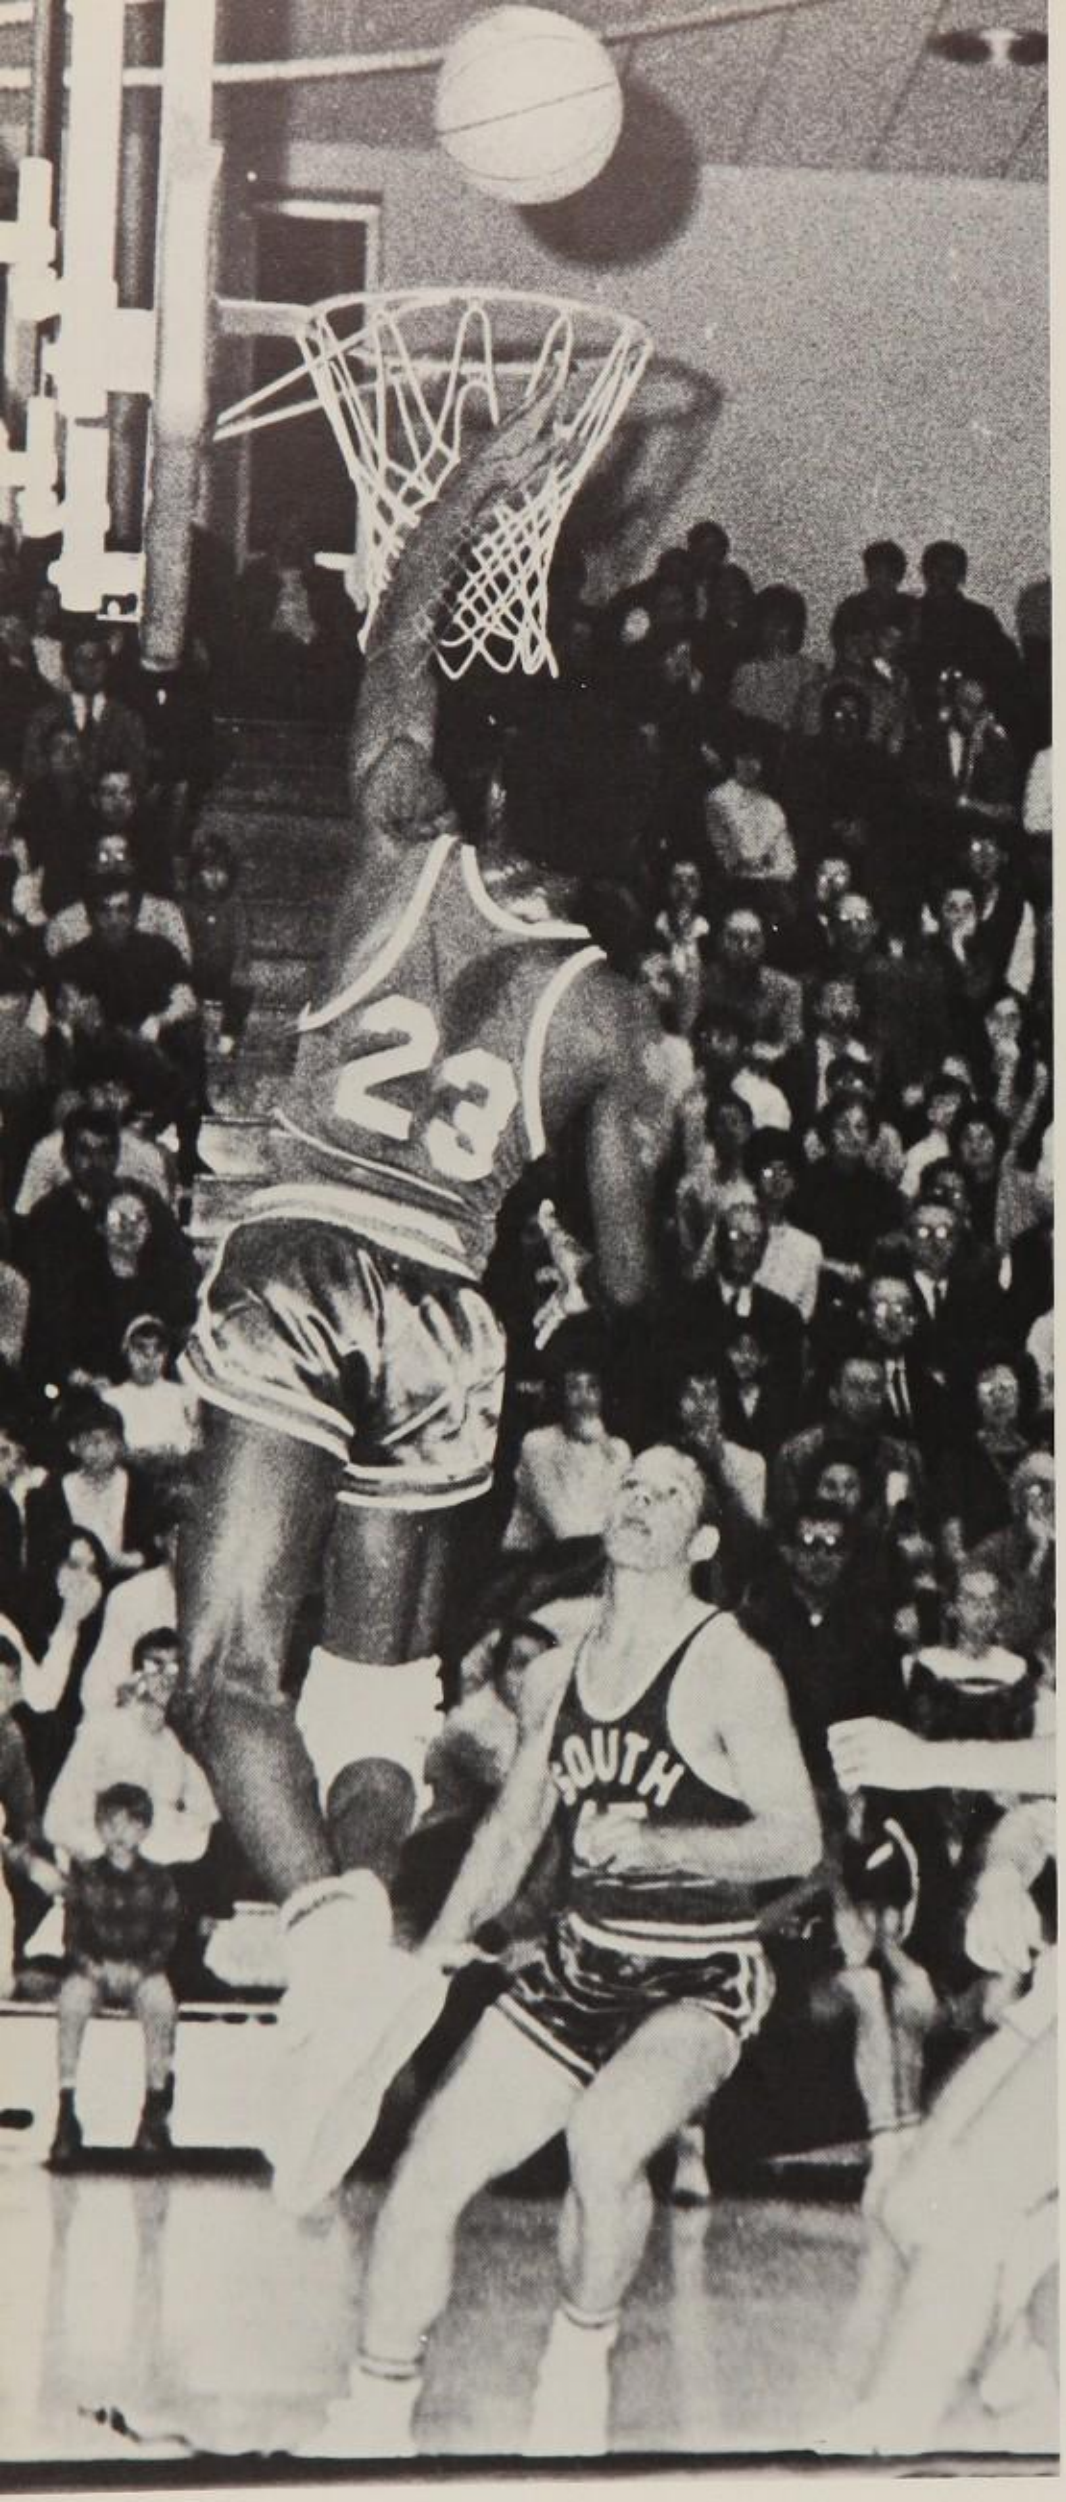
Kellys Conclude



Six-foot-one-inch Clarence Starks seems far above fellow Bowbender Andy Gunkler as he gets off a shot good for two points.

With teammate Pete Struhbar and two Snider players in close pursuit, sophomore guard Jody Brooks drives in for a lay-up.

Larry Turner seems to be playing hot potato as he reaches for the ball in between two Huntington players. South lost by seven.

Hardwood Season With 3-18 Record

The varsity basketball team, under the coaching of Mr. Charles Holt, compiled a record of three wins and eighteen losses over the hardwood campaign.

Tim Rietdorf was one of the few bright spots on the squad. The only senior on the team, he led the Kellys in scoring in 17 out of 20 games. He finished fourth in the city scoring with a 17.65 average and earned a berth on the All-City team. His highest output came against Goshen when he scored 31 points.

South Side held a final city record of 1-7, finishing last in the City Series standings. The Archers were 2-10 against out-of-town squads. Although it was one of the poorer seasons, the Archers had, Rietdorf was the only player who had any previous varsity experience.

The Green opened with a narrow victory over Norwell, then dropped 11 straight before defeating Mishawaka. (Two of the 11 losses came during the Holiday Tourney. In the first game of the tourney, South Side was dumped by Central Catholic, 69-40. The consolation match saw Concordia downing the Archers, 51-44.) Three games later the squad dumped Concordia in a squeaker for its only city win. Four straight losses concluded the schedule.

South Side drew Snider in the first game of Sectional One and fell by a 53-42 margin.

The 1968-69 campaign was generally regarded as a re-building year, and Coaches Holt, Brown, and Crawford saw a lot of developing talent, especially in the sophomore class, that promised better seasons to come.

Having moved up from the reserve squad in the middle of the season, sophomore Les Hullinger shoots for two against Central.

Nine Underclassmen On Varsity Unit;

Being surrounded by Central Catholic players doesn't seem to bother Clarence Starks, while another Archer, Jim Spence, waits to assist.

"I've got it!" junior Jim Motter seems to be thinking as he hauls down a rebound, surrounded by fellow Archers.

It's anybody's ball as Kelly Jim Spence waits for the ball to come down, while teammate Andy Gunkler jumps for possession.

Rietdorf Sets Archers' Scoring Pace

Jim Spence and Max Graf stretch as they successfully block a North Sider's shot, but North went on to win the game 65-43.

South Side players watch from the bench as Coach Charles "Porky" Holt points to an Archer on the court in a game against the Central Tigers. The Archers dropped the game 65-46, which gave the Tigers 52 wins to South Side's 48 in their annual contests.

Archers Tim Rietdorf, Jim Spence, and Panther Jim Stanczak, all seem surprised as the ball rolls away from them during Sectionals.

Having suffered a muscle cramp during the Sectional game, guard Andy Gunkler has his arm given a massage by Coach Pres Brown.

Reserve Unit Shows Great Promise

The reserve team, under coach Mr. Gary Crawford, ended the 68-69 season with a record of 11-9, a duplication of the winning record of the 67-68 reserve team. Les Hullinger and Terry Welch moved up at midseason to help out the Archer varsity squad.

The reserves operated under the same schedule as the varsity unit, playing their games just prior to the varsity contests. The reserves began the season with a frustrating loss to Norwell, but fired back with a romp over a favored Southport team. Following a defeat from Huntington, the Kellys won four consecutive games, overthrowing Central Catholic, Anderson, New Haven, and DeKalb.

The Bowbenders walked away from the Holiday Tourney with an overtime loss to Central Catholic, 42-35, and a triumph over Concordia, 47-38.

Defeating Bishop Dwenger brought the reserves' record to 7-3. The Green dropped games to Elmhurst and Madison Heights before eliminating Mishawaka.

Again the Archers lost two straight, the first to North Side and the second to Goshen, prior to two successive wins over Concordia and Snider, respectively.

Sighting the final games of the season, the reserves were overcome by a tough Central squad before retiring Bishop Luers. Being confronted with a powerhouse in the season final, the Kellys were unable to overtake a tough Warsaw team. The season expressed great profit in that there was significant molding of an individualistic coach and individual players into one unified Archer basketball team.

Led by Coach Ray Hyde, South Side's wrestlers fought to a season record of seven wins and four losses. The varsity grapplers were Phil Erli, Steve Claypool, Dave King, Terry Lawrence, Doug Stebing, Mike Roberts, Larry Taylor, Don Piatt, Felix Grant, Tom Karol, Matt Bartkiewicz, and Bobby Ray Laster. During the regular season, Tom Stewart, Joe Williams, Steve Goodman, and Phil English also wrestled varsity.

In the Concordia Tourney the Archers placed fourth. South had two winners in the tourney as Stewart and Taylor won their respective weight divisions. Roberts was second in the 165-pound weight class. The Archer grapplers finished seventh in Sectional play. Roberts, last year's 165-pound Sectional champion, repeated this year as Sectional winner and went on to become runner-up in Regionals. Laster was the Sectional runner-up in the heavyweight division, while Taylor captured fourth place in his weight division.

The Kellys started the season with wins over Madison Heights and North Side before bowing to Elmhurst, 34-20. It was the first time since the two schools started competing that Elmhurst has been able to defeat South Side. The grapplers easily disposed of East Noble, before overcoming a tough and previously undefeated Lakeland squad. South traveled to Bellmont coming out victorious, before suffering two consecutive defeats at the hands of Central and Snider. The Archers ended the season with wins over DeKalb and Concordia, while losing to New Haven.

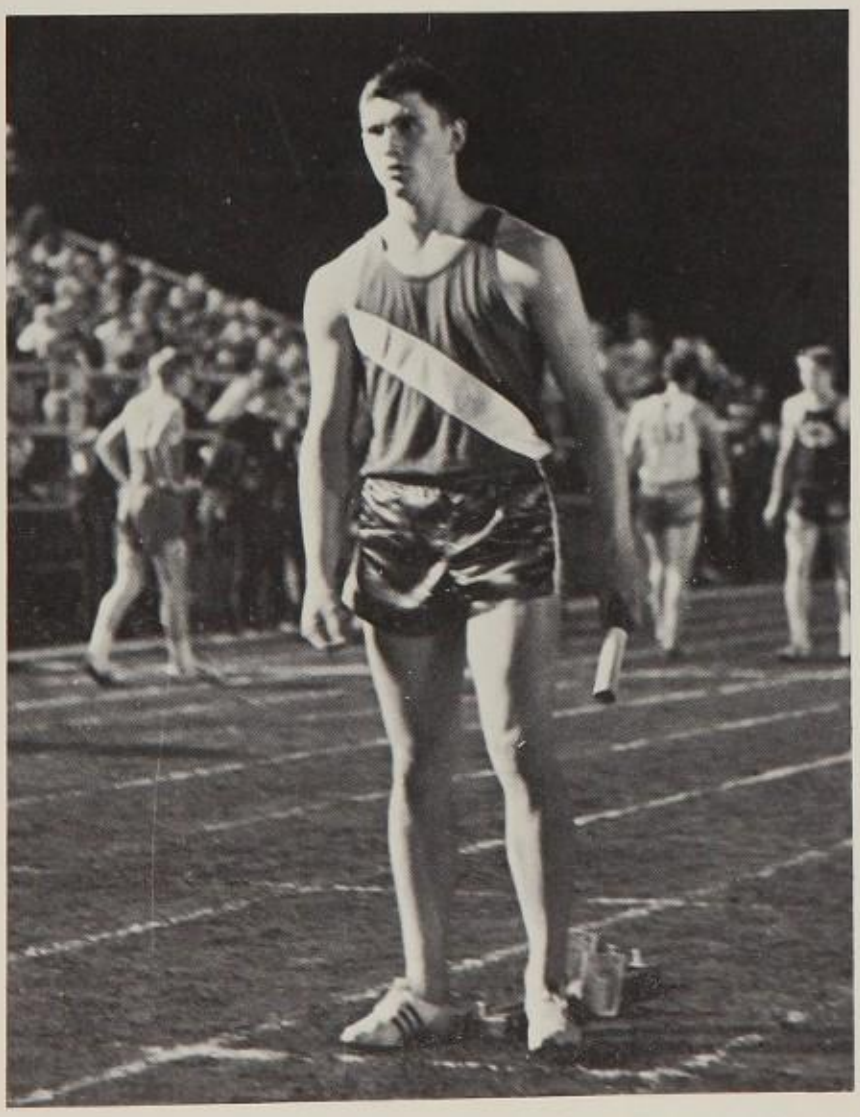
Archers Capture State Track Title;

The victorious South Side Archers, 1968 State Track Champions. First row: Teague and Stuerzenberger. Second row: Dekker, Borgmann, Lougheed, Watson, Lumpp, Rhoades, Duff, and Wamsley.

Scott Lougheed goes over the bar at 13 feet, 8¼ inches during Sectional competition to capture first place and set a new meet record. Lougheed went on to become runner-up in the State meet.



Randy Rhoades, the lead-off man on the Archers' 440-yd. relay team, starts to "psyche up" just before the start of the race.

The 1968 track season was the most successful cinder campaign in South Side's history of the sport. The Archers topped their 9-5 season record by winning The State Track and Field Meet with 20 points. The Kellys also won both the Sectional Meet and the North Side Relays, while placing fourth in the Regional.

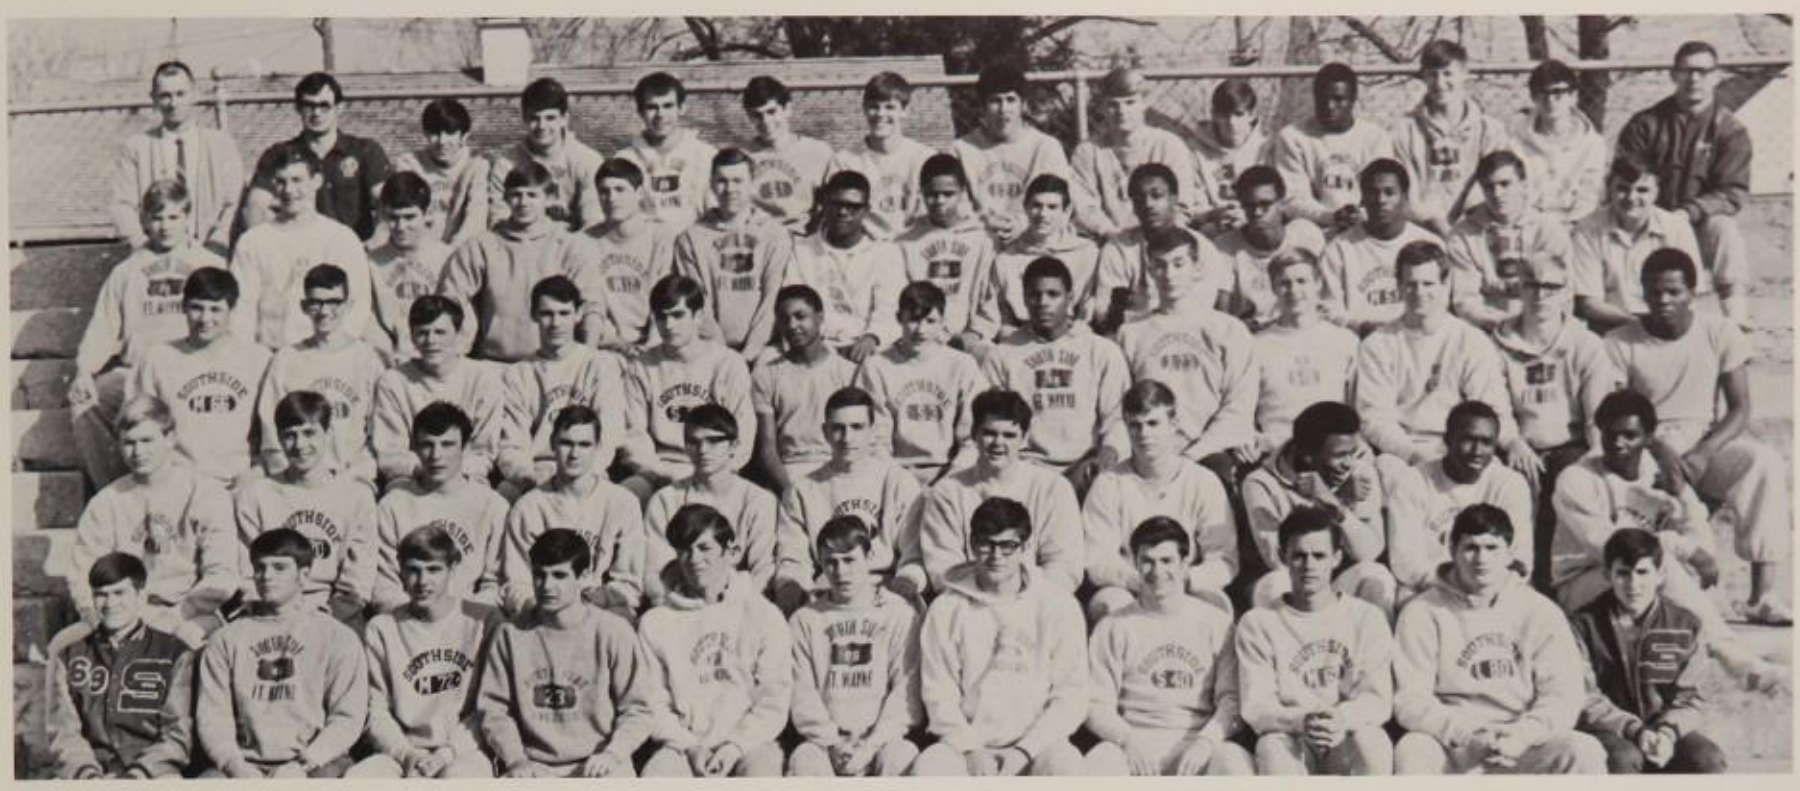
Five Archers participated in the State Meet. John Lumpp won the 440-yd. dash in a time of 48.2 seconds, while Bill Watson placed fourth in the one-lap event. Scott Lougheed earned a second place in the pole vault by vaulting 14 feet, 2½ inches. The mile relay team of Randy Rhoades, Paul Dekker, Watson, and Lumpp, completed the scoring by finishing second behind Elkhart.

The Kellys placed fourth in the Regional with 16 tallies. By running the 440 in 49.2 seconds, Lumpp set a record, with Watson taking third. Both Lougheed, who vaulted 13-6, and the mile relay team earned second-place honors.

Coaches Preston Brown, Tom Lindenberg, and Walter Bartkiewicz led South Side to the team championship in the Sectional Meet with 28 points. The Archers broke three records in the Sectional: Lumpp ran the 440 in 48.7; Lougheed pole vaulted 13 feet, 8¼ inches; and the mile relay team was clocked in 3:23.9.

This year's track team is expected to have another successful season under new head coach William Walker, assisted by Mr. Bartkiewicz and Mr. Lindenberg. The team has a full schedule of meets and is predicted to be strong in sprints, middle distances, and pole vault.

Track Team Prospects Look Good



These Archers will fill the positions of the track and field events men for the upcoming 1969 season. Front row: Mgr. Meyer, Klopfenstein, Sauer, D. Borgmann, T. Warfel, Magnusson, Wamsley, Green, Duff, Rhoades, and Mgr. Teague. Second row: Wherry, Horstman, Ehresman, Dibble, Bellott, Struhbar, Hayes, Koehlinger, H. Smith, Baker, and Patterson. Third row: Stoops, Fortney, Bennett, Carlson, Thomas, Stewart, S. Claypool, Hogan, Bartkiewicz, Lanier, Hallam, Knox, and Dunbar. Fourth row: R. Claypool, Gallmeyer, Goodman, Coburn, Buchanan, Wynn, Bynum, Bailey, Piatt, C. Smith, Russell, Rogers, Hopkins, and Mgr. Krill. Fifth row: Coach Walker, Coach Lindenberg, Weber, T. Borgmann, Snouffer, R. Warfel, Ladd, Jacobs, Ealing, Deeds, Stallings, Emenhiser, Yordy, and Coach Bartkiewicz.

Four Veterans Return To Golf Team;

South Side's golf squad should be one of the powerhouses in the city this year after having completed last year with a record of 15 wins and three losses, one of the most successful campaigns in the linksmen's history. The Archer team lost only one member from last year's team and had four returning lettermen, Merrill Phillips, Tom Motter, Phil Erli, and Ken Cornacchione.

In the City Tourney, the Kellys placed second, nine strokes behind Elmhurst, but Phillips was the medalist for the tourney with a 73. The Sectional Tourney saw South Side in third place which enabled them to qualify for the Regional Tourney. In the Regionals, the Kellys were tied with Logansport for third place at the end of the regulation eighteen holes. On the second hole of sudden death playoff, Logansport scored one less stroke than South and, thus, was declared third-place winner and qualified to go to state.

The Kelly linksmen started the season with a double victory over Central Catholic and Central, but then dropped two to North Side and Snider. The Archers bounced back to win 12 straight defeating North Side twice, Concordia three times, Garrett twice, New Haven, Bishop Luers, Central, Snider, DeKalb, and Central Catholic once each.

Merrill Phillips was selected for the 1968 All-City golf team. He was also medalist on the Kelly team with a 39 average for nine holes. Tom Motter was second with an average of 40. The South Side golf team is coached by Mr. Robert Drummond.

The sand trap proves but a minor obstacle to Phil Erli, as he skillfully blasts out of the trap at the Foster Golf course.

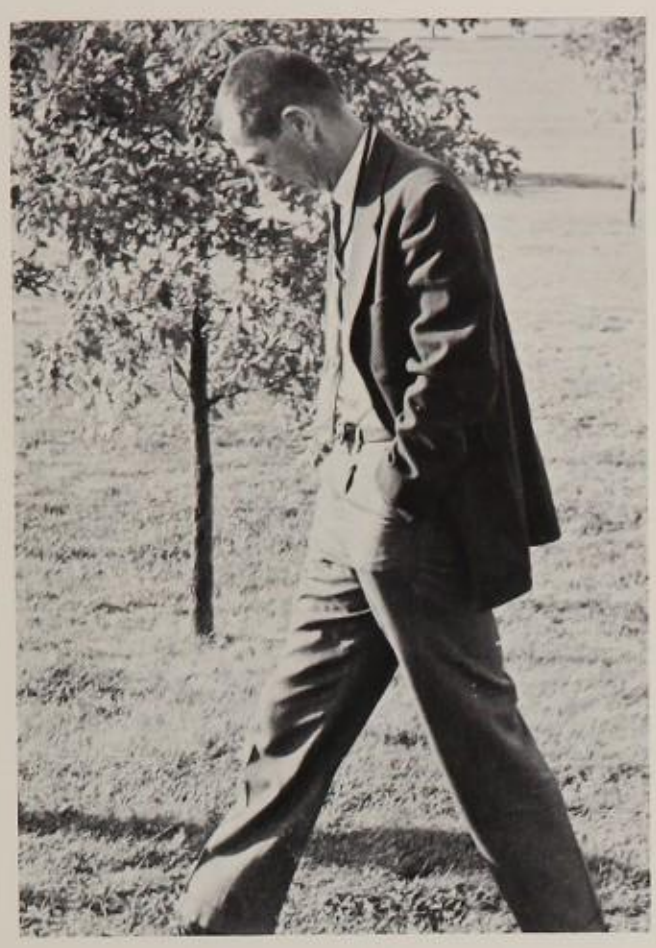
Walker Leads Harriers To Success



Downcast, Coach William Walker walks off the course after the South Side harriers dropped a tough one to New Haven. In his first season as coach at South he led the runners to a 13-4 season.

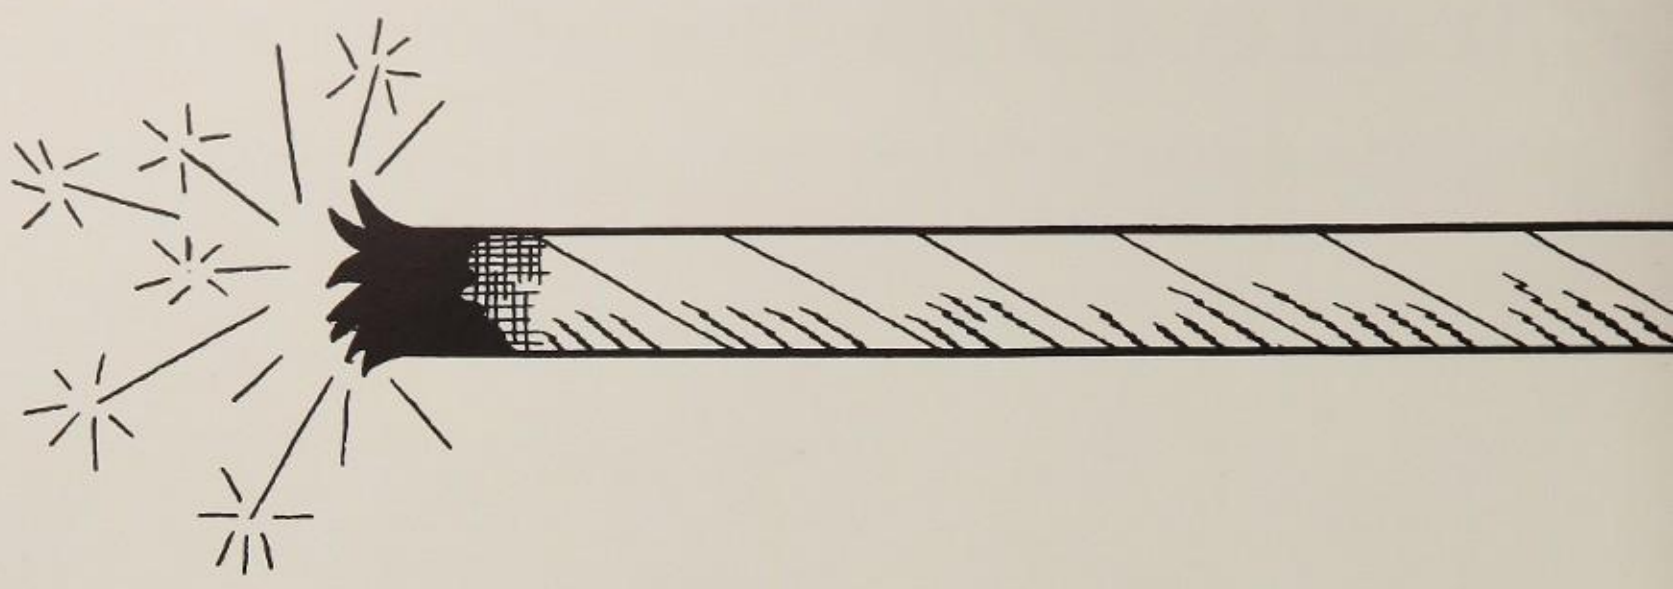
The 1968 cross country team. First row: Mellott, Ehresman, Dibble, Adams, and Mgr. Meyer. Second row: Coach Walker, T. Warfel, Horstman, Strubhar, Rehrer, and Neuenschwander. Third row: Anderson, Weber, R. Warfel, Deeds, Harsch, and Magnusson. Fourth row: Quick, Rudolph, Tunnell, Morrison, Bennett, and Fortney.

Mr. William Walker guided the South Side cross country team to a 6-2 city record for third place an impressive 13-4 overall mark in his first year as head coach. In addition, the Archer harriers finished fourth in the Sectional meet at Shoaff Park and fifth in the Shortridge Invitational at Indianapolis.

The Kelly runners won their first six meets by defeating Concordia, Norwell, Southern Wells, Bishop Dwenger, Kokomo, and DeKalb. After losing to Kokomo for the past three years, South's most satisfying win came against the Wildcats by a 26-31 score. South Side suffered its first losses in a five-team contest by losing to North Side, Snider, and New Haven while beating only Central Catholic. The Archers avenged the Snider loss by a 27-28 tally in the following meet and also whipped Elmhurst and Bishop Luers. In the final city meet, the Kellys downed Bishop Dwenger, Concordia, and Central while losing only to Snider.

Although South Side place fourth in the Sectionals out of 17 teams, the harrier squad was the best the Archers have produced in the past several years. Junior John Horstman led the Archers with a ninth-place finish in the Sectionals. The Archers led all Fort Wayne Schools in the Shortridge Invitational by placing fifth out of 30 teams from Indiana and Kentucky. Horstman also placed the Green in the Invitational with a fifteenth place out of 210 runners. Horstman ran number one for the Kelly harriers all season. In running a 9:47 for the two-mile race, he won four races and finished second twice.

In the midst of two Snider harriers, Pete Strubhar attempts to overtake his opponent as he strides toward the finish line.



Mission: Activities

Each second passed is gone forever, never to be recaptured except in memories. South Siders will remember few wasted moments. Class time was precious to teachers; and after school, students actively participated in organizations. Why? It would seem logical that, after a hard day's work, a student would be anxious to leave school and relax. What did extracurricular activities offer?

Organizations presented the individual with many opportunities to discover more about himself. Clubs uncovered new interests, opened hitherto unknown fields of thought. Clubs enabled each person to express himself and his own individuality. But most important, the clubs of South Side enriched the lives of the students with experience no classroom could provide.

Home, School, Community Gain Aid

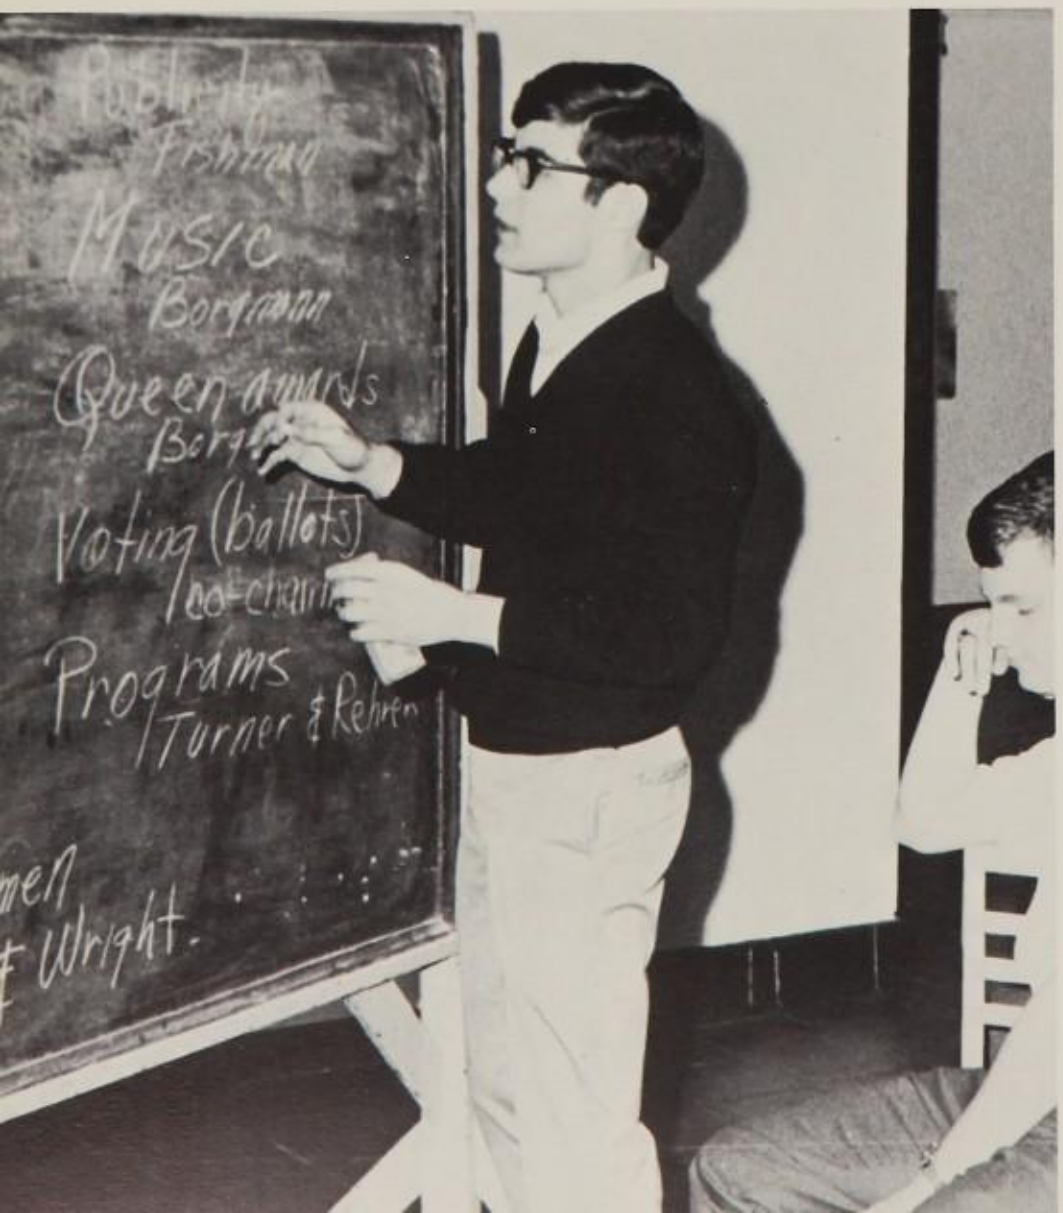
Dan Borgmann, president of Hi-Y, lists committee heads for the annual Hi-Y-sponsored Queen of Hearts Dance.



Having made notes on several items of business, Mr. Robert Weber takes the floor to offer his advice before any decisions are made.

From Hi-Y Club's Service Projects

"Brother members, what is the platform of Hi-Y?" questioned President Dan Borgmann. "The platform of Hi-Y is clean speech, clean scholarship, clean sportsmanship, clean living." Thus each weekly meeting of the South Side Hi-Y Club began. Seeking to practice what their platform and purpose preach, the junior and senior boys of Hi-Y are well-known for the services they perform with the aid of Sponsor Mr. Robert Weber.

Work commenced in the fall on a new directory, perhaps the club's most familiar project. Then for the first out-of-town football game, Hi-Y members organized a bus trip for backers of the team. Nor did Hi-Y ignore the many opportunities for service offered during the Christmas season. The boys voted unanimously to adopt a family through the Christmas Bureau, and provided food, much-needed clothing, and toys for the younger members of the family.

But, of course, all work and no play is not a suitable diet for anyone. There was little talk of business at the spring and fall picnics or during the basketball competition with other Fort Wayne Hi-Y clubs. Other social events of the year were the annual Queen of Hearts dance and the Best Girl Banquet, at which members, accompanied by their dates, chose a teacher as best girl for the entire club.

Hi-Y officers discovered something more effective than the gavel in keeping order. Disruptive members felt more than the sting of words!

Archers enthusiastically backed the team at out-of-town games, traveling on buses chartered by Hi-Y as a service to the school. Returning home triumphantly after a winning game, these cheering spectators may have made the difference between victory and defeat for South's team.

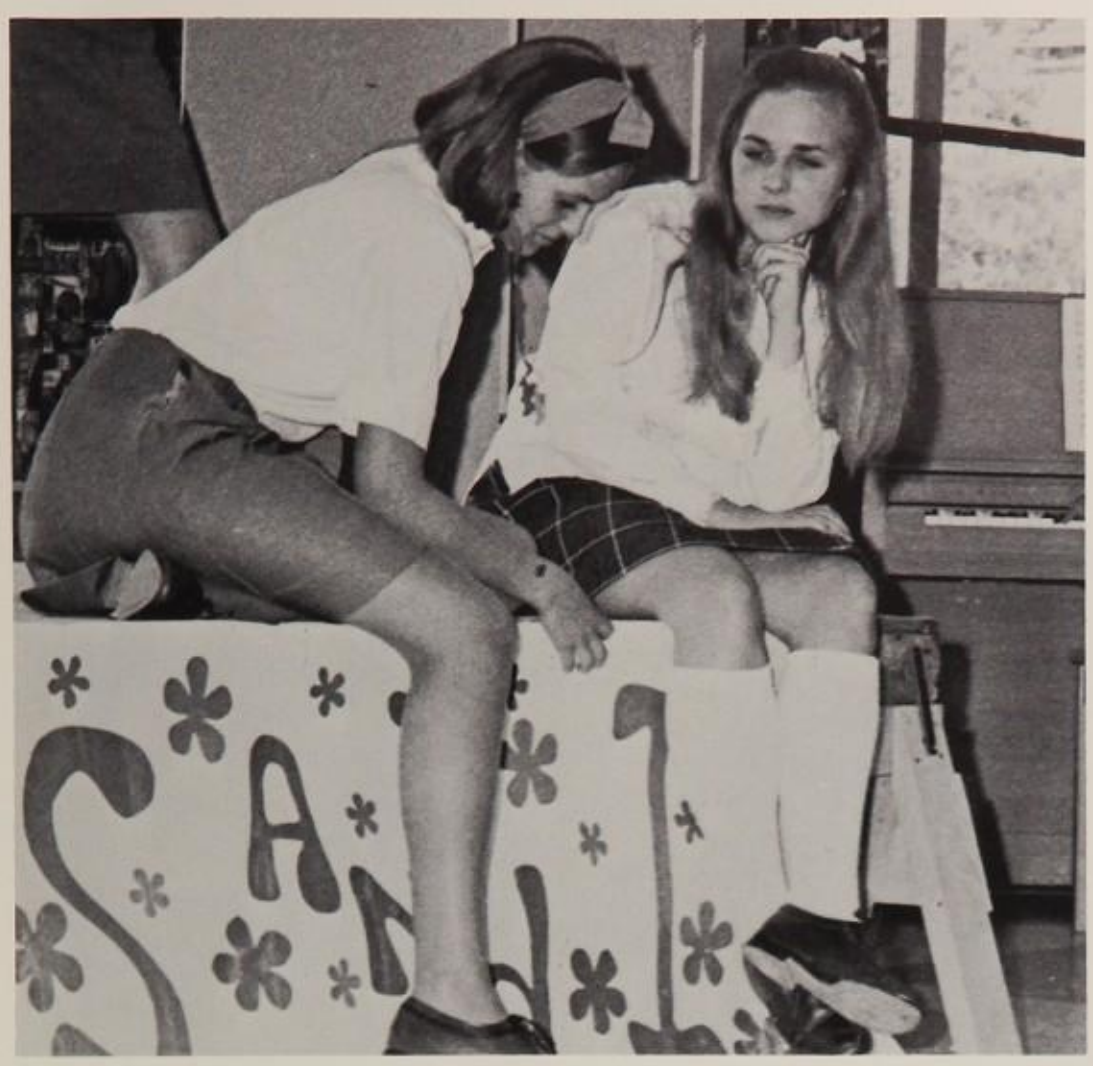
Exploring Customs Of Other Lands,

Philo president Charlene Post thoughtfully checks over her notes before launching into the business of planning the upcoming Irish Banquet, an annual Philo event.

The Philaethian Literary Society, known to all simply as Philo, finished its fourty-seventh year at South Side, led this year by officers Charlene Post, president; Diana Bailey, vice-president; Sharon Roth, secretary; Sally Aldridge, treasurer; Becky Smeltzer, sergeant-at-arms; and Sue Pendergast, program chairman. Following the theme of customs in other lands, the senior and second semester junior girls of Philo broadened their knowledge of other peoples in the world.

Members presented the programs themselves, programs which ranged from a Japanese fairy tale to sampling representative foods of France, Spain, Sweden, and Macedonia. Club points were awarded to all who participated.

Philo gave Archers "An Old Fashioned Christmas", too, in the guise of an after game dance. Those who attended the dance dined on homemade Christmas cookies and took home the decorations which graced the trees. In keeping with the tradition of the club, Philoites gave their Mother-Daughter recognition tea and the annual Irish banquet. Mrs. Evlyn Spray provided the excellent advice which made Philo one of the most active clubs at South Side.



Philo officers Charlene Post and Sue Pendergast enact the roles of "green sophomores" in a satirical skit at the Philo orientation.

Lettermen Maintain High Standards

Rex Melchi and Tom Motter ready the ballot box for the King Kelly dance and cut out silhouettes with Mr. George Davis.

After a boy earns his letter in a sport, what comes next? He joins the Lettermen's Club, naturally. Composed of over 70 sophomore, junior, and senior boys who have lettered in one or more sports, the Lettermen's Club proposes to create and maintain at all times a high standard of character, sportsmanship, and good conduct.

Having elected Bob Laster, Rex Melchi, Randy Wamsley, and Mike Roberts to the respective offices of president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and sergeant-at-arms, the lettermen started off their year with a fall potluck.

Then the club led the rest of the school in the annual can drive, conducted in cooperation with the Fort Wayne Christmas Bureau. Operated as a contest between classes and homerooms at South Side, the can drive is the lettermen's way of serving their community. Mr. George Davis, who sponsors the Lettermen's Club, had the winning homeroom this year, Homeroom 4.

February 1 marked the day of the King Kelly Dance, a joint effort of the lettermen and cheerleaders. Girls had an opportunity to vote for King Kelly, just as boys had earlier crowned a Homecoming Queen. The final event of the year was the banquet, attended by teachers with lettermen as their guests.

Wading through a pile of canned goods, Archer seniors help the lettermen to sort canned goods and tally the total number of points earned by each homeroom. Sponsored annually by the Letterman's Club, this food drive distributes food to the needy families in the Fort Wayne area.

Meterite Chooses Fine Arts Theme

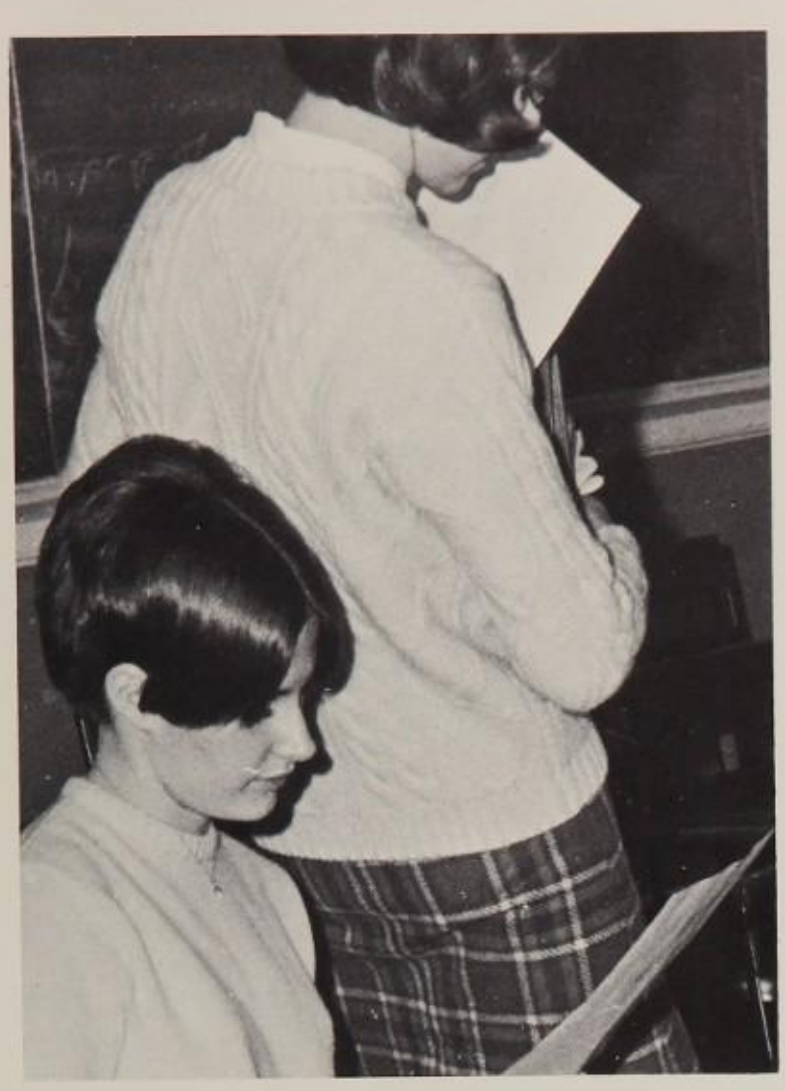
With an unprecedented high attendance record, sophomore and junior girls began a new year of literary interests. Sponsored by Mrs. Marjorye Baylor and Miss Natalie Haglund, South Side's Meterite Club concentrated on a theme of Fine Arts. During summer board meetings, the Fine Arts theme was chosen because of its prominent position in contributing to Fort Wayne culture.

Heading the club's activities were junior officers Mary Beth Rhoads, president; Terry Patrick, vice-president; Cindy Hess, secretary; and Nancy Schmidt, treasurer. The first program of the year was a series of short skits presented by the sophomore members. The annual fall picnic followed, with great fun and festivities.

Meterite sponsored an after-game dance which kept members busy for weeks in eager preparation. Members and their mothers were also invited to the traditional Mother-Daughter Recognition Tea. Honored guests included Mrs. Mary Smith and last year's Meterite president, Charlene Post.

Junior girls joined Philo the second semester, and the sophomore officers were Jennifer James, president; Joyce Bussard, vice-president; Sue Horstmeyer, secretary; and Linda Barney, treasurer.

After being awarded the high-point trophy, Mary Beth Rhoads expresses her gratitude at Meterite's Mother-daughter Tea.



As treasurer of Meterite Club, Sophomore Linda Barney studies her report to be presented at the next meeting.

Junior Diana Dudley and Mrs. Majorye Baylor, advisors of Meterite Club look over the club's records for some new ideas for programs.

To Widen Club's Literary Interests

Taking advantage of some spare moments, sophomores Georgia Wralstad and Terry Smith together rehearse their parts for a Meterite skit.

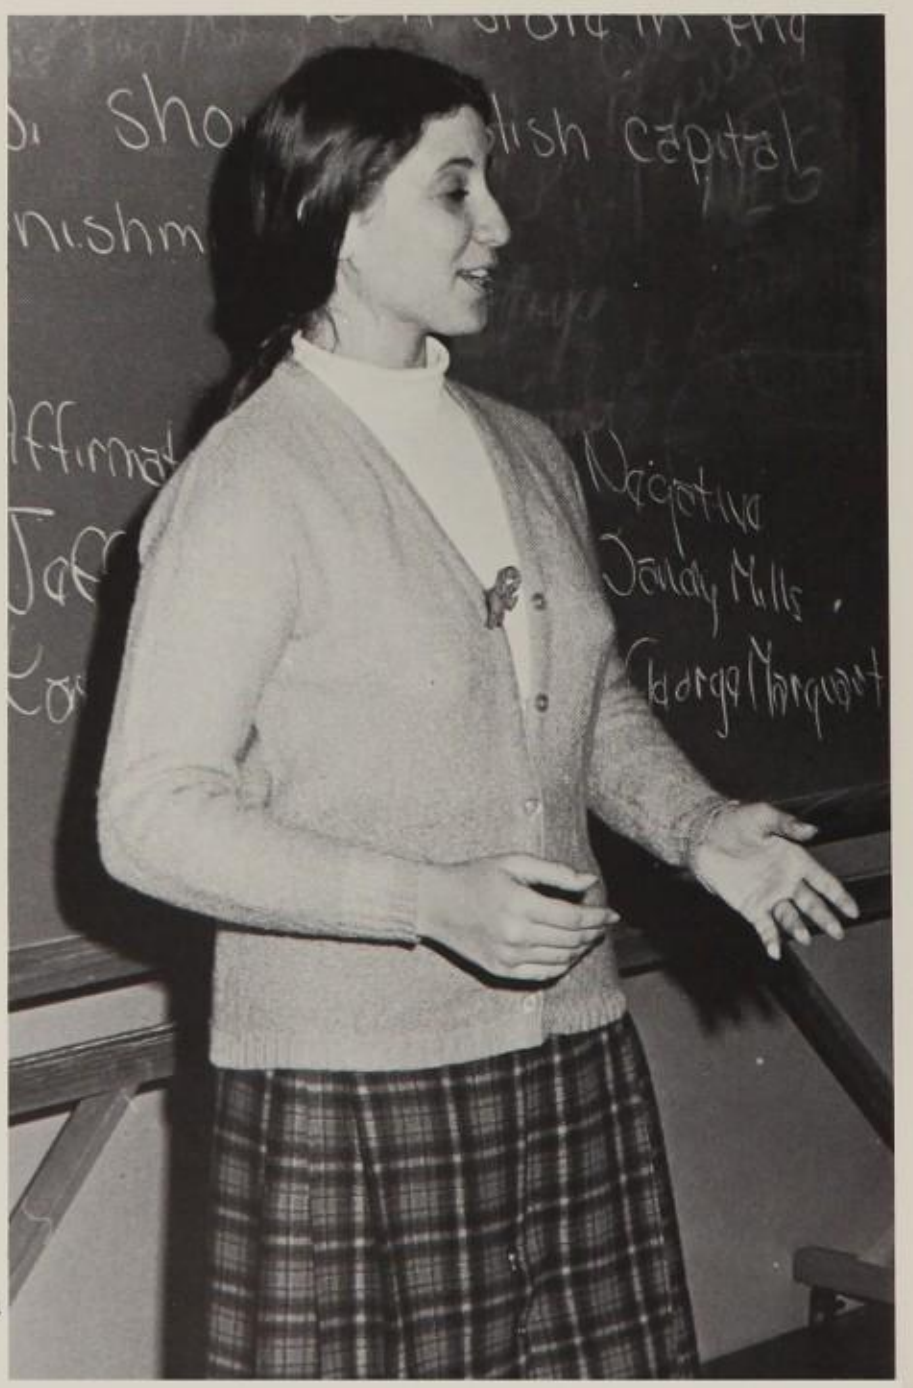
Looking over lists of members, Wanda Martin selects responsible girls to serve as chairmans and committee members for Meterite's Turkey Trot Dance.

Wranglers Develop Speaking Skills,

Wranglers Linda Dolby, Gerry Snyder, Nancy Howard, Jennifer James, and Diane Farhi look over some of the lines of a script they are planning to use in a future play. Group practices and group rehearsals were necessary for attaining perfection in Wrangler productions.

Senior Mary Ann Gerhold giggles as she listens to Mrs. Crum's version and interpretation of a dramatic cutting for Wranglers.

During one of Wranglers' bi-weekly meetings, senior Diane Farhi presents her views on the grading system in a convincing speech.



Compete At Meets Throughout State

Wranglers traveled throughout the state to compete in speech contests at such places as New Haven, Wabash, Warsaw, Indianapolis, and Ball State. Besides racking up points in the National Forensic League, members of Wranglers gained invaluable experience in developing their public speaking skills.

The orators of South Side elected to compete in one of ten specified areas: humorous, dramatic or oratorical interpretation, girls' and boys' extemporaneous, poetry reading, radio broadcasting, original oratory, discussion, or debate. At each meet, ribbons were awarded for placing in one of these divisions. These ribbons were then given to the students on recognition day by sponsor Mrs. Mary Jane Crum.

Margo Bleeke directed "A Marriage Proposal", with cast Dennis Nichols, Yolande Saunders, and Mike Roberts. Open to the student body, the Chekov play attracted a sizable audience. The underclassmen in Wranglers also presented a play in April.

Wranglers attempted to boost school spirit with the sale of decals picturing the South Side Archer. A "Trash 'n Treasure" auction enabled students to bid on and purchase items of various worth. Proceeds from these two projects helped defray the cost of transporting the speech team to and from meets.

Amusedly questioning one of the points made by her opposition during a debate, Margo Bleeke carefully listens to Dane Peterson.

Writing, Photographing, Printing, Circulating

Time waits for no man. The Times waits for no man either, as any staff member will affirm. The mad rush to meet the deadlines began last August when a skeleton crew prepared the first issue of the Times, which was distributed free to all students and teachers. Every week excepting vacations was the same, beginning with the Monday news deadlines and ending in the issuance of one of the 33 issues of Times.

General managers Ann LaMar and Barbara Martin faced quite a task, co-ordinating the advertising and writing staffs of the world's largest high school newspaper; but the 200 students, from editors to folders, took pride in contributing their best to the Times.

The school year 1968-69 proved to be a year of firsts in the Times room. The subscription price of the Times was raised for the first time in 17 years because of rising printing costs. Miss Mary Sayles, a student at Indiana University, was the first student teacher in the journalism department in several years. She also aided Miss Anne White, faculty adviser, with her English class. Last, a furry, yellow little feline wandered into the school one rainy day and was quickly adopted official mascot of the Times room. Christened "Hard Times", he ruled supreme whenever present at school.

Miss Anne White, South Side publications adviser, exclaims over a silly mistake in the Times which was not corrected in the galleys.

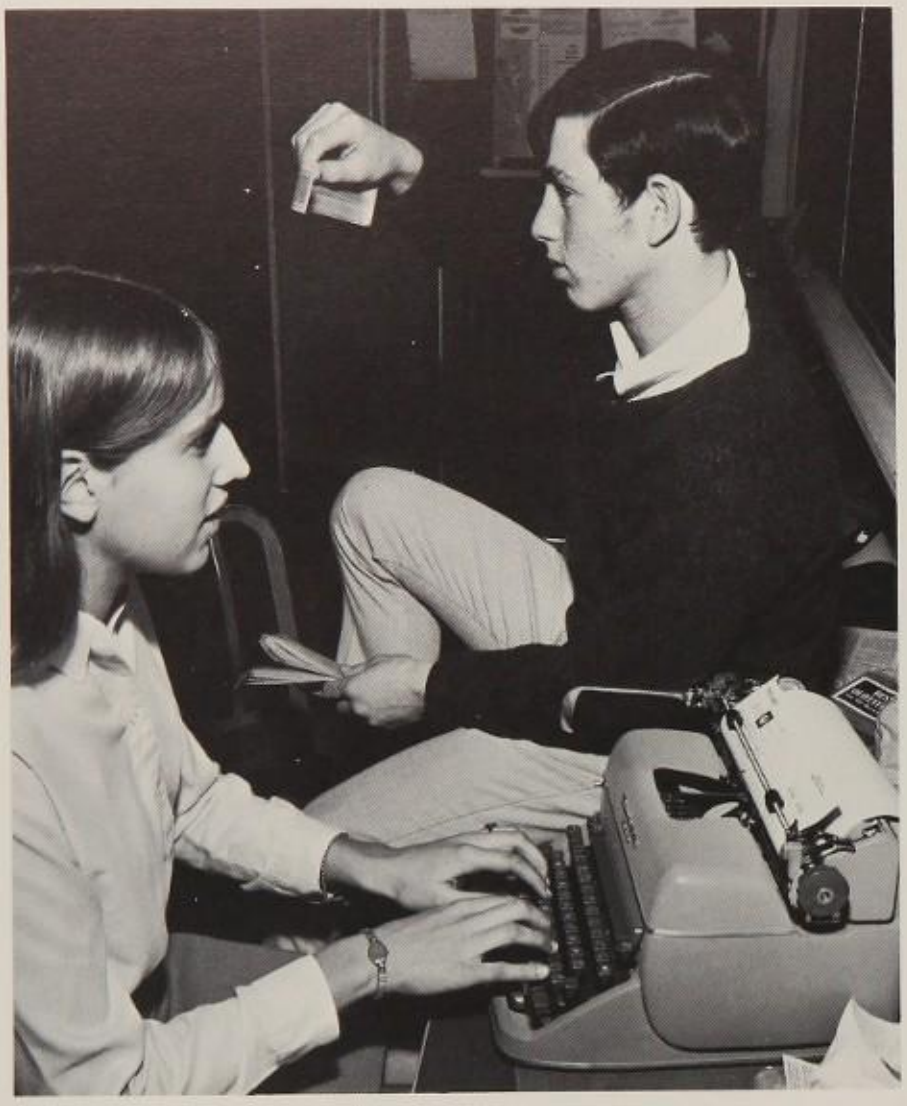
Year Captured In Pictures, Words



Totem sports editor Tom Karol checks some negatives for use in his section while faculty editor Anne Cutter helps write captions.

As editors of the forty-seventh volume of the Totem, Stan Fishman and his assistant, LeeAnn Penny, were very adequately prepared for their jobs. Both had worked on the Totem and Times in their previous years at South Side and had attended journalism institutes during the summer. Stan spent a week at Kent State University, and LeeAnn attended Indiana University in the yearbook division. This past year has been a continuous attempt by them to impart some of this knowledge to the rest of the staff in order to produce a Totem in keeping with the high standards of other years.

Naturally, problems cropped up all year long, some easily remedied, others downright discouraging. Organization was the key word. When work was well-organized, the job progressed smoothly and on schedule. When organization was lacking, well . . . a little sleep was lost! Through the many long working hours in the Totem's little cubicle of the Times Room, Miss Anne White was always a source of wise counsel.

Publishing the Totem was fun, at least when deadlines were distant and time was abundant. Planning layouts, writing cutlines, checking copy, all were enjoyable because they involved the application of fresh, new ideas. But the real rewards for the staff came when the yearbooks returned, finished and ready for distribution.

Totem editor Stan Fishman and associate editor LeeAnn Penny check layouts and copy to prepare for a fast-approaching deadline.

Stimulate Enthusiastic Archer Fans

Precision, enthusiasm, and great school spirit characterized the Cheerleading squads, Cheerblock, and Majorettes. The varsity and reserve cheerleading squads, sponsored by Miss Jean Smith and captained by senior Karen Kessler and junior Jan Hines, respectively, worked closely together to prepare for pep sessions, home games, and coliseum double-headers. Co-operation between the squads and the Archer student body resulted in higher morale and the promotion of new cheers.

The girls of the Cheerblock were outfitted in jumpers of Kelly green and were inspired by pride in their school and teams. Together with other Archer fans in attendance, they enthusiastically participated in cheers for victory. Leaders of the group were Cindy Norris, captain; Jan Gerke, lieutenant; Jan Wallis, senior representative; Tompsie Smith, junior representative; and Joyce Bussard, sophomore representative. Sponsors of Cheerblock were Mrs. Dorothy Arnold and Mrs. Phyllis Bear.

Directed by Mr. Robert Drummond and headed by captain Edith Dees, South Side's majorettes added zest and splendor to Archer home basketball games. The girls performed a short drill and presented the flag at the beginning of each game. Then the squad led the fans in singing the National Anthem.

Supporting the reserve teams are cheerleaders Jan Hines, Cindy Blair, Jennifer Senseny, Celeste Hite, Janell Siebold, and Tina Koeneman.

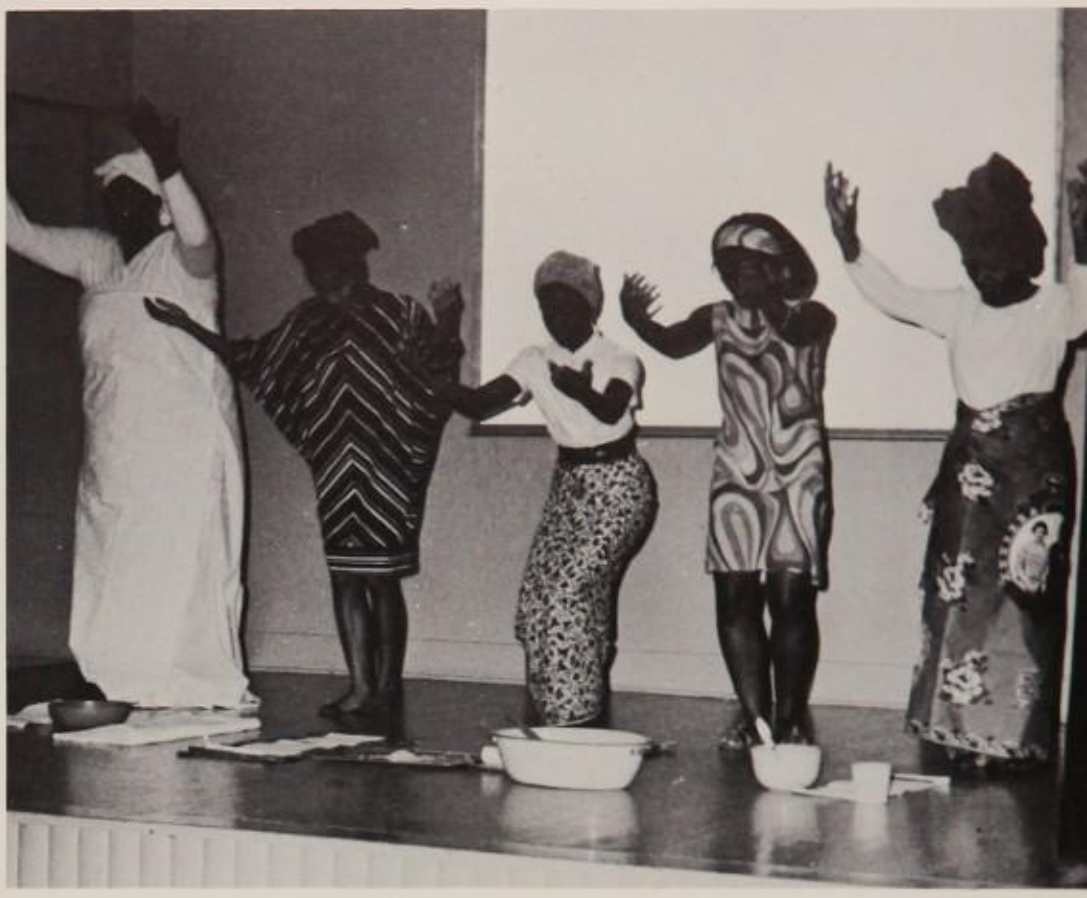
Student Council, Afro-American Club

Criticized for years because of its lack of a Student Council, South Side High School can now face its critics with pride. Archers tackled the problem and succeeded admirably in organizing a body through which students could air their feelings. Temporary homeroom representatives met several times and, through committee, formulated a constitution, greatly aided by Mr. Jack E. Weicker. Submitted to the student body, the constitution was ratified and the Student Council became a reality.

Quoting that constitution, the Student Council will seek this year and in future years "to further the interest of South Side High School; to increase the co-operation and communication among students and between students and teachers; and to permit students to take part in the formulating of policies dealing with the general interests of the school body."

Another club, officially titled the Afro-American Club, was the culmination of the ideas of many students and teachers. However, the actual formation was the result of a talk given by Mrs. Dixie Arter to the Political Science Club. Motivated by her, students met and organized formally in order to help close the communication gap between black and white and to erase former prejudices.



Female members of the newly-formed Afro-American Club demonstrate the customs and traditions of the native African tribes.

D.E. Links School, Job Experience;

Experience is the best teacher, and Distributive Education students learned both from job experience and in the classroom. One phase of the Distributive Education course, which seeks to combine the best in high school education with the best in business training and bridge the gap between theory and actual practice, is the club of the same name. Meeting twice a month, the club was sponsored by Mr. Kenneth Hullinger.

South Side entered several candidates for offices in the Distributive Education Clubs of Indiana, and Teresa Garcia was elected secretary. A candy sale was then conducted by the club and the proceeds used to send Teresa to the National D.E. Contest in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Another new organization at South Side was VICA, a chapter of the Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America. Under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Surber, members of the program furthered their vocational knowledge. Students attended three classes in the morning, one directly related to the program, and then proceeded to their jobs in the afternoon. Officers of the club were president, Mike Werling; vice-president, Dave Bradley; secretary, Becky Hoffman; treasurer, Jerry Koontz; reporter, Larry Von Gunten; and parliamentarian, Gary Nemeroff.

Dedicated Students Give Study Halls,

Cricket Tieman, seventh period service worker for Dean of Boys Ralph Boling, observes a student waiting to counsult with the Dean.

Although the largest and most active club at South Side, the Service Club operated with no definite meetings, officers, or special projects for raising money. The only scheduled meeting was the annual Service Club Potluck, at which senior Jean Dunlap became the 1968-69 recipient of the Randolph Jacobs Trophy.

Students gave up one or more hours daily when they signed up to service work, time spent helping a teacher. Pins were awarded for hours recorded, the first for two hundred hours, the second for three hundred hours, and the third for four hundred hours.

Three other service clubs gave aid to the school. One was the Booster Club, sponsored by Mr. LaVerne Harader. Boosters sold candy, soft drinks, and popcorn to the fans at all home basketball games. Money from the sales helps defray the expenses of the cheerleaders, such as uniforms and bus fares. It is also applied, when needed, to general school finances.

Under the guidance of Mr. Ned Yingst, the boys of the Projectionists Club took the responsibility of operating movie projectors, running tape recorders, and helping in the language laboratory.

The ushers directed fans to the correct side of the gym at home games, and helped late arrivals find seats. Mr. Daniel Boylan supervised the ushers.

This group of Archers performed during many important school functions including Christmas and Thanksgiving assemblies, school concerts, music assemblies, and Ivy Day. Several members of the Orchestra were picked during the year to be in the All-City Orchestra.

Band Plays For All Home BallGames;

Playing for home basketball and football games, entertaining fans during halftime festivities, performing for various junior high schools throughout the city, and exhibiting their talents during concerts in the Archer gymnasium were the main activities of the South Side High School band. Mr. Robert Drummond, head of the instrumental music department, was responsible for selecting the music for all performances and for conducting.

Several members of the band qualified for the All-City Band and consequently received special recognition. Others participated in state and local music contests, among which was the annual NISBOVA contest here in Fort Wayne.

Mr. Drummond also directed the orchestra as it traveled to other schools and performed at home events. The most important of these were the Thanksgiving and Christmas Assemblies, the Spring Concert, and Ivy Day. The All-City Orchestra provided a means of recognizing qualifying instrumentalists.

On both Senior Recognition Day and Underclass Recognition Day, those students who exemplified the true characteristics of a good musician were awarded a pin. Participation in either band or orchestra for three years merited a special three-year pin.

Leading his orchestra during a February music assembly, Mr. Drummond urges the members to play smoothly and harmoniously.

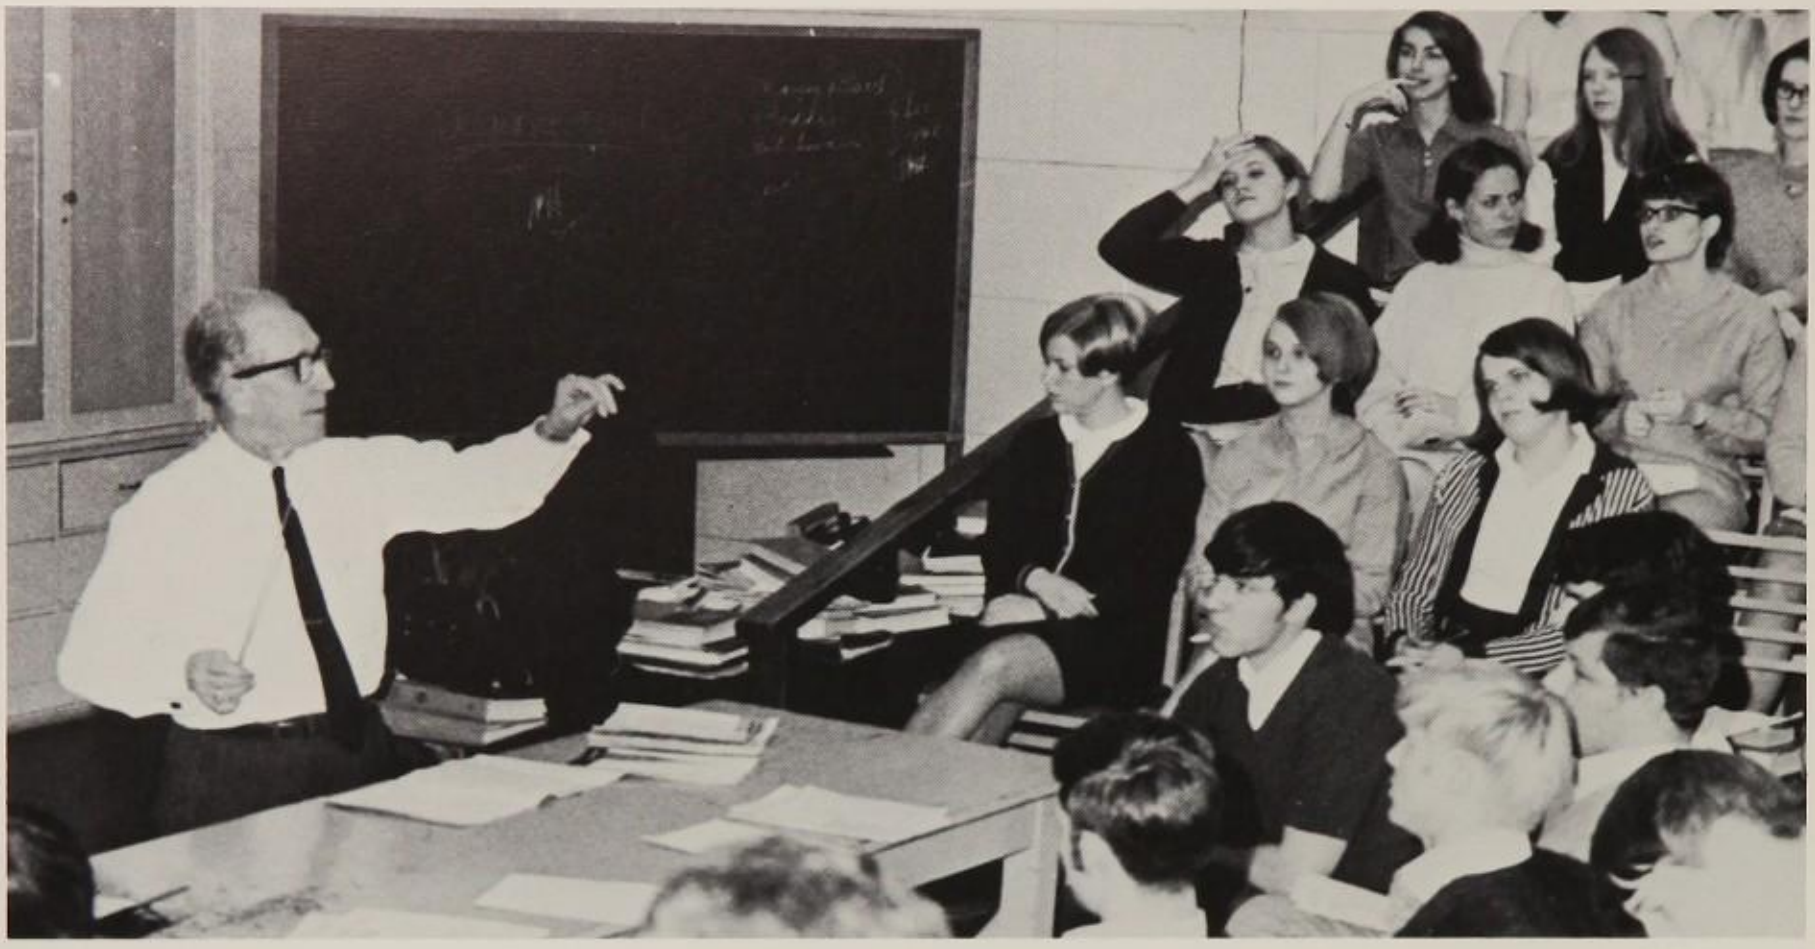
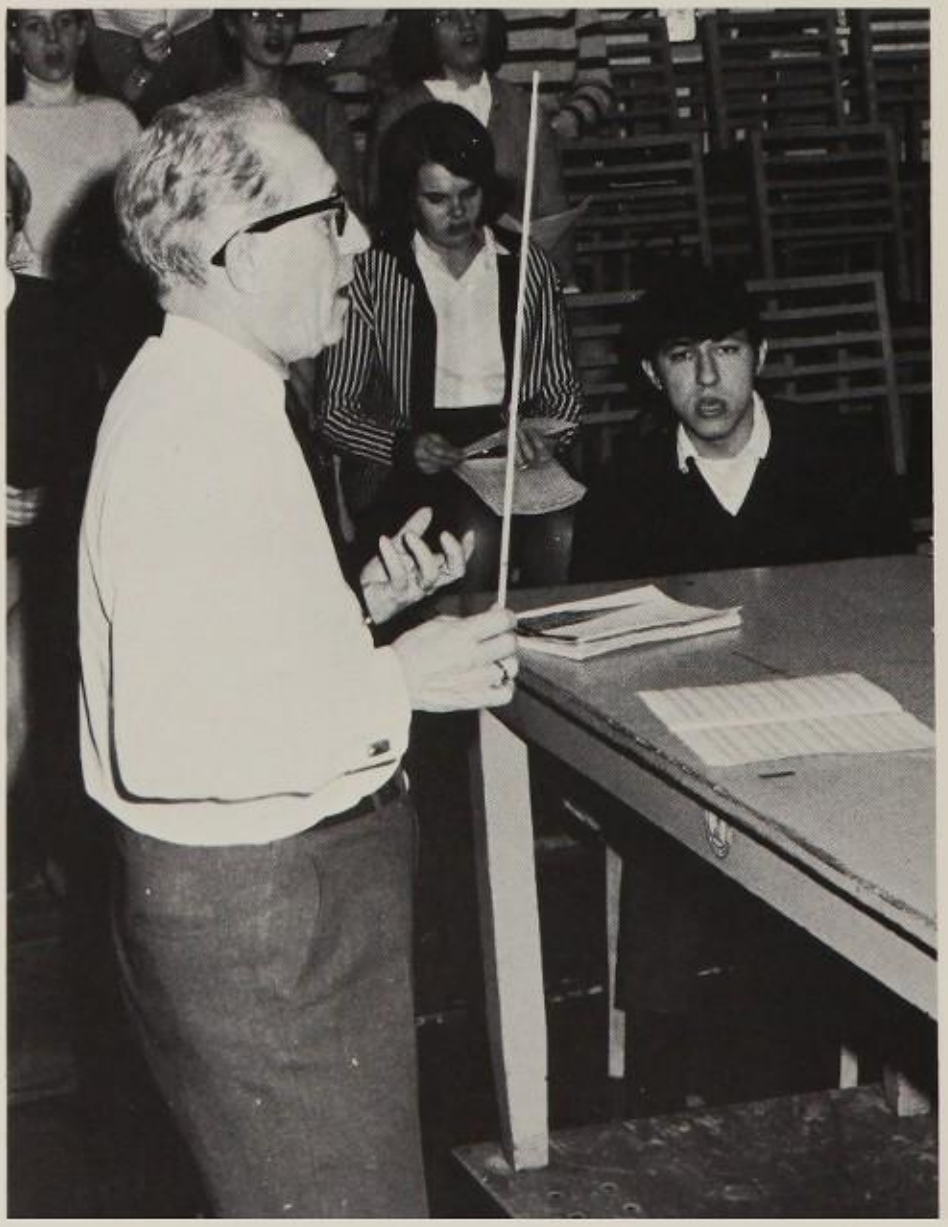
Assemblies, Concerts Fill Schedule



The tension builds as a concert performance nears. Weariness is revealed on the faces of the vocalists as "Hos" drills untiringly on program selections. Nervousness grows as the big moment approaches, and faltering memories grope for forgotten notes and lost chords. Tomorrow the week's preparation and rehearsal will be rewarded by the thundering applause of an appreciative audience.

Kathy Bainbridge and Laurie Brumm, accompanists for the Concert Choir, practice an arrangement for a future performance.

"A little more timbre, fellows," motions "Hos" to the bass section. Practice makes perfect, and the choir strives for near perfection.



Of South Side's Industrious Vocalists

The Concert Choir sang their way through the year under the direction of Mr. Lester Hostetler. This select group of vocal music students, comprised of seniors and juniors, developed their ability and love for music.

Each day the choir met during the fifth period to learn and practice vocal arrangements. The purpose of some selections was primarily enjoyment or exercise. Others were practiced to perfection and performed at various concerts.

During the 1968-69 school year, the Concert Choir entertained at the Fort Wayne National Bank, the Baer Field Inn, Harrison Hill Junior High School, and South Side P.T.A. meetings. The schedule of the choir also included several music assemblies, the Spring Concert, as well as the two holiday assemblies, at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Every organization needs a few student leaders. Tompsie Smith, secretary of the choir, was in charge of recording attendance during all classes, concerts, and assemblies. The foreman, who organized all seating arrangements and all technical details, was John Gall. Bob Swain accompanied the choir on the piano, assisted by Laurie Brumm.

The tenors, attempting to improve their interpretation, pay special attention to Mr. Lester Hostetler during this practice.

Garbed in green formals and white dinner jackets, the choral department explored various fields of music in song. Members are Front Row: Simmons, Baker, Lochner, Ford, N. Roehm, P. Roehm, T. G.A.A. gives many South Side girls time to participate in various strenuous sports. The program ranges from basketball to track.

Mrs. Jeanette Rohleder discusses the day's agenda for her physical education classes with student teacher, Miss Kitty Johnson.

Exercise, Organized Group Recreation

Now finishing its fortieth year, the South Side Intramural Department, under the guidance of Mr. Clair Motz, offered over 20 different sports. The purpose of the Intramural program was to provide the opportunity for those boys unable to take part in varsity sports to compete with other boys in organized games. Active Intramural members could be found contending in games during Noon League and after school in the gymnasium.

Boys had a chance to win Intramural letters by participating actively, breaking school records, winning games, and earning championships. Sophomores had to accumulate a total of 140 points, while juniors and seniors needed 125 points for a letter.

The main purpose of the Girls' Athletic Association, sponsored by Mrs. Jeanette Rohleder, was to provide fun, exercise, competition, and teamwork. The girls participated in many active sports throughout the year, including speedball, basketball, volleyball, giant volleyball, softball, and track.

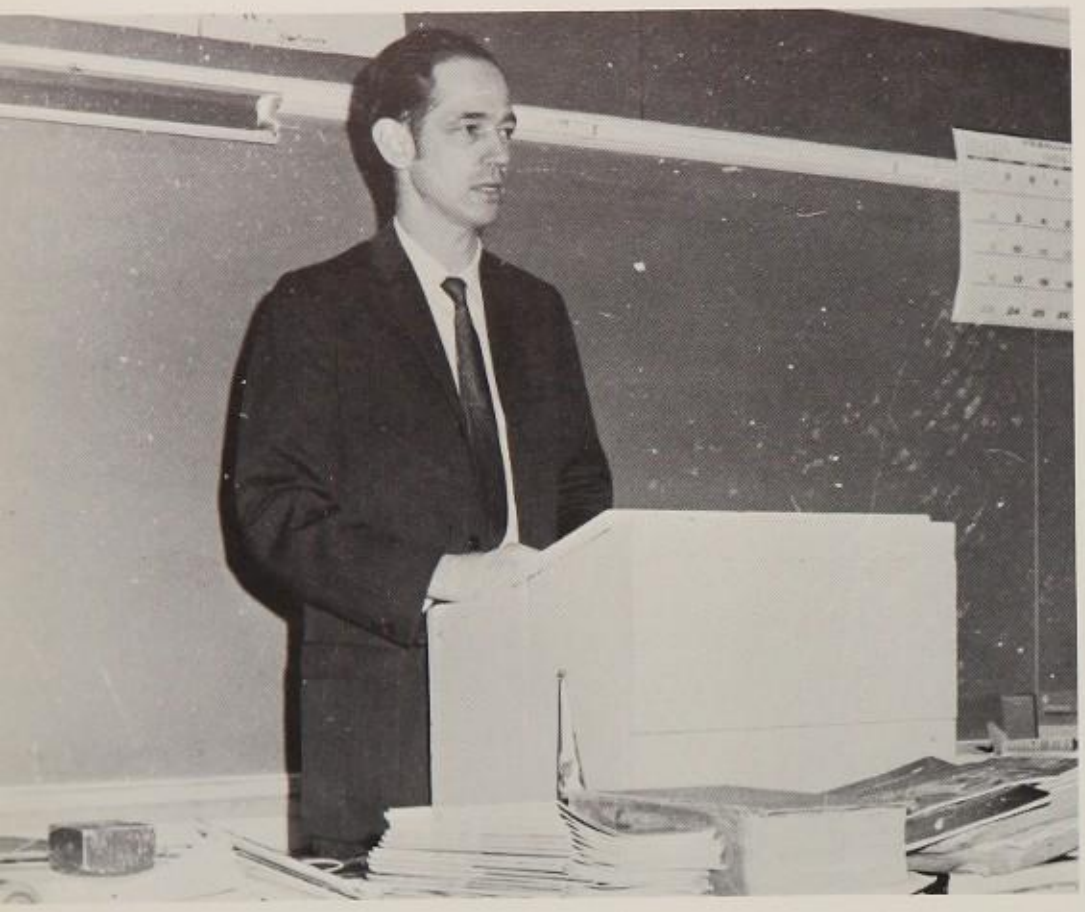
Numerals, pins, and letters were awarded to girls with the correct number of points, earned through attendance and individual skill. Highlights of the year were the presentation of the GAA plaque to the high-point senior and the annual midyear banquet.

These Kelly boys enjoy playing a vigorous game of basketball which is an intrinsic part of the schedule of the boys' intramural program.

Spring offers ample time for intramural boys, who are interested in track, to participate in field events.

Planning athletic events for the intramural program were managers Dan Kissinger, Bob Martinez, Mike McCoy, Brad Talbert, Joe Martinez, Kelly Lake.

History, Political Science Clubs Air



Ken Kurtz, prominent WANE-TV newscaster, lectures the Political Science Club on his experiences at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Mr. Ralph Bogardus and Mr. William Hedges directed the Political Science Club. By providing a relaxed atmosphere for the airing of different ideas and thoughts, the Political Science Club sought to inform its members on current governmental and social issues. Though-provoking programs were prepared through the efforts of the sponsors and program chairman, Dane Petersen.

Outstanding programs at the Tuesday meetings were presented by local attorney William F. McNagny on conservatism, and by Mrs. Dixie Arter on the housing problem in Fort Wayne. Since 1968 was an election year, the Political Science Club was able to engage several political speakers. One of these was Timothy Borne, Democratic candidate for state representative.

Members of the History Club, which was open only to sophomores and juniors, elected fellow students Karen Schaefer, Nancy Rasor, and Richard Runkel as their officers for the first semester. Meeting twice a month under the guidance of Mr. Arthur Peffley, the club discussed current happenings and events and their relationship to history. Speakers included Darryl Jones, who toured Europe by bicycle in 1966, and a man present in Czechoslovakia at the time of the Russian invasion of that country.

Red Cross Participate In Community

To bring together young people interested in careers in nursing and health, to explore opportunities and requirements in these fields, to grow as individuals by working together, and to learn about community life were the goals of the Health Careers Club of South Side. Guided by Mrs. JoAnn Orr, club members toured the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing and the Parkview School of Nursing. They also heard speakers from various organizations give talks about their professional fields.

Sponsored by Mr. John Arnold, the Red Cross Club worked to give help and companionship to unhappy and unfortunate people. The members gave parties at the Allen County Home and the State School. They decorated the Children's Ward at Lutheran Hospital, and made treats for the Salvation Army children. The students also participated in drives to help the Red Cross and the March of Dimes.

A Mother-Daughter Tea and a Teachers' Tea highlighted Vesta's year. The girls also presented a fashion show, with clothes provided by a local department store. Mrs. Linda Mitchell, adviser, tried to interest the girls in projects which would benefit them and their community and educate them in home economics.

Expounding on a favorite topic, international dress, Vesta members enjoy exploring some of the characteristics of native Mexican dress.

The Bridge Club was for those who desired to learn the fundamentals and ideal techniques of bridge, or for those who enjoyed playing the game while furthering their skill at the same time. This club was open to any South Side sophomore, junior, or senior who was interested and had a desire to play the game.

The officers this year were Diana Bailey, president, and Diane Schnizer, secretary. Helping plan the meetings and the general organization of the club were the sponsors, Mrs. Jonell Bergstedt and Mrs. Dorothy Hilmert.

Many Archers enjoy viewing films and had a chance to do so during the meetings of the South Side Cinema Guild. This activity was designed for those who enjoyed reviewing some of the more popular films of recent years. Students were able to watch some excellent acting by some of their favorite actors and actresses.

Some of the films seen by the Cinema Guild during the 1968-69 school year were "Caine Mutiny" and "Mutiny On The Bounty". By viewing a number of films critically, members learned to discern good acting from bad. Mr. John Bosi sponsored the club.

Art Club president Cynthia Snearing carefully folds tissue paper to make some paper flowers to be sold at the approaching art auction.

To explore the world of artistic expression was the purpose of South Side's Art Club. Under the direction of Mrs. Ann Stahn, the members of the club developed interests in various forms of art and gained knowledge from experience.

During the year, the club had the privilege of listening to several talented speakers. One of these was Miss Blanche Hutto, a former teacher at South. Miss Hutto had attended the International Craft Guild Conference in Lima, Peru; and, dressed in native peruvian costume, she addressed the club. A Christmas party at Ma and Pa's, field trips to the Fort Wayne Museum of Art, and a spring picnic were the social events of the club.

Throughout the second semester, the Art Club worked on art objects to be sold at the annual Art Auction. Through the auction, the Art Club netted enough money to help pay for supplies, art books, and other extras. These materials not only enabled the art classes to advance, but also benefitted the students in the club.

To encourage the members to further explore their favorite areas, the group divided into sections. Some of the fields studied were ceramics, wire sculpture, still life, and enameling.

The officers of the Art Club for the second semester were Cynthia Snearing, president; Karen Moreo, vice-president; Diane Griest, secretary; Nigel Shoaff, treasurer; Betsy Crawford, point recorder; and Dennis Miser, sergeant-at-arms.

Chosen by their homerooms, this year's representatives to the Safety Council combined their efforts to promote not only safety in school and at home but also in the community. Supervised by Mr. Thomas Burrell, the members studied the possible hazards of life and the ways to prevent them as cautiously and effectively as possible.

Junior representative Elaine Draudt explains to fellow Safety Council members the fatal results of careless driving habits.

Aided by a Safety Council member, Mr. Thomas Burrell hangs one of the many posters for promoting the Safety Sam Week.

Junior Academy Forms Two Sections

With representatives chosen from each homeroom, the Safety Council tried to make safety a daily part of student life. After listening to qualified speakers and watching films, the members reported their findings to their homerooms. In an effort to promote safe driving, the Council, which was sponsored by Mr. Thomas Burrell, distributed booklets which provided safe driving tips for many traffic situations.

One of the biggest projects of the year was the essay contest. All students were encouraged to compose an essay on safety, and the writer of the best theme was awarded prizes donated by local businessmen.

The Junior Academy of Science was an extra-curricular activity in every sense of the term. Co-ordinated by Mr. Richard Bussard, Mr. Herbert Meyer, and Mr. William Santon, the two sections of the Junior Academy of Science sought to cover fields which could not be studied in regular classes because of a lack of time.

Organized in the fall as one body, the members then split into two sections which concentrated on physics and chemistry. The club was fortunate in having professors from some of Fort Wayne's colleges speak. Relevant films and demonstrations by the members themselves also made up the programs.

With the aid of Mr. William Santon and Mr. Herbert Meyer, John Rohrer, Don Field, and Roger Nordeen test for chemical reactions.

Having a sincere desire to broaden their current knowledge of the many fields of science, these members spent much of their time observing, experimenting, and discussing new scientific concepts and ideas. Guest speakers and professors, along with corresponding films, helped the members to better understand the newly presented theories.

'Romans' Feast At Annual Banquet;

The South Side Chapter of the Junior Classical League, an affiliate of the Indiana Junior Classical League and the American Classical League, continued successfully in its second year. Organized to help students recognize the debt of our own culture to the ancient Greek and Roman civilizations, JCL's programs and activities clearly reflected this purpose. Miss Lois Holtmeyer sponsored the group.

Although programs at the monthly meetings were often varied, JCL members tried to concentrate on different aspects of the Roman theater. Selected scenes from the play "Aulularia" by Plautus were presented at one meeting, first in English, then in Latin. The big event of the year was the annual Roman banquet, attended by toga-clad Latin students and teachers. Being a Roman banquet, only foods known to the Romans were included on the menu. Prizes were awarded to the "best-dressed" of the evening.

JCL sponsored only one money-making project, the sale of book covers at the beginning of each term. From the profits, the Christmas party and the Roman banquet were financed. Furthermore, state and national dues were paid, enabling South Side to send delegates to the state convention, which was in April this year on the Indiana University campus.

Juniors Diane Griest and Debbie King listen attentively to a club discussion on the program of an upcoming state convention to which the Junior Classical League will send two club delegates.

Assemblies Gives Holiday Programs

Using outside sources to gathe: new ideas, Mr. Don Locke and senior Charon Snearing discuss the unfinished script of an assembly.

Using imagination and talent, Assemblies Workshop took charge of the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies during the past year at South Side. Sponsored by Mr. Don Locke, the organization was open to all students. The elected officers were Jan Trier, president; Darlene Hughes, vice-president; Jan Oakes, secretary; and Armondo Godoy, treasurer.

The Thanksgiving assembly, "A Note To Myself," attempted to emphasize some of the things for which people should be thankful; art, music, literature, government, science, and religion. The simple stage setting, small number of characters, and toneless voices of the actors accentuated the thought-provoking lines.

"A Birthday Through The Centuries" was the Christmas assembly. The program consisted of narration and music, which was provided by the band and choir. Christians have celebrated the birth of Christ in many ways over the centuries, and different symbols have come to be associated with the holiday. Among these explained in the play were the christmas tree, Santa Claus, feasting, and the Yule log.

By purchasing these scripts rather than relying on members to write their own, Assemblies Workshop was able to devote more time to production.

Rifle Club Practices Shooting Skills;

Open to any student at South Side, the Boys' and Girls' Rifle Clubs were sponsored by Mr. Allen Poorman. Special instruction was provided by Mr. John Stetler, a member of the Fort Wayne Police Department, who heavily emphasized safety. The purposes of the club were to teach members how to respect and handle a gun, how to shoot well, and how to conduct themselves in competition.

The club followed the format of the National Rifle Association. Working to reach the top rating of distinguished expert, the members of the Rifle Clubs earned the titles of pro-marksman, marksman, marksman first class, sharpshooter, and expert.

Using 22-caliber target rifles, the members practiced until they were skilled enough to participate in competition. The boys were matched against the girls. A league of northern Indiana clubs worked diligently to arrange matches between schools.

The clubs were separated into two sections to create less confusion. The boys; officers were Darrell Schlatter, president; Jim Duncan, vice-president; David Rodewald, secretary; and Martin Bender, treasurer. The girls elected as officers Sandra Bowser, president; Peggy Beason, vice-president; and Jane Campbell, secretary-treasurer.

The Rifle Club offers hours of diversified entertainment and relaxation to all sophomore, junior, and senior boys who care to join.

Even girls make use of the rifle range, where they have a chance to practice sharpshooting skills.

Honor Societies Choose Members

Miss Anne White, publications adviser, named 18 seniors to the South Side Chapter of Quill and Scroll, the International Journalism Honor Society. This honor, the ultimate goal of every staff member of the South Side Times and the Totem, is awarded for individual achievement in the field of journalism.

In order to qualify, each student must have worked either two years on the Times or one year on the Totem, must be in the upper third of his graduating class, and must have accumulated 5000 points for active work. Initiates to the society attended a banquet in their honor.

Selected on the basis of their scores on the qualifying test, nine Kellys were named National Merit Semifinalists. Approximately 15 thousand high school seniors were named semifinalists, representing one-half of one per cent of the graduating seniors in the country.

These nine became finalists in the program by substantiating their performance on another test, by being endorsed by their school, and by submitting further information about themselves, their interests, and their achievements. Each finalist became eligible for one of the National Merit $1000 Scholarships and for other Merit Scholarships.

Several South Siders qualified for final competition on the National Merit Scholarship Program. Finalists are Front Row: Christopher Walker, Carol Lake, Diane Farhi. Second Row: Lee Johnson, Greg Wass, Marta Graf, and Nancy Howard.

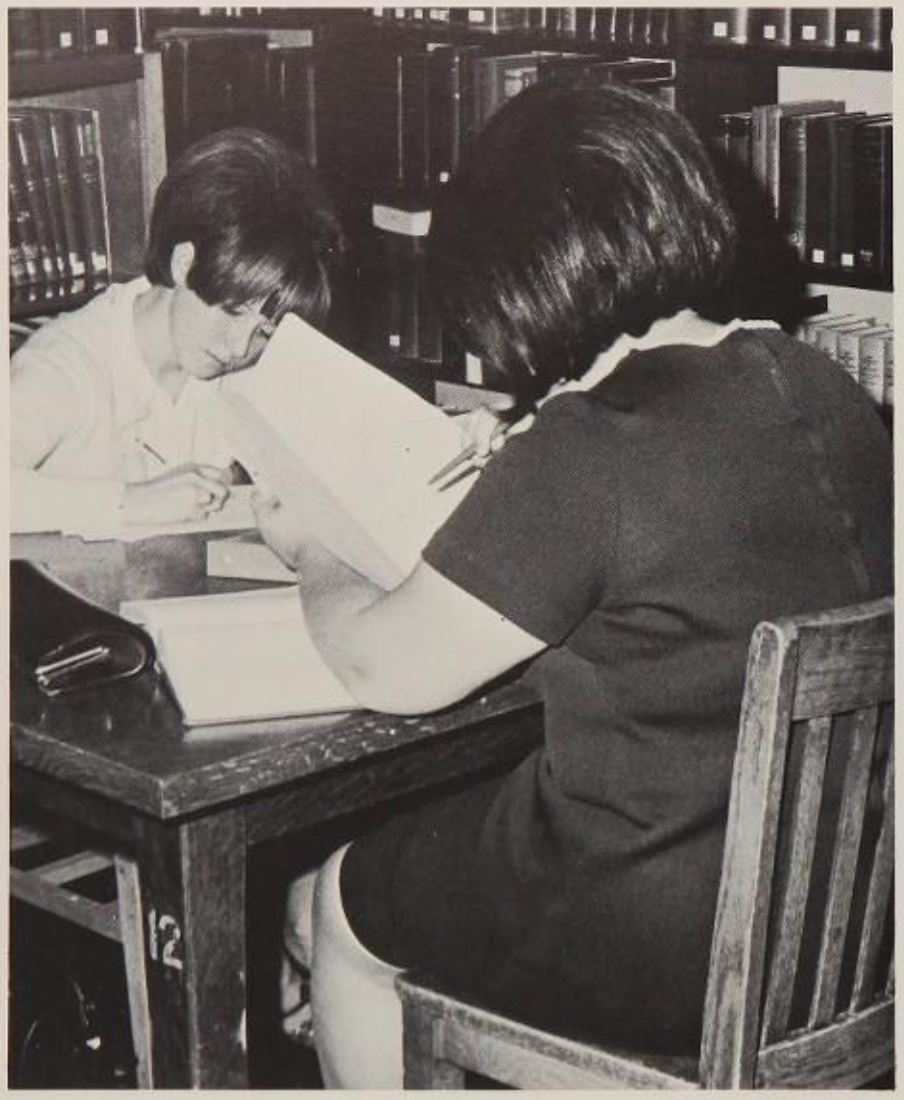
Mission: Education

"A school," according to Webster, is "a place or institution for teaching and learning." This effectively shows the double mission of education at South Side. The faculty had the responsibility of teaching, and the students had the responsibility of learning. Education does not come easily; it requires the joint effort and sincere co-operation of both teacher and pupil. The educator's job is to collect and coordinate information and offer it to his students. The student must in turn be ready to receive this knowledge and transform it back into practical application, thus returning the investment society has made in him. The past year has been an investment of time and knowledge that will enable South Siders to become more complete and better members of their world.

English Department Helps Pupils In



Study hall hours spent in the library provide some extra time for junior English students to research for that required term paper.

The philosophy of the English Department was to help students understand life through literature and the humanities; to aid students in the better use and appreciation of the English language; and to assist in developing each student's powers to communicate. Special emphasis was placed on composition; however, English courses also entailed a study of literature and language arts and encouraged outside reading.

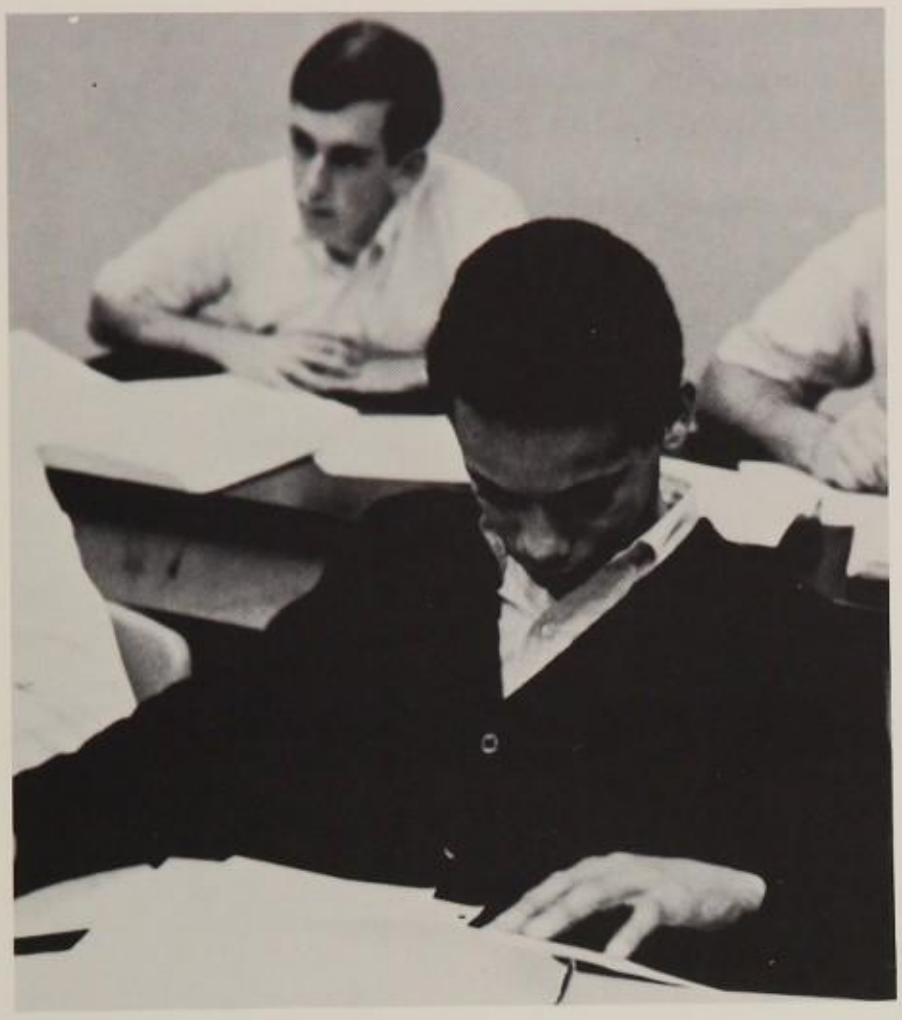
The sophomore classes concentrated on American literature, and seniors on contemporary and world literature. The study of language arts was designed to bring out the optimum ability in each student. Techniques were practiced in developing ideas into sentences, then paragraphs, then complete composition, ending in a research paper in the junior year. Practical and creative writing were practiced often. Critical evaluations were made by seniors on outside reading material, including novels, poetry, plays, and short stories.

The second year of the English-government class for advanced senior students proved successful. Students participated in lively round-table discussions while benefiting from the experience of two teachers. Team-teaching was also used with the sophomore and junior special English classes.

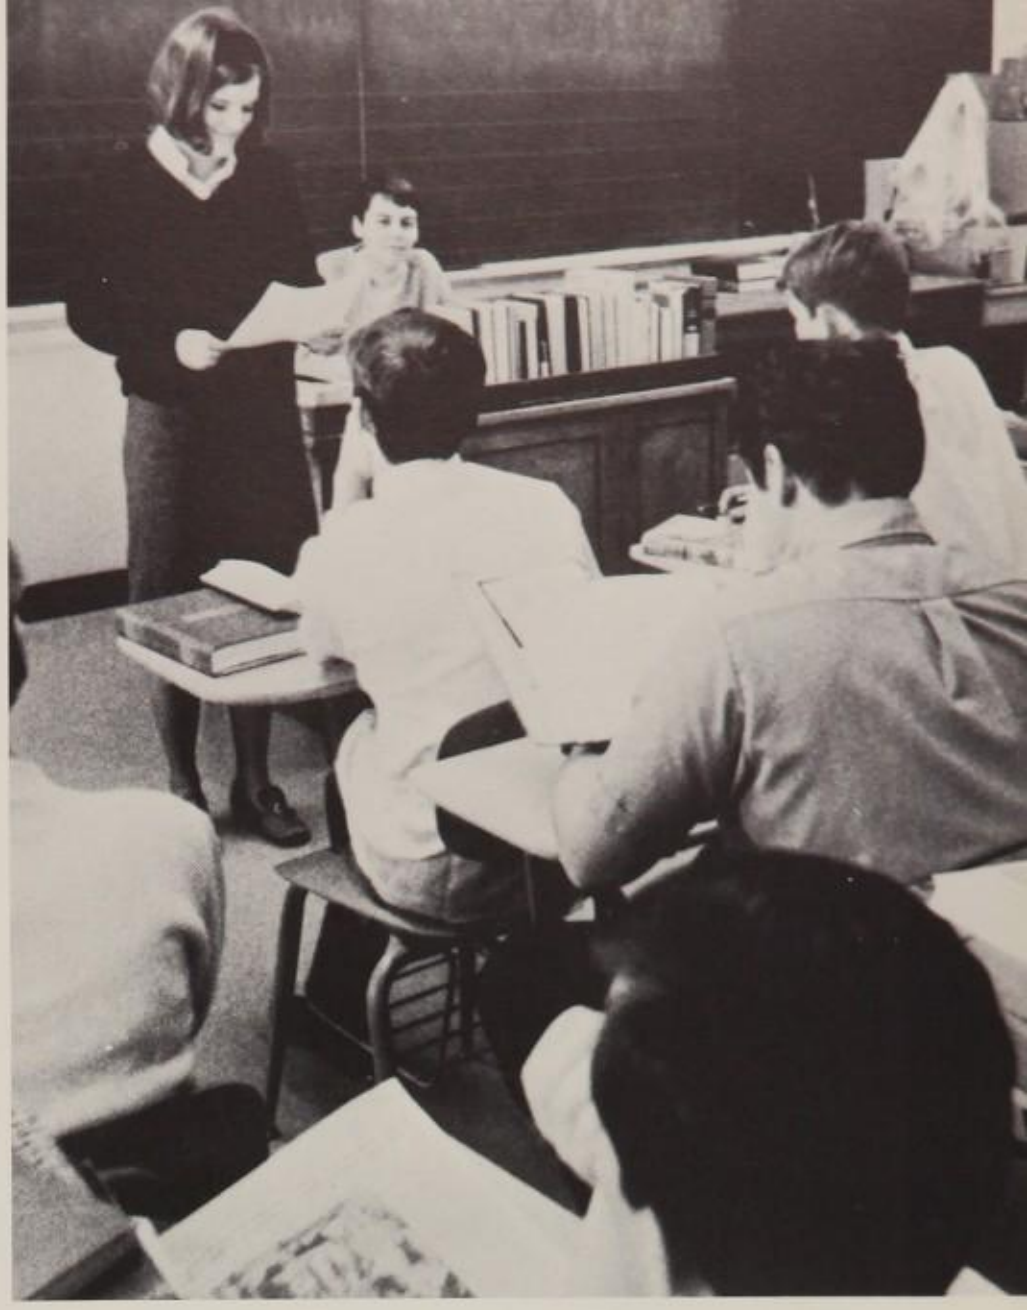
A quick conference in English class helps these juniors to better understand the stories of eighteenth century English literature.

Junior English student Bill Kimbrough questions Mrs. Florence Emshwiller about Chaucer's Prologue to the Canterbury Tales.

Better Writing



A quiet study period during class provides Juniors Don Nichols and Waymon Brown with extra time to prepare a grammar assignment.



An oral interpretation of a poem provides a change from regular class routine for Mrs. Careen Stroer and her junior students.

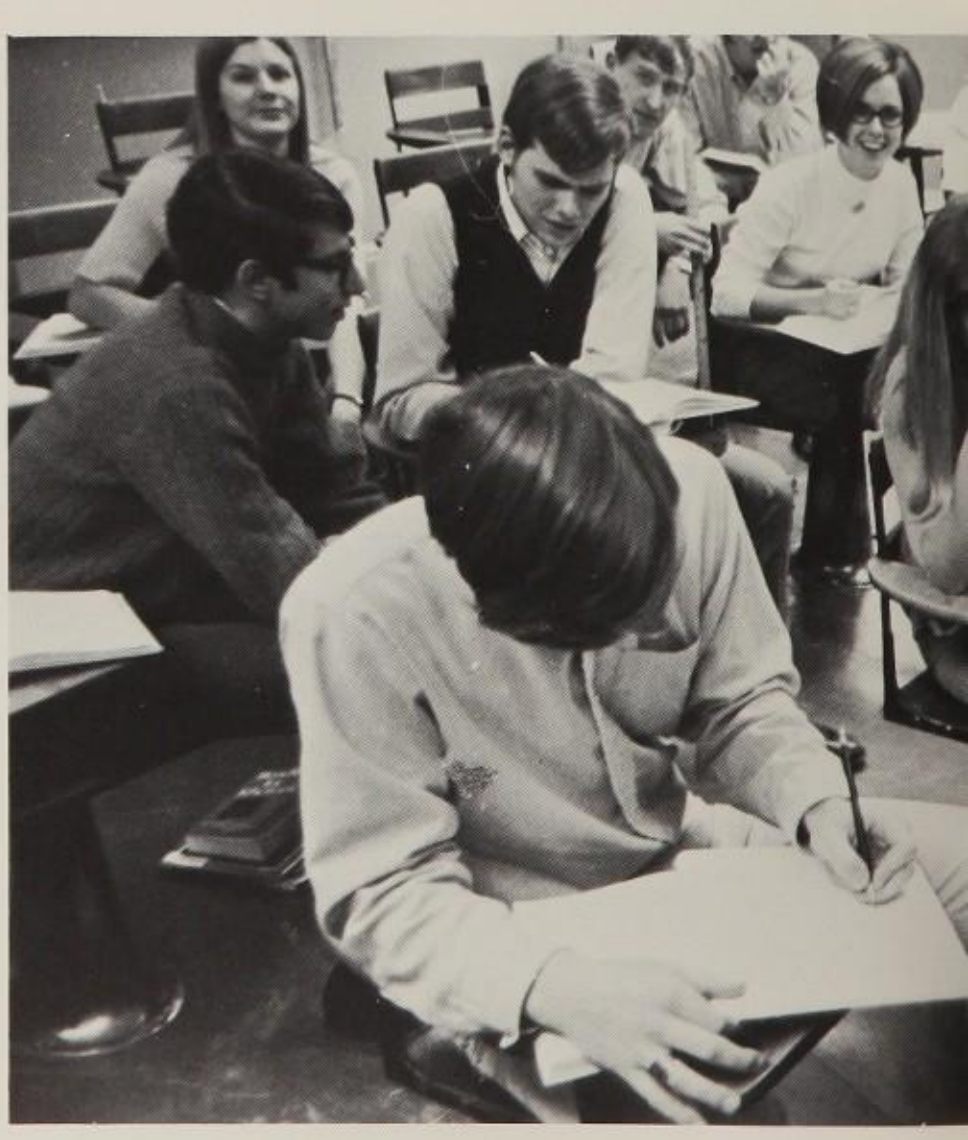
A lively discussion about the 1969 presidential candidates and their political stands gives special English-government students an opportunity to exchange ideas and offer personal opinions. Operating on a seminar-type basis, this class provided an informal air to talks on timely topics.

Math Unlocks

Intermediate algebra student Jeanne Keck ponders over the proper method to use in solving a problem about fractions and factoring.

A study of three-dimensional geometric figures helps math students to better understand the relationship of lines, angles, and planes.

Mr. Robert Petty glances at his teacher's manual before continuing a lecture on the fundamentals of graphing used in geometry class.



An obvious misprint in a difficult calculus problem amuses the members of Mr. Richard Sage's seventh period math analysis class.

Mysteries Of Number Relationships

Students whose minds were pre-occupied with equations, angles, formulas, lines, and graphs were always found to be questioning and learning under the skillful supervision of the Mathematics Department.

Sophomores at South Side could take Algebra 1 and 2, Applied Mathematics, or General Mathematics to review their freshman mathematics work. Geometry, the study of plane and solid figures, could also be elected by any interested students on the college prep course.

Intermediate Mathematics and Algebra 3 and 4 were offered to the junior students as electives. Intermediate Math included a broader, more generalized study of factoring and solving quadratic equations. Those in the algebra classes worked in the deriving of equations by using the many properties of numbers and operations.

Seniors could add Trigonometry or an accelerated program in Mathematical Analysis to their schedules. "Trig" students concentrated on the finding of distances on the earth's surface and on the distances between planets in the various solar systems. Through the study of many complex problems, members of the Math Analysis course, enrolled on an honor basis, examined the fundamentals of the number systems. With the in-depth study of the technical aspects of mathematics as the starting point, these students found out how and why their number systems worked, and then proceeded to work with and prove the various properties.

With the help of Mr. Chandler, Craig Morey attempts to work his way through concerning roots, powers, and quadratic equations.

Before beginning another algebra problem, junior Andy Gunkler reads through the problem to comprehend and interpret the facts.

Students Strive For Comprehension

World history, United States history, government, economics, and sociology were the courses offered by the South Side Social Studies Department. Each one had different eligibility requirements and aims.

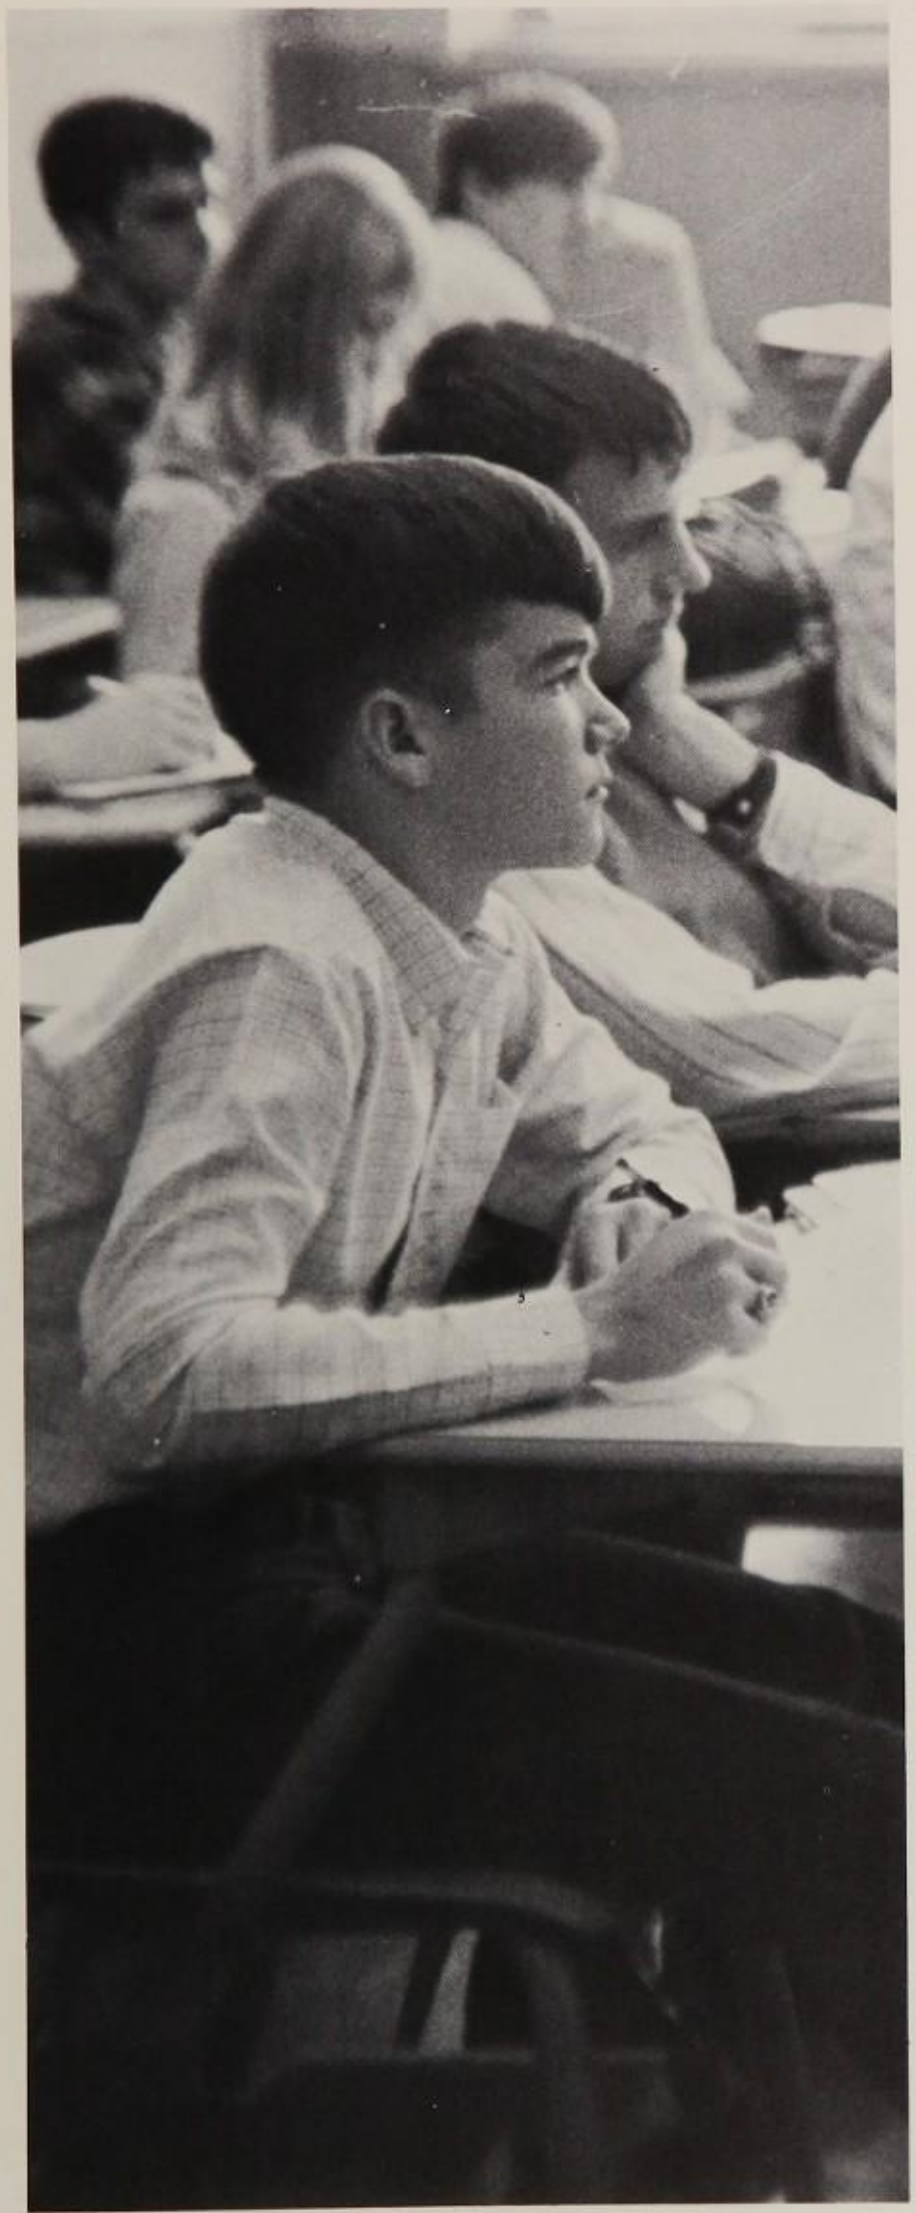
World history was generally taken during the sophomore year. This course exposed the student to a comprehensive view of world affairs covering the last 4000 years.

The social studies program continued with a more specific and detailed study of the United States, its history, geography, and policies. Since 1968 was an election year, classes made interesting comparisons between the fall election and elections of the past.

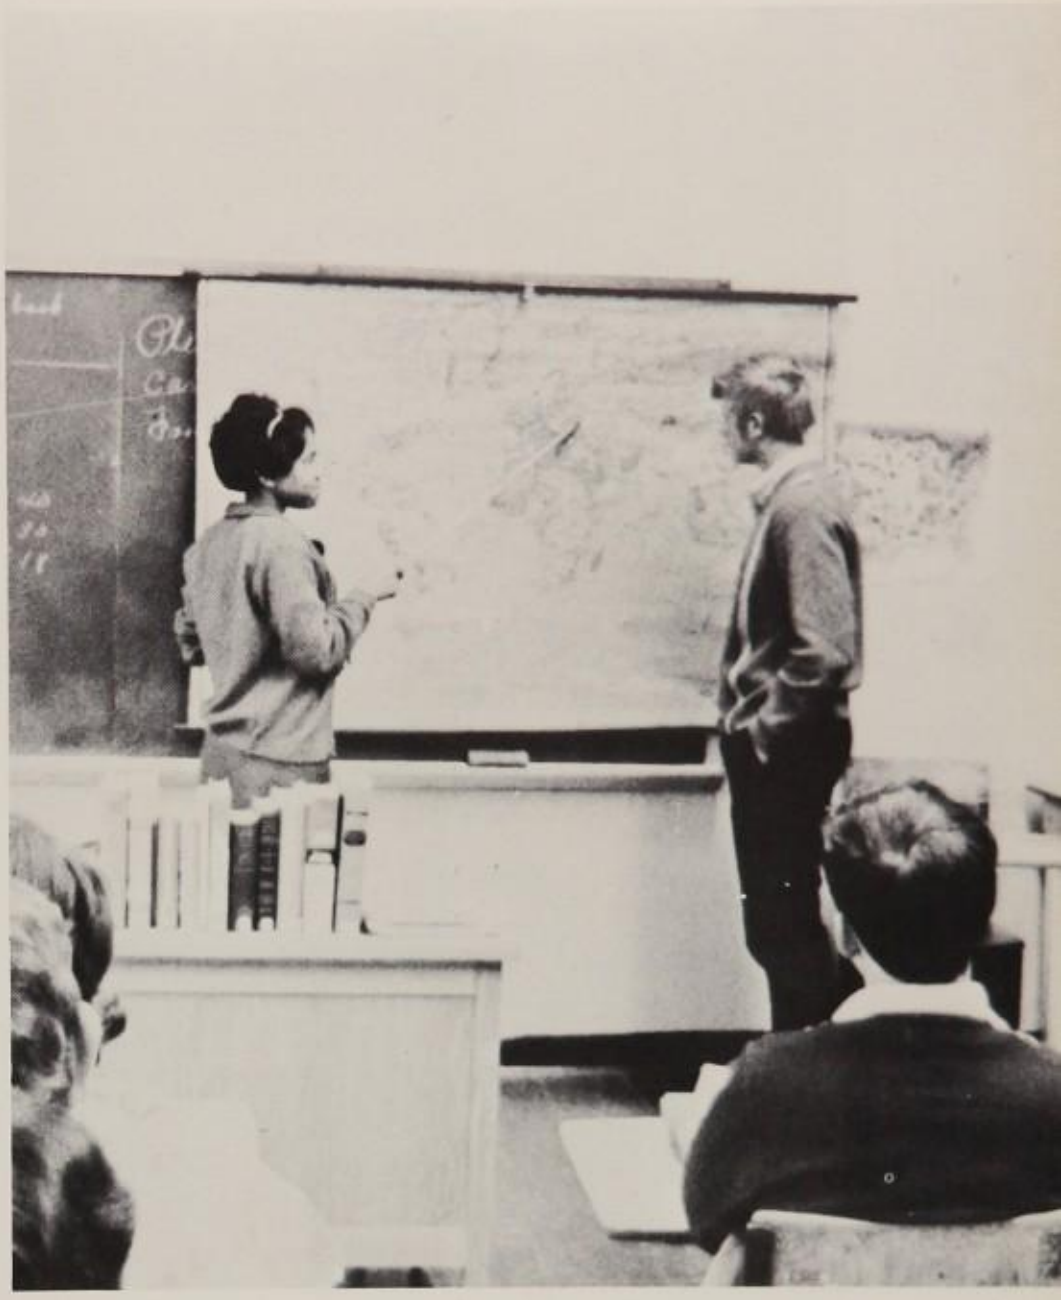
Government, economics, and sociology were offered to all seniors. These required courses gave the graduating student enough basic information and knowledge to understand our country's executive, judicial, and legislative processes. Economics classes studied the profits and gains in industry, commerce, and capitalistic market system of our country. Values and probabilities were studied as pupils realized the mechanics behind the growth of expenditures and investments on a large scale. Sociology was presented as an alternative course and covered the study of human actions and problems.

An hour of quiet study in the library provides a chance for Mr. Charles Holt's U.S. history class to prepare for an upcoming history research paper. Topics for this term paper ranged from the War Between the States to the timely 1968 presidential candidates and their views.

Of Present Through Study Of Past



Senior government student Ricky Meyer listens closely to a lecture on the structure of federal government from teacher, Mr. John Arnold.



The location of ancient countries which have long ago perished or been divided is all part of the study program of general history.

Even without the aid of textbook, junior Pete Adams gleans much information from a lively discussion concerning current events.

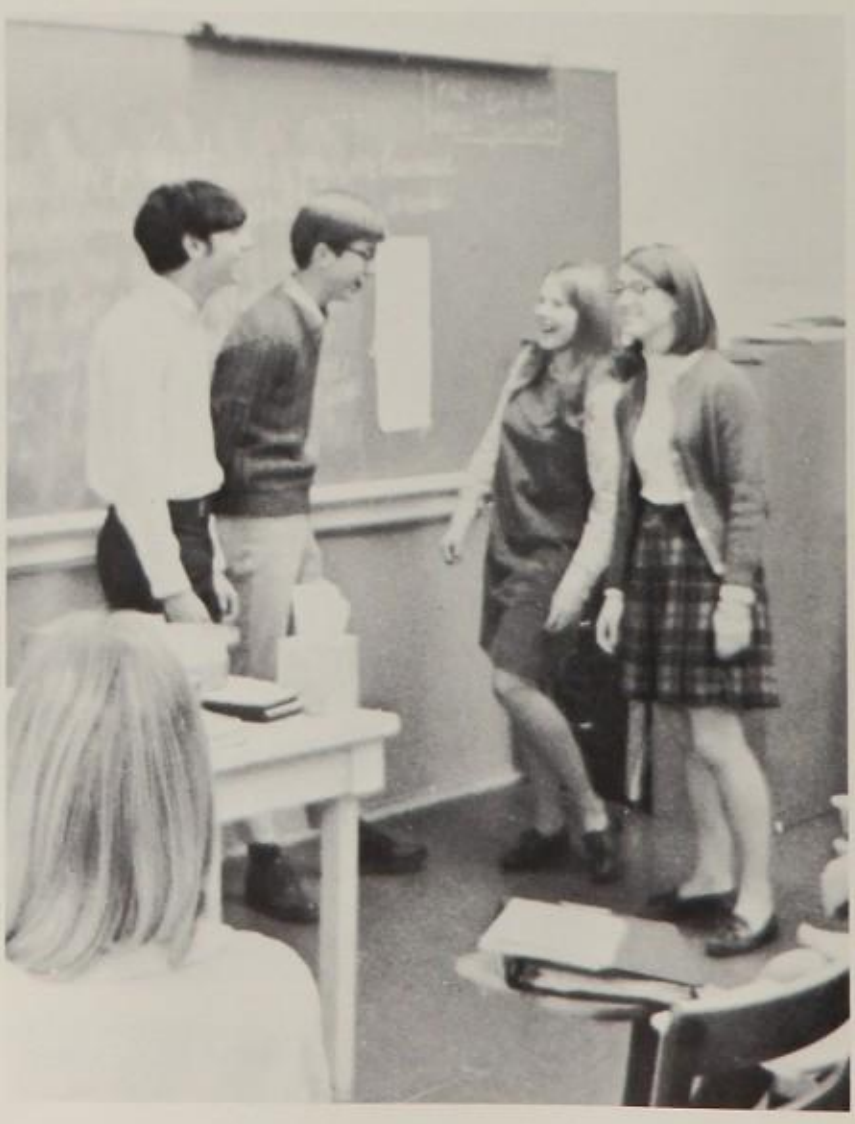
Classes Develop Language Aptitude,

Second-year French students listen attentively to Miss Jeanne Smith while taking notes on the culture and history of the French people.

A combination of earphones, speakers, and pictorial guides work together to help Spanish students better understand the language.

Although it is sometimes perplexing, the language lab increases the foreign language student's comprehension ability and pronounciation.

Second-year French students Henry Peraza and John Watson share a little humor with Marsha Goshorn and Barbara Love.



Investigate Other Cultures, Customs

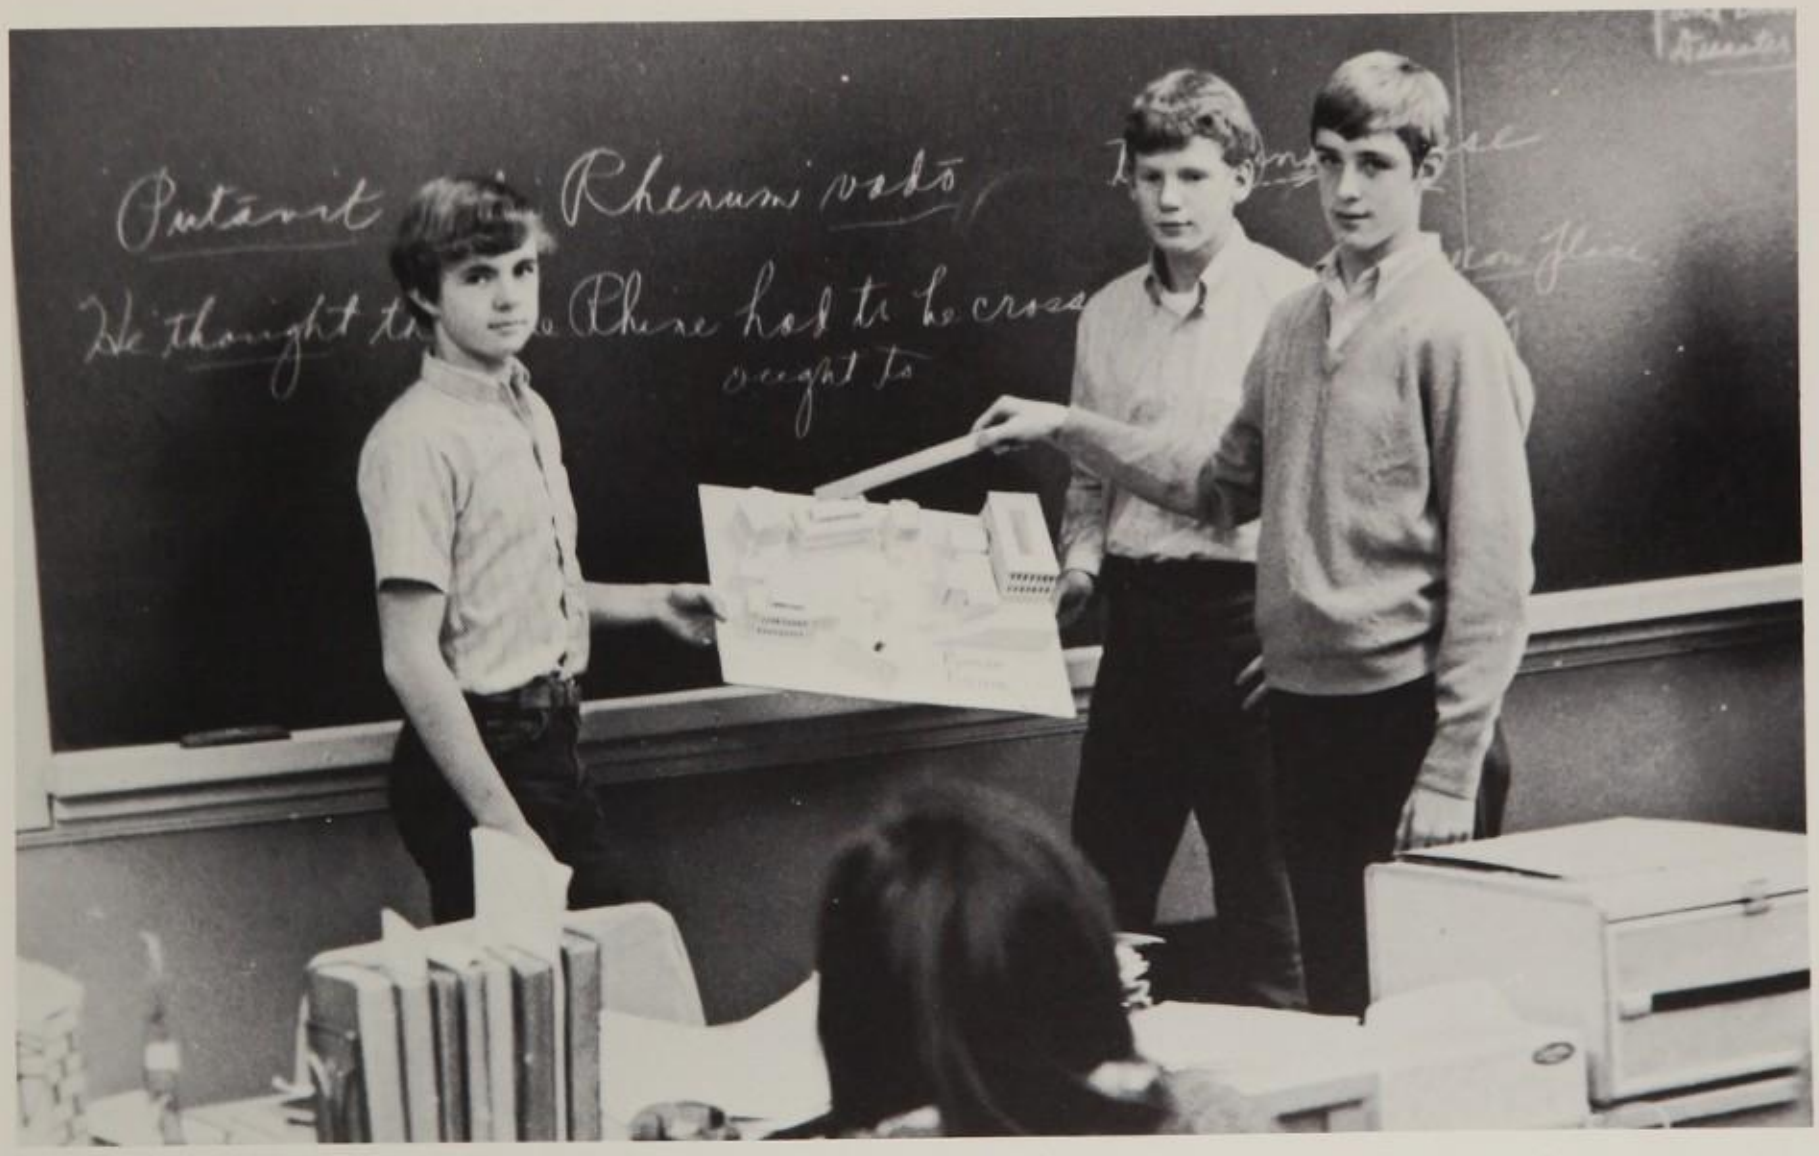
The greatest addition to the Language Department this year was the new audio-lingual equipment in room 30. The apparatus, a tray with earphone sets, proved very effective as a learning aid.

French and Spanish classes were instructed with a new series of tapes and films. The program was excellent in encouraging the students to tune themselves in to hear the foreign language and in strengthening their speech and comprehension. Supplementary material on grammar, culture, civilization, and history was studied to increase the total value of the courses.

Latin classes were based on a similar program, but tapes were used to a greater extent. The classes also studied the past civilization, culture, and commerce of Italy. The contributions that Latin made to our present-day language and literature were enthusiastically studied by all. Projects made by second-year students exemplified various aspects of Roman life. Latin scholars later concentrated specifically on translation.

The new Brittanica film-and-tape series did not affect the German classes. Students worked primarily from German textbooks and used tapes to improve their speech and hearing abilities. Stories in German were presented and studied for vocabulary and content.

Mr. Lowell Shearer uses a map of Europe to illustrate the location, topography, and climate of Germany to his second-year German class.



Second-year Latin students display a model of the Roman Forum which was once a major part of ancient Roman life. During the second year of Latin, students added to their vocabularies, learned new grammatical structures, and investigated the many mysteries of Roman mythology.

Science Courses Introduce Student

Mr. William Santon's chemistry class watches attentively as he demonstrates by method of experimentation the basic chemical reactions and characteristic properties of a substance. Throughout the year, these experiments were observed and evaluated by the intrigued students.

After studying Newton's laws, applied physics students Rich Williams, Mike Meyers, and Mike Salter attempt to prove one of his theories.

Learning the properties of certain rocks and other earth substances is just one purpose of the physical geography student.

To Interesting, Unusual Experiences

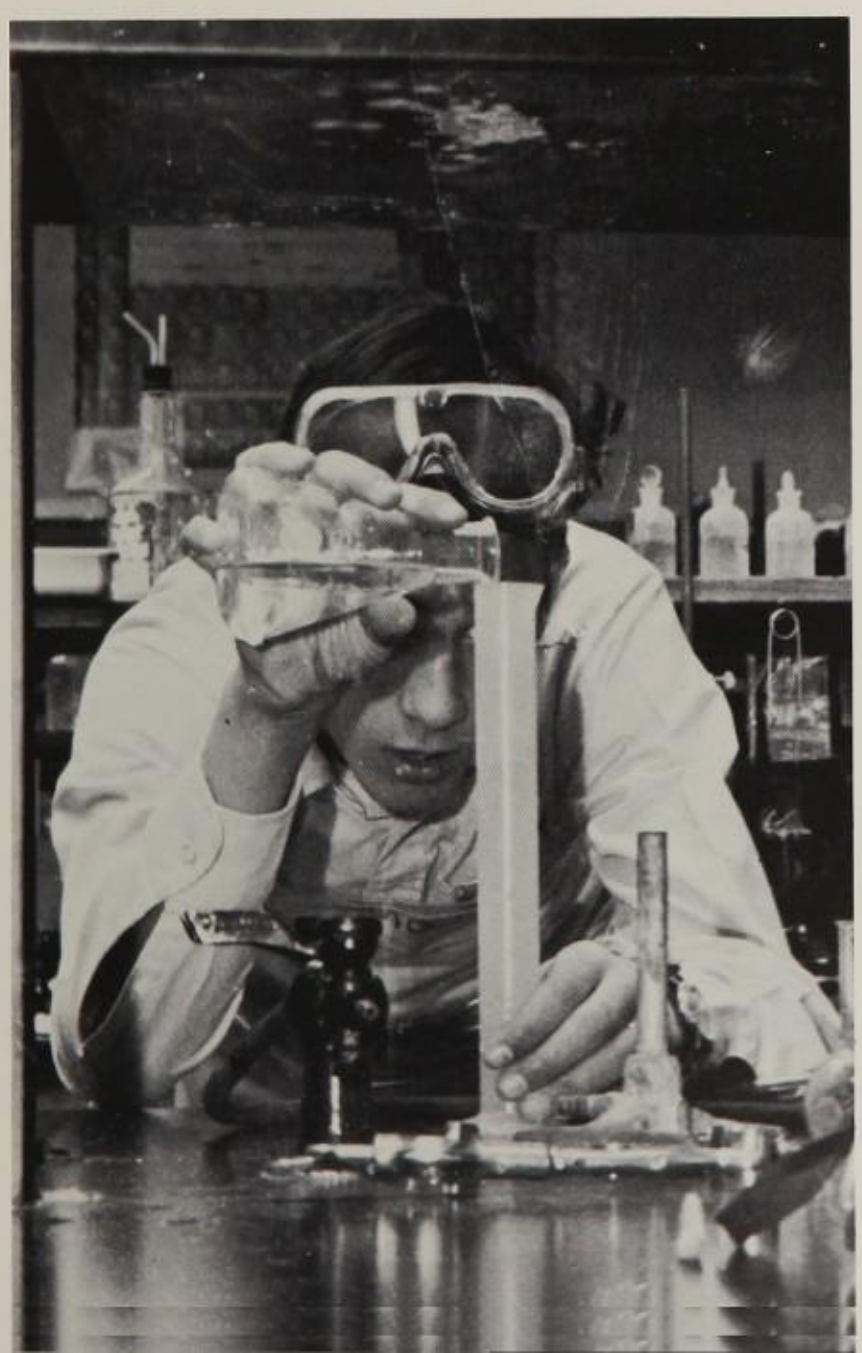
Through the study of the anatomy of representative plants and animals by dissections and microscopic observation, high school botanists acquired an appreciation for the beauties of nature. Class discussion revolved around such topics as photosynthesis, cell structure and cell division. Using the scientific method, chemistry students observed and studied the properties of sugar, starch, perfumes, and spices. Through experimentation in the lab, students were able to understand chemical reactions. Special chemistry, stressing the theoretical rather than descriptive aspects, included work with balancing formulas and equations, the atomic theory, and chemical bonding.

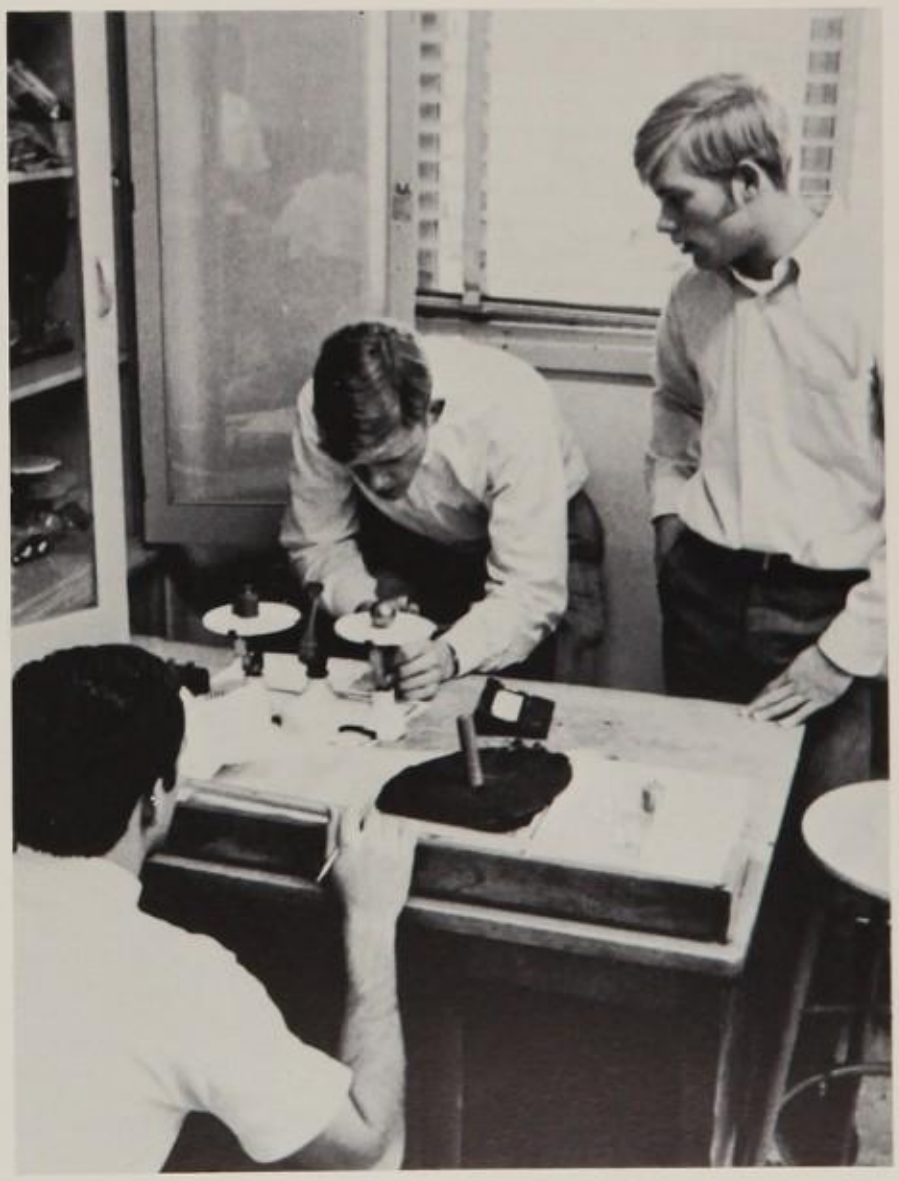
Physics students put their mathematical abilities to use during the study of distance, displacement, speed, time, force, and acceleration. Newton's Laws of Motion, kinetic and potential energy, and mechanics of nature were taught by demonstration, laboratory work, recitation, and class lectures.

In physical geography, an understanding and appreciation of our natural environment was encouraged by bringing together the basic principles of astronomy, meteorology, physics, chemistry, geology, mineralogy, geography, and physiography. Much of the study was conducted by examination of materials and visual aids.

Taking notes about their microscopic discoveries and observations, juniors Fred Simon and Terri Patrick further their study of botany.

Flask in hand, senior Jim Musselman carefully measures the water which he distilled in an important Special Chemistry experiment.





Juniors Ken Klooze, Tom Kelley, and Jim Hill carefully examine molecular weights and their characteristics in a physics experiment.

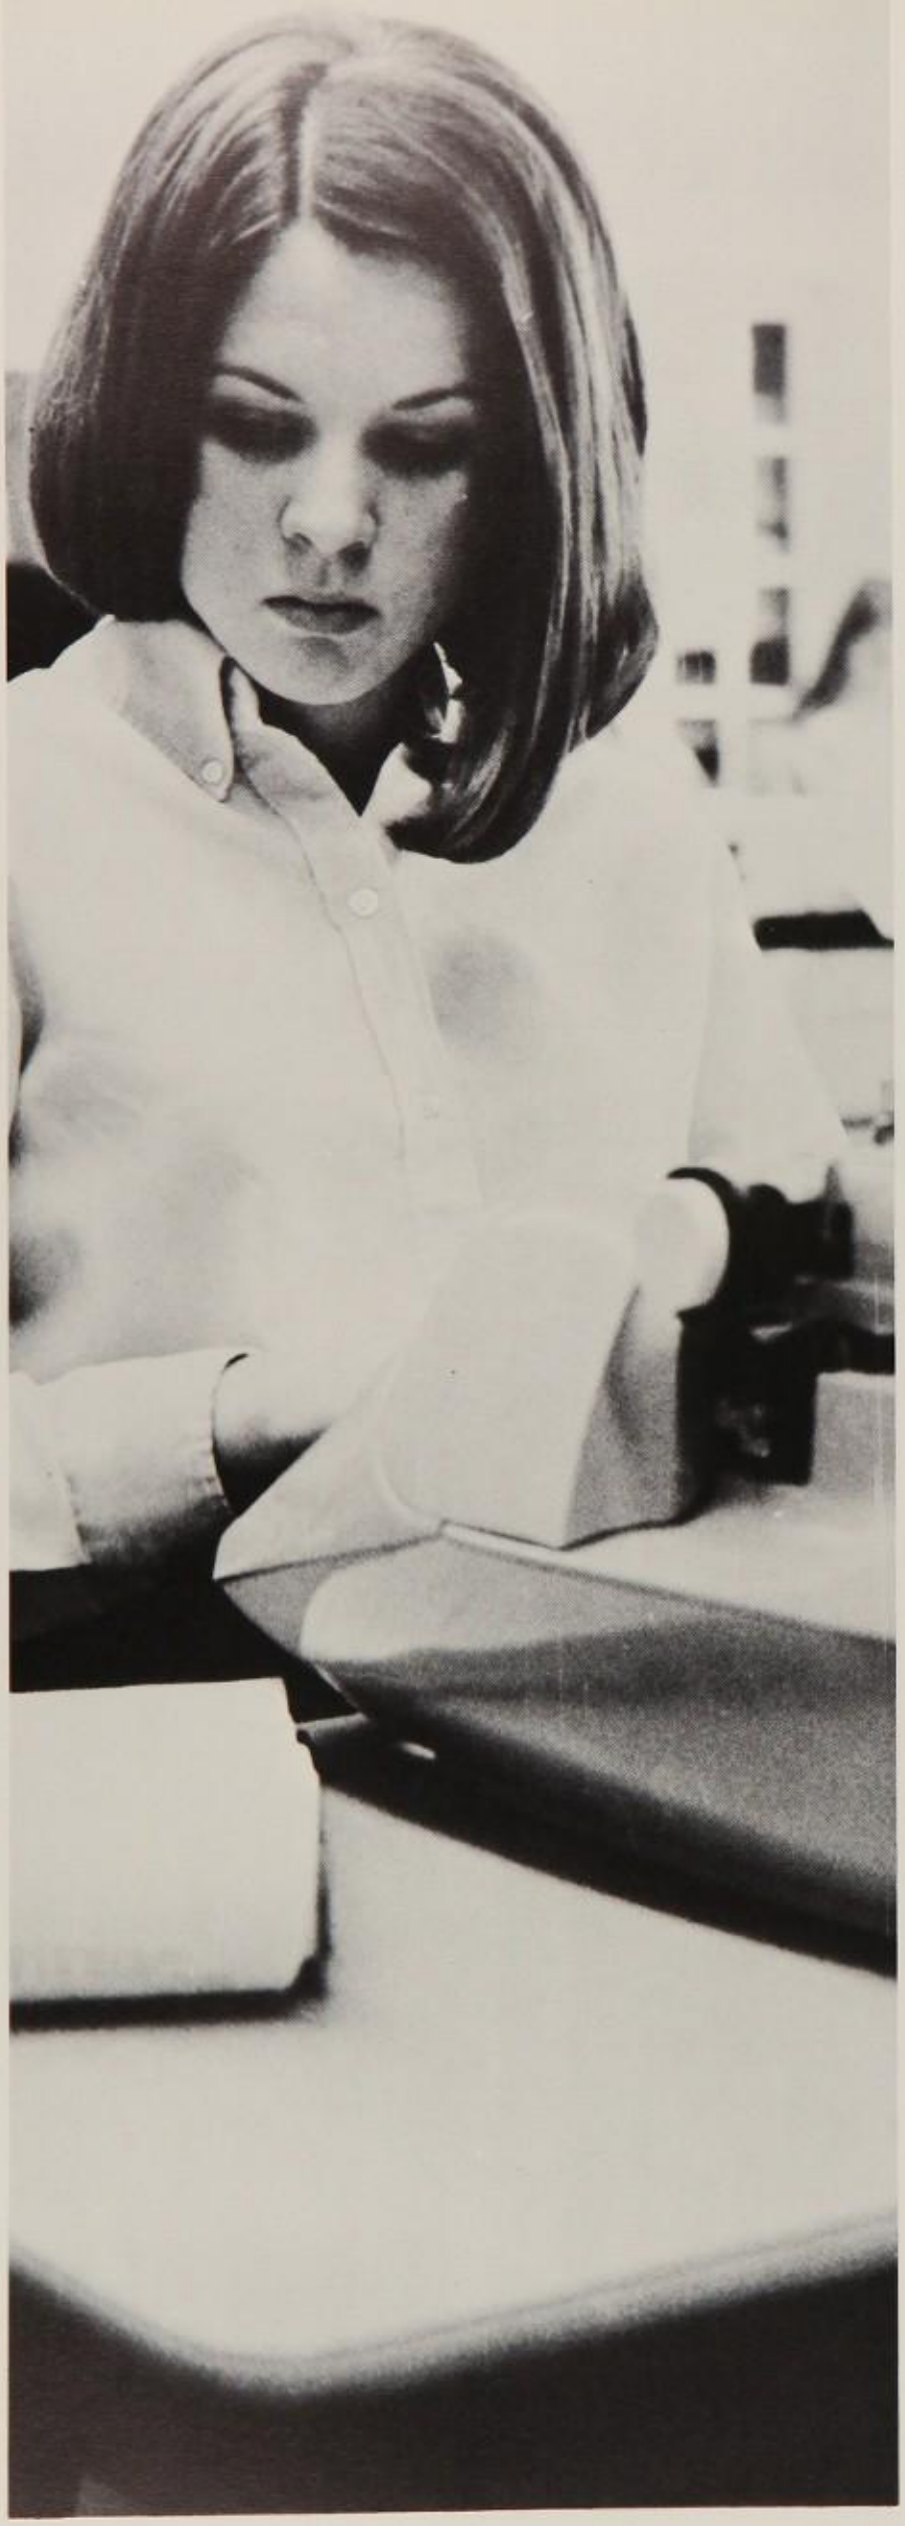
Students Plan

Dividing their program into three areas of study, the stenographic, clerical, and general business branches, the South Side Business Department provided a solid background for students in future careers.

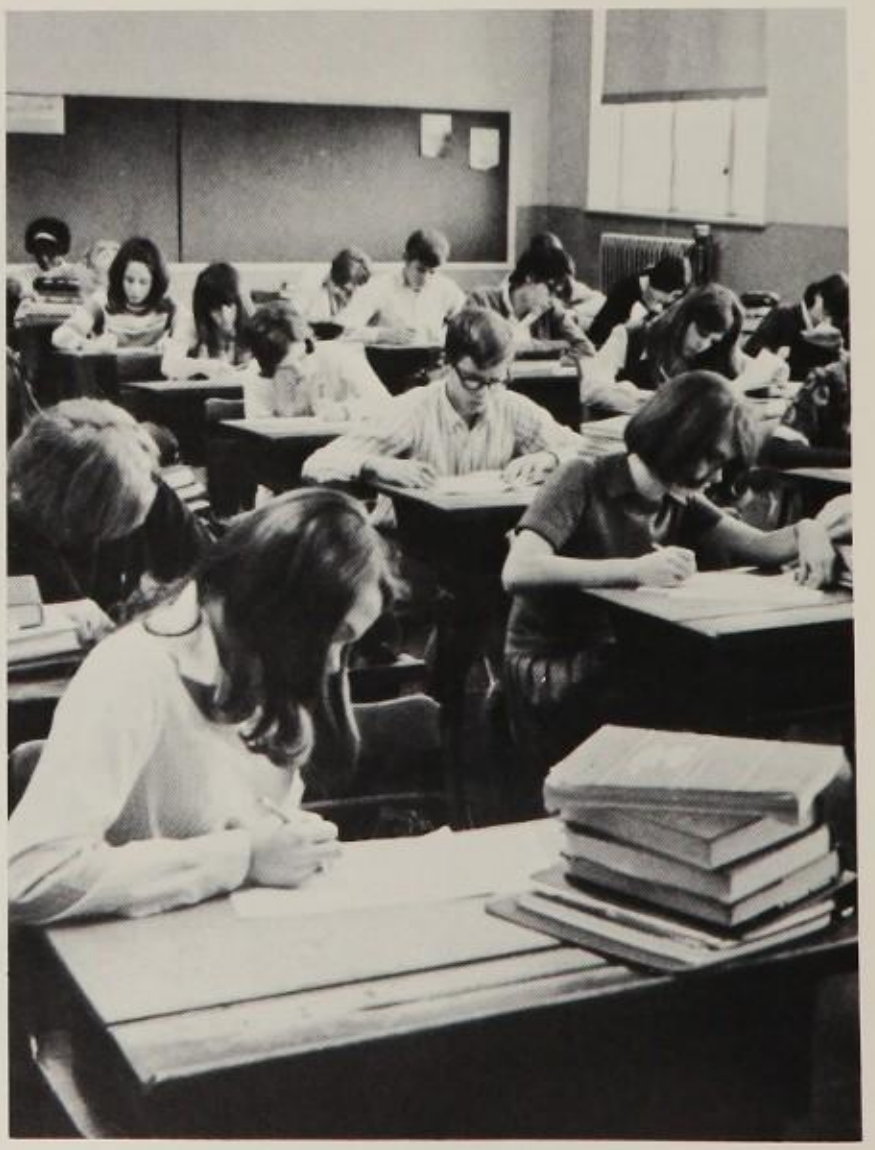
As sophomores, business students were shown the need and importance of business records in their bookkeeping classes. In general business training, they gained an understanding of the American market system by learning basic trade terms.

During their senior year, business students continued their study of shorthand, bookkeeping, and typing. In some cases, they took dictation, transcribed mailable letters, and learned how to operate different business machines. Interest, percentage, and bank loans were analyzed. While studying merchandising, business pupils examined the principles of retail selling, factors necessary for good salesmanship, and problems concerning display, advertising, and supply and demand.

Closely related to the Business Department, the Distributive Education program offered a part-time co-operative course in which the student received instruction on-the-job as well as in school. The academic teaching was correlated with the practical training in preparation for careers in products and service.



While copying a business letter, junior Peggy Drumm concentrates on her speed and accuracy during a test in her personal typing class.



Business students rely upon knowledge they have gleaned from the classroom to supply the answers on a test about sales promotion.

For Careers In World Of Business

Mr. Robert Kelly conducts his business law class in a practical discussion concerning the fundamentals of proper policies in the founding of a corporation.

Beginning typing students are busy trying to master the complicated techniques of delicate touch typing.

These senior girls in Mr. Leon Dolby's commerce class diligently study the financial running of big business corporations. With a knowledge of where businesses get their money and where and why they spend it, commerce students can readily appreciate those who head corporations.

Speech, Journalism Build Confidence;

News, features, editorials, and sports were of prime concern to journalism students. Miss Mary Sayles, a student teacher for nine weeks from Indiana University, had her students examine the articles in order that they might observe the various styles of writing. Students worked with the techniques of advertising and propaganda and followed the writings and literature of the November election campaigns. Every Thursday journalism pupils made critical analyses of the Times and papers from other schools. Some students wrote articles as homework that were submitted to the Times. An annual field trip to Fort Wayne newspapers was made during National Newspaper Week. By visiting the city papers, the Kellys gained a better concept of what publishing a large paper is actually like.

Mrs. Mary Crum's speech students began the year with public speaking, one part of their oral communication instruction. Students' poise, style, and delivery were strengthened with extemporaneous and impromptu speeches. Other addresses were given in order to inform, stimulate, and convince fellow classmates. They interpreted poetic, descriptive, oratorical, dramatic, and humorous declamations. Studies of debate and drama were conducted, a one-act play was produced, and radio and television broadcasts were criticized in class.

Journalism students Larry Goltz, Phil English, John Gall, and Sarah Johnson read many different papers to compare journalistic styles.

Kellys Express Personal Creativity

Acquiring skills in the creation of things that have form and beauty was the goal of the students who studied under the guidance of the Art Department. As sophomores, the art students were required to take Art 1 and 2, where they were introduced to art and its language. They learned the basic designs of art, line, form, color, texture, and space. During the first semester, work was done in two dimensions. After using water colors, ink, charcoal, chalk, and compressed chalk to create lines, the sophomores progressed into three dimensions, making hangings from starched burlap and experimenting with the crayon-resist technique. Wood sculptures and wood-and-plaster carvings were among other projects finished by the underclassmen.

Junior and senior art students went on to more advanced work. More drawing and painting, along with more sophisticated design, were emphasized in their classwork. Crafts were an important part of Art 3 and 4. Using clay, enameling, and copper enameling, the students made animals and figures, banks, covered boxes, and pins. They were introduced to batik, the dyeing of material to produce a design on fabric.

In Art 7 and 8, pupils used wire and furnace plaster to construct sculptures. Sand-casting, crayon colisone, and an art appreciation course were also offered.

Senior art student Bill Smith proudly hangs his psychedelic mobile of geometric shapes and designs for display in Mrs. Thexton's class.

Junior Wardell Lockett works slowly and carefully as he molds a piece of clay into a sculptured object. After the completion of his sculpture, it was carefully painted with colored glaze and then heated to a hardness in a kiln. Finally, the once clay was a usable ash tray.

Classes Learn Uses Of Many Tools

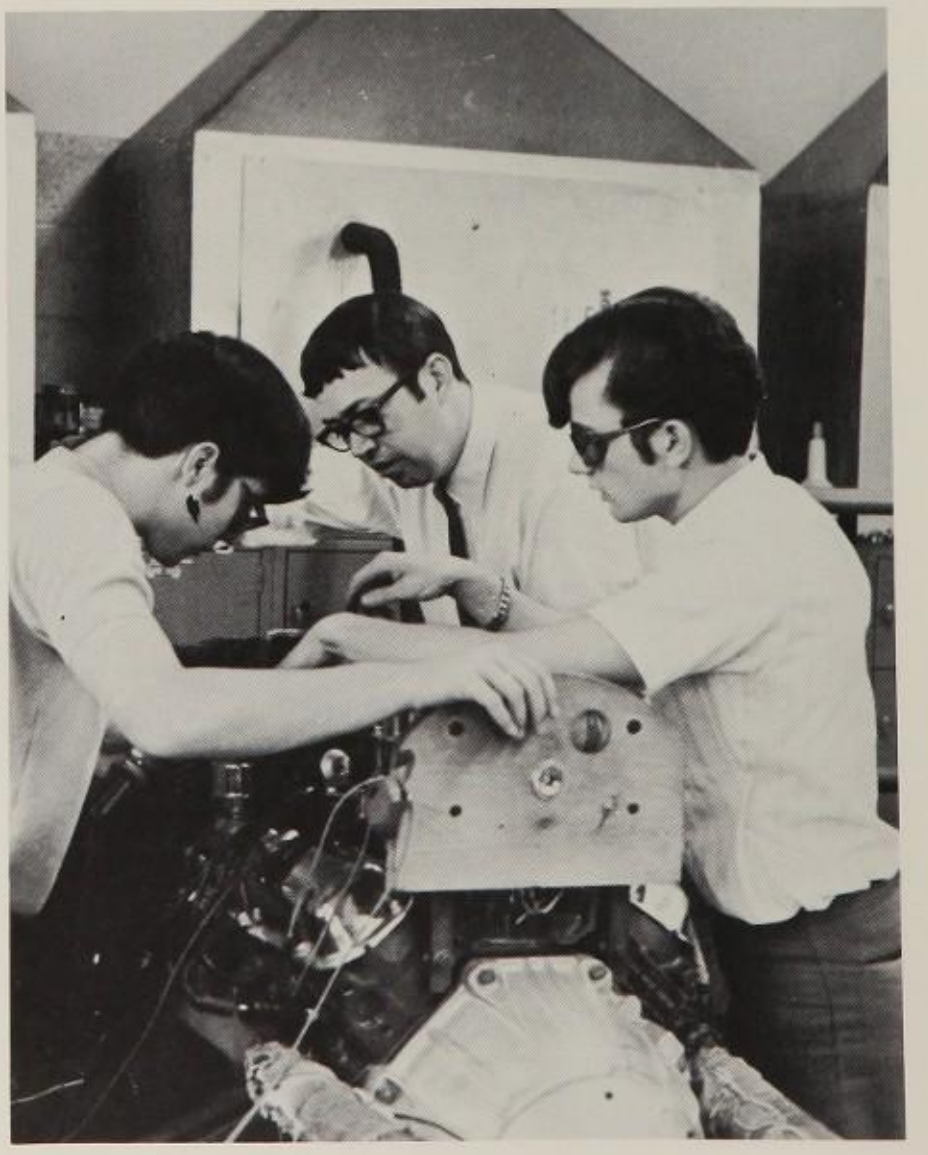
Whrrr . . . zip . . . buzzz . . . these were just a few of the many sounds that originated in the shop every day. This year many South Siders worked hard in their industrial arts courses to prepare themselves for various vocations. All beginning students were required to take a sequence of drafting, wood-working, metal-working, and power mechanics before continuing into the advanced fields of study in any of these areas.

Students in the first semester of drafting, metal-working, and wood-working studied the basic principles and learned about the types of equipment. Caution was particularly stressed to those beginning in any phase of industrial arts. Second semester work included involved problems in the application of the fundamentals. Those taking third and fourth semesters were occupied with advanced techniques and more complex equipment, such as internal combustion engines and electric motors.

This spring the Industrial Arts Department exhibited projects made by students. Among the items displayed were drawings, cabinets, lamps, machinist's vises, clamps, and small electric motors. This past year was a year of firsts for the department. Not only was it expanded by the addition of personnel, but a new metal lathe was also purchased. Safety glasses were required for all shop work for the first time.

Senior Al Williams skillfully and carefully maneuvers the wood lathe in order to complete his project as soon as possible.

Concentrating on accuracy and neatness, Archer Ed Hughes determinedly works to finish his drafting sketches in class.



Listening to their teacher, two Kelly students follow his instructions and learn the various uses of a motor testing device.

As Homemakers Acquire New Skills

Taking advantage of their sewing skills, these home ec girls have the chance to add to their wardrobes by sewing some clothes.

Ironing isn't easy as it seems. Here, two students follow the folds of their dresses and cautiously iron their creations.

Expert grooming, wise selection of clothes, and the efficient planning of a varied wardrobe were the first areas explored in the home economics courses this year. In the cooking classes, a knowledge of proper nutrition was essential in order that the girls be able to choose the best foods and cook a well-balanced, appetizing meal

In the clothing and sewing classes, students investigated up-to-date fashions and designers. From a basic pattern, the girls were taught how to experiment and create original outfits. As a conclusion to the course, each student designed her own party dress or formal, decorating them with dainty details to add that "special touch".

Adjustment to personal problems, dating, and marriage were discussed in the marriage and family living course. In the child development program, physical and mental characteristics of a child from infancy to twelve years of age were studied through actual classroom observation.

In the newly added home furnishings course, girls strived to develop the techniques of selecting just the right furniture to fit the budget and the room. Basic art principles of design were also studied, enabling the future homemakers to blend effective color schemes.

As part of the child care instruction, Archer girls must learn how to bathe a young baby carefully and correctly.

Students' Music Potential Developed;

Following the philosophy that practice makes perfect, the concert choir diligently practices for a coming music assembly.

South Side's Music Department, which is divided into the Concert Choir, the Symphonic Band, the orchestra, and music appreciation, strove to bring out the maximum in creative potential and ability in students through the stimulation of musical interest.

Led by Mr. Lester Hostetler, the Concert Choir sang their way through exercises, classics, Broadway tunes, and secular selections. Throughout the year they gave various concerts. Some of those were at the Indiana Bank, P.T.A. meetings, Harrison Hill Junior High, the Baer Field Inn, school assemblies, and Commencement.

Mr. Drummond headed the orchestra. Among the engagements involving this talented organization were school assemblies, the Senior Play, and a special program at Harrison Hill.

Mr. Drummond's other instrumental group is the Symphonic Band. School songs and pep songs comprised the repertoire of the band on fifteen occasions during the year. Appearances in school concerts, assemblies, and Commencement gave those with a more serious outlook a chance to perform for the education and enjoyment of the student body.

The academic portion of the Music Department consisted of a course in music appreciation. As music was studied and analyzed, students learned to understand it.

Rehearsing a difficult number, senior trumpeter Merrill Phillips leads fellow band companions through the musical score.

Senior Bob Swain accompanies songster Mary Beth Rhoads during a rehearsal prior to the annual Thanksgiving assembly.

Athletic Talents Find Graceful Outlet

Junior Mike Manning participates in one of the various activities on this year's physical education agenda, the trampoline.

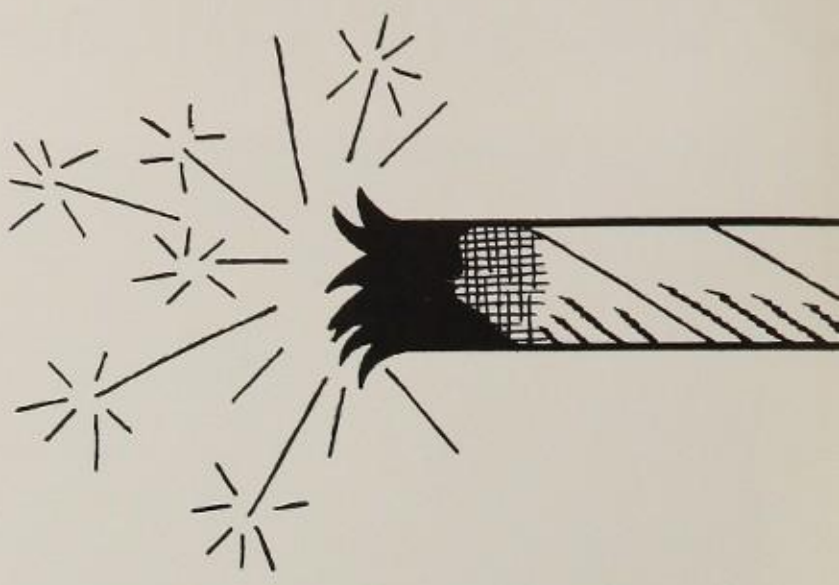
The sweat of activity, the joy of competition, the satisfaction of victory, and the agony of defeat were all experienced this past year by students of physical education. The department was comprised of three different classes: sophomore gym, advanced gym, and advanced gymnastics. The purposes of physical education were to build stronger bodies, to promote sportsmanship and cooperation, to develop proper attitudes toward health and cleanliness, and to introduce boys to a wide variety of sports. The boys participated in the annual Spring Show and demonstrated the skills they had developed in their physical education courses throughout the school year.

Academics were stressed much more in girls' physical education at South Side this year. For every movement, step, and exercise the girls performed, a reason was taught and explained. The students also took the athletic viewpoint more seriously. "A sound mind in a sound body" became a fundamental philosophy.

Sophomores were offered two courses, gym and dance. Gym classes used gymnastic apparatus more extensively than ever before, while dance classes made notebooks. Talented juniors and seniors could take advanced tumbling and dance. These classes, too, worked to prepare creative routines for the Spring Show.

Sophomore girls acquire graceful movements and great poise by practicing basic ballet motions in the tenth grade dance classes.

A vigorous game of basketball during physical education class keeps the sophomore boys in great shape and on their toes.



Mission: Personalities

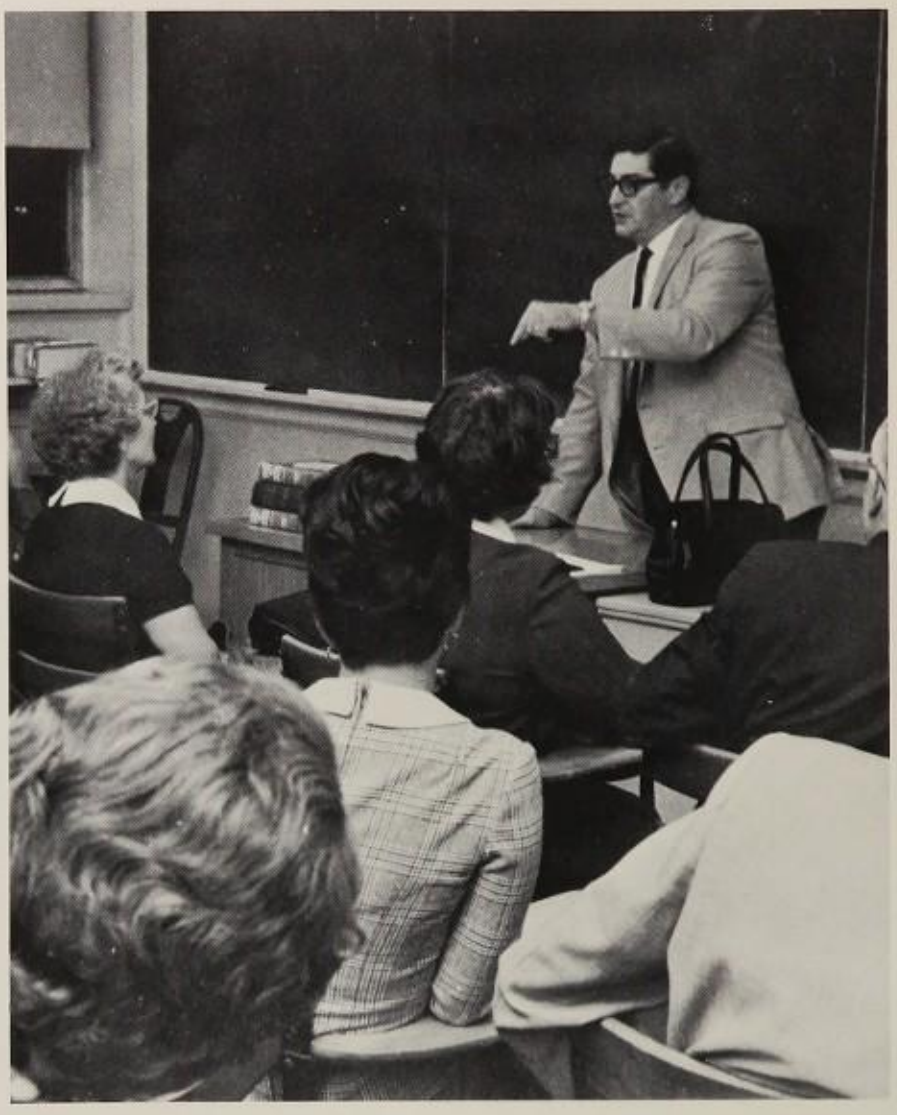
"No man is an island." No person is alone, isolated from the rest of society. People need other people to exist. There is a sense of togetherness at South Side. Teachers are all attempting to guide their students; students are all working towards their goals. The invisible bonds of friendship are everywhere. South Side people are special people.

One can sense a special feeling throughout the building, as students walk through the halls before school, or gather in center hall, or sit in the gym at lunch time. One can feel it as he sees a teacher working patiently, individually with a student, forfeiting his own time to guide the citizen of tomorrow. Dances, banquets, basketball games all give the same impression: South Side people are special people.

Teamwork Characterizes Faculty

Administration, faculty, and staff—all of these are integral members of the team that keeps South Side running smoothly and efficiently. The big decision-makers, Mr. Jack E. Weicker, principal; Mr. Richard Block, assistant principal; Mr. Ralph Boling, dean of boys; and Mrs. Mary Smith, dean of girls, are always available to discuss any problems which students might have or to offer advice to them. The people who comprise the guidance staff, Mr. Thomas Gordon, Miss Mary Graham, Mr. Clarence Murray, and Mr. Wayne Scott, help South Side students plan their futures. Next, there are the faculty members who seem to be around just when that certain math problem seems so frustrating or when those cinnamon rolls won't rise. Assisting the administration and faculty are the staff members who perform the cafeterial, custodial, and secretarial duties that are essential to South Side.

Although all of these people are working together to provide South Side with the best academic atmosphere possible, some must carry heavier teaching and organizational loads than the rest. In addition to the administration, some people have extra duties as department heads. These are Mrs. Amanda Watson, cafeteria; Mr. Kenneth Buckmaster, custodians; Mr. Ronald Gersmehl, English; Miss Mary Edith Reiff, Foreign Language; Mrs. Marcella Ellett, Home Economics; Mr. Thomas Polite, Industrial Arts; Mr. Robert Weick, head librarian; Mr. Clair Motz, Physical Education; Mr. Richard Bussard, Science; and Mr. George Collyer, Social Studies, who are responsible for their own sections.



English Department head, Mr. Ronald Gersmehl, presents his class schedule to interested parents at the annual Back-To-School Night.

Mr. Robert Weick, a new faculty member, serves the school as head librarian.

Mr. Ernest Walker, Business Department Head, has an early-morning conference in the general office with secretaries Mrs. Dorothy Arnold and Mrs. Sylvia Christon.

Principal Weicker Guides Staff

Other people of extreme importance to South Side students are those who sponsor the various clubs and classes which comprise a large segment of the students' extra-curricular activities. However, there is one person upon whose shoulders all of the successes and failures of South Side must ultimately rest. This man is Principal Jack E. Weicker. This year he was distinguished by having his name included in Who's Who in the Midwest. Mr. Weicker received this recognition because of his outstanding record as an educator and administrator. He and his competent assistants have proved repeatedly that they are capable and willing to work with each other and the student body in order to promote understanding and unity among everyone working or studying at South Side.

Because of injuries to his daughter, Kathy, Mr. Weicker had to escort her up the aisle on a wheeled platform at her wedding.

As principal, Mr. Jack E. Weicker has many important functions. One of these is making announcements to the student body to keep them informed of current happenings, club meetings, and activities.

Final Year Begins;

Aiding seniors through the final year at South are class sponsors Mr. George Davis, Mr. Richard Sage, and Miss Lois Holtmeyer.

Traditionally, the senior class is regarded as infallible, self-confident, and superior. Having reached this dizzying height, the members of the Class of 1969 are able to evaluate the truth of this assumption. Are all seniors really beautiful, successful, and at ease in any situation?

To their sorrow, this year's seniors found that life is not that easy, especially at South Side in 1968 and 1969. From the first day of school, it was apparent that seniors receive no special treatment. The senior rubs elbows with everyone else in the crowded halls, and the same crush of homework afflicts him as burdens every other student.

The repetition of a day's program soon grows tedious, and the boredom is relieved only by such special class activities as selecting officers and sponsors, hosting the Senior Reception, and planning the Senior Banquet. The Senior Play is an activity which no other class can imitate, and the Senior Prom is memorable as the last social function which the class will attend.

Graduation itself is a completely new experience. To each senior it marks some sort of personal achievement. Regardless of its other effects, the experiences of the senior year have accomplished one task—they have created the Class of 1969. Begun in September, 1966, and emerging as a unified whole on their graduation day, this group possesses memories which no other group can have. No class has given to South Side exactly what this class has. The Class of 1969 is unique in the history of South Side High School.

Successfully leading the senior class through the many social activities of the 1968-69 school year are vice-president, Karen Kessler; president, Norman Hopson; secretary-treasurer, Jean Dunlap; social council chairman, Sally Aldridge; and members, Scott Shoaff and Randy Wamsley.

Junior class officers, John Fisher, secretary-treasurer; Peggy Roehm, social council chairman; Jan Hines, president; Waymon Brown, social council member; Andy Gunkler, vice-president; and Nancy Roehm, social council member, find their jobs more than just work.

Juniors First Select Class Officers,

The Junior Class was in the awkward position of an "in-between" year. Yet, it was a time of growing and reaching for new goals.

The juniors faced the preliminary decisions about their future educations and vocations. They met the challenge by trying their abilities on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and the National Merit Test. Other than these, juniors undertook new and more difficult subjects, such as physics, advanced algebra, and languages with seemingly hundreds of conjugations of verbs. Many juniors were required to write a term paper which was the result of many hours of work at the library.

In addition to their many subjects, juniors also participated in many outside activities. They found pleasure in using their talents in Philo, Hi-Y, Wranglers, Times and Totem staffs, and Lettermen's Club, to name a few.

Also important to the Class of 1970 was the election of class officers. Jan Hines was elected president, while Andy Gunkler was chosen vice-president. John Fisher was elected secretary-treasurer, and Peggy Roehm became social council chairman. The two social council members were Nancy Roehm and Waymon Brown. Mrs. Barbara Thexton, Mr. Don Locke, and Mr. Robert Petty were designated as class sponsors.

The Junior Class achieved many goals of sportsmanship, leadership, and scholarship. With this experience, the Class Of 1970 was prepared to lead the school as seniors.

Junior class sponsors, Mrs. Barbara Thexton, Mr. Robert Petty, and Mr. Don Locke counsel the class officers in planning activities.

Sophs Choose Officers To Guide

The sophomores' new class sponsors, Mrs. Dorothy Brutton, Mr. Robert Kelley, and Mr. Thomas Lindenberg, help the officers plan the Class of 1971's social events.

Eyes agog, books flying, and floor plan close at hand, the Class of 1971 began the first stage of their three-year mission at South Side. Entering from many different schools, the incoming Archers were amazed to realize how many new faces and names surrounded them wherever they turned in the confusing Archer halls.

Realizing the many difficulties facing the newest Kelly class, the upperclasses attempted to make their first weeks a little easier by treating the sophomores to orientation parties. Philo "Big Sisters" became welcome sights for lost but proud sophomores. Rewarded for their efforts, the upperclasses began to recognize many new faces eagerly joining in the many extra-curricular activities open to them. Sophomores soon found their busy afternoons filled with activities ranging from Meterite to basketball practice.

The characters of Silas Marner and Julius Caesar suddenly seemed to take up precious hours. Lockers were stacked with dirty dance and gym clothes as well as the usual world history and plane geometry books.

As the year quickly passed, the Sophomore Class, with the tremendous aid of sponsors, class officers, and homeroom teachers, staged the yearly Sophomore Party to the immense enjoyment of all who attended. The dance and gym classes, filled with Archer sophs, also entertained the entire school with the annual, greatly anticipated Spring Show. With one-third of their mission accomplished well, the Sophomore Class looked forward to the beginning of stage two, the upcoming junior year.

Junior Sarah Miles watches the amusing antics of sophs Barb Love and Denise McCoy as they prove that gum can be dangerous.

With the completion of the final yearbook shipment, we all breathed a sigh of relief, began to pat each other on the back, and fondly began to remember those hectic yet unforgettable deadlines. Those all-nighters suddenly seemed worthwhile and not quite as terrible as we had made ourselves believe. We looked back on our efforts with pride and our "timely tragedies" with more humor than we had once mustered. However, most of all we realized that we had achieved what we had started out to do, produce a yearbook which was representative of South Side. Our mission complete, we realized how many others had helped us in our efforts.

Frequenting Fort Wayne to answer our endless questions and mail our deadline shipments was Mr. Larry Glaze, our Paragon Press representative. We wish to thank him and Paragon Press for the interest and co-operation given to us during our pressing deadlines. We would also like to thank Watters Studio for their patience during our last-minute rushes for proofs and prints and the S.K. Smith Company for their help in designing and constructing our covers. Personal thanks go to our parents who offered homes for work and patiently tried to understand our dilemma as deadlines approached. Most of all, our thanks go to Miss Anne White, whose infinite patience and understanding guided us through many trying days.

With the distribution of the '69 Totems, the staff realizes the real meaning of mission success.

Stan and LeeAnn

Hi Handsome — It was a fine year. Great guy. I'll come see you if you good times, good thoughts, and a great guy.
like it or not.
Your ugly Pal,
Lisa

Hey... Thanks, you're probably the only reason I'm gonna get to Hanover... Becky Lord

Mr. Davis – To one of the greatest teachers I've ever had. Thanks for a great year.
Stan Klochn

Mr. Davis – Thanks alot for being one of my nicest, most understanding, friendly, and greatest teachers. Thanks to you I really enjoyed Chemistry. You're unforgettable and I mean it as a compliment!
Vive l'anarchie ☮ I'll follow your footsteps at Hanover.
Your pal,
Cindy alias Betty
Don Swish Stewart alias Beth Stewart

Mr. Davis – You just have to be one of the greatest teachers here.
Tom Schwarz
Bob Martin

Mr. Davis – Thanks for all your help this year. You're a great teacher
Dave Gregg

Mr. Davis – Communicating more because I'm in your homeroom. H.R.4 certainly was an intellectual experience. It was really fun though. So was yr. 4 chem. I'm glad I could be part of your best class (?) Well, anyways, it's been a blast. I shall return Steve Crook (Thief)

We may have been a little hard to teach, but thank you for caring and trying to help us learn. I was well worth it & I hope we can make you proud of us some day.
Dan Borgmann

Mr. Davis – May you Always Find Happiness Everytime You Tee It Up – Tom Motter-The Hacker

MR. DAVIS – I SAT IN THE BACK ROW AND YOU PROBABLY THOUGHT I WASN'T. PAYING ATTENTION MOST OF THE TIME AND YOU'RE PROBABLY RIGHT! YOU'VE GIVEN US MANY STIMULATING DAYS OF LEARNING. THANKS FOR EVERYTHING
SINCERELY
MIKE HERRON

MR DAVIS: YOU'RE THE GREATEST TEACHER IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD! THANKS FOR PUTTING UP WITH & UNDERSTANDING US THIS YEAR. Vicki Spears

Hi Mr Davis-I
Gts really been great servicing for you this year (but you probably didn't think so, b did so many things wrong
(our) been quite (hem teacher, and a super sponsor. Thanks for everything!
Sally Aldridge

Hi Mr. Davis
Bet ya didn't believe our homeroom 4 would make it. It was really great having you for my H.R teacher, my Chem teacher, my service
keeper - I surprised you didn't get tired of seeing me. thanks
for everything
Linda Crayton

Mr. Davis - I can't explain it you've been such the support to me this year.
Because of you, Chemistry - a lot of fun - Proving myself as one person and not being swept of the class. Our class does a lot of things to perfect, and I think we owe most of it to your friendly attitude - I'll come back to see you, I don't know if
Many Alexander

To Dear Mr. Davis,
This year has been something, but then with you around, it has to be something else. I'm really glad you accepted the responsibility of Senior Sponsor.
Believe me, I wouldn't have made it without your shoulder to cryon. - and for all the chem help I thank you. You're probably the baotst teacher, here.
Try to remember me, like me back often.
Jean Dunlap

MR. DAVITZ,
HOW ARE YOU? I AM FINE.
YOU'RE THE BEST CHEM. TEACHER
I'VE EVER HAD THANKS ALOT FOR ALL THE UNDERSTANDING PATIENCE
YOU'VE SUPPLIED AS A CLASS SPONSOR.
WITHOUT YOUR HELP WE WOULD'VE REALLY
BLOWN THE WHOLE YEAR. GOODBY
RANDY WAMSLEY

THIS SUMMER- UMMM.....
OR NOT! WELL.... EAT UP
CARES IF YOU UNDERSTAND
TO # HAVE SOMEONE THAT GREAT TEACHER. IT'S GOOD
CLASS SPONSOR + A REALLY
SERIOUSLY.... YOU'RE A GREAT
CLUMSY AS ME THOUGH! OH WELL
SOMEONE TO SERVICE AS
IT'S TOO BAD YOU HAD TO ASK
ANY ACID HOLES IN MY CLOTHES.
BOX HOUR) I DIDN'T EVEN GET
MR. D.. (7th period - THE CHATTER-
GREAT SERVICING FOR YOU
GEE..... IT'S REALLY BEEN
SENIOR DAVIS,

Dear Mr. Davis — You are one heck of a funny guy (now that I've become fabulous for that word) I'll admit I didn't catch on to you at first, but now I really love that sly, quiet, subtle sense of humor. You're the kind that laughs with people — never at them. You're a very kind, good-hearted man — I wish I had had you for a father. I'd better stop — I'm crying.

Howdy! This has been a good year (but I'm still glad it's over!) Mostly, I've enjoyed our picnics and bowling parties... I think you're one of the few teachers at South who gives a darn. Anyway, I might not be a Chemist, but I tried; have learned much about patience from you.

Always Best Wishes,
Sue Rendergast
"Amy"

P.S. Thanks a lot for being such a great sponsor. Gosh, I'm getting so nice, I can't it!

Hi ya t---?
I didn't want it. But I guess I won't read your that rampage. Oh yuck I'm getting too nice. Do usually when you think I don't care
Really, had a great time at our picnic + bowling even though you are always picking on me. Will I think I won't ever miss as words
a letter stop!
I don't think I'll ever be able to forget you!!?!
